Introduction of "Royal Air Force Instructions (India)" and "Royal Air Force Orders (India)."

In Army Department Resolution No. 2228, dated the 21st December 1917, the Government of India approved of the introduction of Army Instructions (India), as the medium for conveying the orders of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, or the Governor-General in Council, on matters affecting the Army in India.

2. Hitherto, orders relating to matters affecting the Royal Air Force in India, which require the sanction of the Government of India, have been conveyed either by means of Government letters, or if the subject has been of general interest and of a non-confidential nature through the medium of Army Instructions (India).

3. Following the practice adopted in the United Kingdom whereby all orders regarding the Royal Air Force are issued separately from those concerning the Army, and in view of the expansion of the Royal Air Force in India, the Government of India have decided that the procedure detailed below shall be adopted, with effect from the 1st January 1920, for the promulgation of decisions of Government and the orders affecting the Royal Air Force in India issued by the Air Officer Commanding, Royal Air Force, acting under the orders of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—

(ii) Decisions not within the powers of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, and which convey the orders of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India or the Governor-General in Council, on matters of a non-confidential nature affecting the Royal Air Force in India as a whole, will, in future, be issued simultaneously to all authorities concerned, in a form of communication to be designated "Royal Air Force Instructions (India)."

(iii) Orders of general importance issued by the Air Officer Commanding, Royal Air Force, acting under the orders of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, which do not require the sanction of the Government of India, will, in future, be promulgated as "Royal Air Force Orders (India)." Air Ministry orders, etc., which are deemed applicable to the Royal Air Force in India and do not involve expenditure, will be republished for general information in "Royal Air Force Orders (India)." Nothing, however, relating to the regulation of civil aviation in India should be published in these Orders. Nor should any matter affecting any portion of the Land Forces serving under the Government of India be published in these Orders without the previous concurrence of the head of the Branch of Army Headquarters concerned.

(iv) The Royal Air Force Instructions (India), will be printed over the signature of the Secretary to the Government of India, Army Department, and will appear on separate sheets numbered consecutively. They will be issued from time to time as may be necessary from the Government Press to all authorities, civil and military, concerned, in accordance with a distribution list of requirements. The first issues of these Instructions will contain a reprint of all the orders special to the Royal Air Force which have appeared in Army Instructions (India) since the 1st January 1918. GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

(FOODSTUFFS.)

Delhi, the 26th November 1919.

RESOLUTION.

In the debate on the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Chanda, in the Legislative Council on the 15th September last, on the subject of high prices, the Hon'ble Mr. Mant promised that the report of the Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner would be published as soon as possible. The report has now been received and is published herewith for general information.

2. The Government of India do not think it necessary to comment at length on the report. It deals fully with the various factors which conspired to bring about a grave situation at the end of 1918, and with the measures taken to meet that situation. Some of these measures were very unusual. As pointed out in the report, the Government of India up to the date of the outbreak of the war had always refused to adopt a policy of restricting the export of foodgrains from India. The abnormal circumstances created by the war compelled them, in common with the Governments of almost all countries in the civilised world, to resort to an expedient which in ordinary times is open to strong objections. Although the extraordinarily high level of prices still prevailing in India makes it impossible for them at present to remove the embargo on export, they are fully alive to the necessity of allowing, as soon as circumstances permit, the export trade in foodgrains to resume its normal course. A beginning has been made in this direction. It has already been found possible to withdraw either wholly or partially the notifications prohibiting the export of certain foodstuffs, such as ragi, onions, potatoes and chillies. The Government of India have already announced their intentions regarding exports of wheat, gram, jowar, bajra and various other kinds of grain and pulse, and they hope shortly to be able to make a statement on the subject of their rice policy in 1920.

3. Probably no part of the Government of India's policy during the past year has aroused more criticism than the control exercised over the movements by rail of foodgrains within India. As the report shows, the system of railway priority certificates had its origin in the inability of the railways to perform their normal function of distribution. When the system was first introduced, a large measure of control was deliberately placed in the hands of Local Governments with a view to decentralisation, but it was soon found necessary to exercise central control over inter-provincial movements in order to economise the aggregate food-supplies of the country. The choice lay between two alternative policies. One course would have been to allow no restrictions on the movement between one province and another of foodgrains for which certificates had been issued by Directors of Civil Supplies. This course was considered at the end of 1918 and was rejected. At that time it was feared that India would be in serious straits for food in the middle of 1919, and the danger was, that the available supplies in surplus provinces would be rapidly exhausted by inconsiderate demands from deficit areas. It was decided, therefore, that the wiser plan was to conserve the supplies of wheat, gram and rice in India by regulating export from surplus provinces, and the primary object of appointing the Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner was that he might coordinate demands from the different provinces and make an equitable distribution of such supplies as were known to be available. The Government of India were constrained on more than one occasion to override the wishes of particular Governments, but they believe that this report, especially paragraph 53, will show that in all the circumstances of the year the course which they adopted was justified by the interests of India as a whole.

4. The other important measures taken consisted of the arrangments made for the control, in the interests of India, of the Burma rice trade, and for the importation of Australian wheat. Both these measures were, on the whole, thoroughly successful, and there can be no question as to the advantages derived by India from Mr. Gubbay's ingenious system of controlling not only the distribution of exports of Burma rice, but also the prices at which that rice was sold. The Government of India desire to express their acknowledgments of his valuable services and also of those of Mr. Innes, who successfully carried the scheme through, and whose unfailing tact and resource surmounted innumerable difficulties. The Government of India are pleased to endorse Mr. Innes' commendations of the other officers referred to in the report, and they would be glad if Local Governments would suitably acknowledge the services of Provincial Directors of Civil Supplies, whose co-operation with the Foodstuffs Commissioner has enabled the country to get through a most critical period.

ORDERED that a copy of the resolution, with a copy of the report, be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, all Departments of the Government of India, all Directors of Civil Supplies, all Collectors of Customs, the Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Rice), Rangoon, the Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Wheat), the Shipping Controller in India, the Director General of Commercial Intelligence and the Director of Statistics, for information.

Ordered also that the resolution, as well as the report, be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

Secretary to the Government of India.

REPORT

ON THE

Operations of the Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner.

I.—Preliminary.

Railway congestion.

The policy adopted by the Government of India in the latter half of 1918 in regard to food control in India was so greatly influenced by the railway position that it is necessary to begin this report by a brief reference to the difficulties in which, as the war progressed, the Indian railways increasingly became involved. These difficulties were felt at a comparatively early stage of the war, and as far back as July 1916, a Conference was held at Calcutta to consider whether the preference, which it had been found necessary to give to military traffic, should be extended to certain classes of civil traffic. In deference to commercial opinion, the proposal was dropped, but in June 1917 it was found necessary to appoint a Controller of Traffic at the Headquarters of the Government of India, and in the spring of 1918 it became necessary to reconsider the whole position. Tonnage had become scarcer with the result that much traffic, which formerly had been carried by coasting steamers, had devolved on the railways. Coal is a case in point, and the effect of the scarcity of coasting steamers is seen in the fact that at the beginning of 1918 at least forty thousand wagons, or more than one-third of the total number of broad gauge wagons available in India, were permanently employed on the transport of coal. Moreover, other preferential traffic had increased. Apart from the fact that demands of the United Kingdom and her allies for Indian wheat, hides and oilseeds were steadily growing, the enemy submarine campaign in the English Channel and the Mediterranean, which reached its climax in the spring of 1917, had made it essential that India should be used as far as possible as a base of supplies for expeditionary forces operating in Mesopotamia and other Eastern theatres of war. Thus the capacity of the railways was severely taxed to carry to the ports traffic essential for the prosecution of the war, and the point had been reached at which this preferential traffic constituted 80 per cent. of the total traffic carried. Public traffic, that is traffic necessary for the movement of foodstuffs for the civil population or essential for maintenance of the trade and industries of the country, had been reduced to 20 per cent. Moreover, while the tendency of traffic was to increase rather than to diminish, the capacity of the railways to carry that traffic had been impaired. Locomotives, rolling stock and railway material had been supplied to Mesopotamia; great difficulty was experienced in obtaining from home even the material essential for the upkeep of existing services; and the task of handling a constantly increasing volume of traffic was complicated by the fact that the supervising staff had been seriously depleted. The anxieties of the position were further increased by the possibility not only of a failure of the S. W. Monsoon in 1918 but also of a general mobilisation on the North-West Frontier which contingency recent events in Persia and Russia had brought appreciably nearer.

Introduction of Railway Priority certificate system

Appointment of Directors of Civil Supplies.

2. These facts were represented to the Secretary of State. It was urged that shipping for the coal traffic between Calcutta and Bombay should be provided by the Admiralty, and that the Government of India should be given some measure of control over neutral steamers plying in Indian waters. Special stress was laid on the need for the early despatch from home of railway material for which indents had already been sent or were under submission, and it was pointed out that locomotives and wagons were particularly required. But for the purposes of this report, the main point to notice is that it was the inability of the railways to perform their normal service to the country that led in April 1918 to the introduction of the railway priority certificate system which was the basis of the measures subsequently adopted by the Government of India for internal food control in India. When this system was introduced there was no lack of food in India. The difficulty was to distribute it. In April 1918 the price of rice was lower than it had been for some years in Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, but in Bombay which ordinarily depends to a large extent on foodstuffs imported by rail from other provinces, the shortage of food had already become so acute that the Local Government had found it necessary to appoint a Controller of Prices and to propose that such supplies as this officer considered essential should be consigned to him and given preference on the railways. Hitherto general traffic had got through, though in reduced quantities and after much delay. But preferential traffic was increasing, and the Government were faced with the possibility that general traffic, much of which was as essential as any classed as preferential, might be shut out altogether. It was decided, therefore, that action must be taken not only to economise transport in respect of traffic already classed as preferential but also to ensure that essential traffic to which no preference had hitherto been given should be moved. A Central Priority Committee was accordingly formed on which all Departments interested were represented, and the railway priority certificate system was introduced. Goods traffic was divided for the purpose of priority into (1) urgent, (2) preferential and (3) ordinary, the first two classes again being subdivided into military and civil. Preferential traffic in classes (1) and (2) could be moved only on priority certificates issued by specially authorised officers. Ordinary traffic required no certificate but could be moved only in the absence of preferential traffic. Various officers of the Army Department and the Indian Munitions Board were empowered to issue military certificates, and in order that the requirements of civil traffic might receive due consideration, Local Governments were asked to appoint in each province a special officer to be known as the Director of Civil Supplies. The duties of this officer were defined as below:—"to consider the stocks of foodstuffs and other necessaries of life in his province, to receive and examine applications from merchants and others for the movement of traffic in his province, to scrutinize reports and demands sent to him by District officers of his province, to consult freely with the local representatives of the railways in his province as to the possibility of moving particular traffic, to issue certificates, to examine and refer to the Central Priority Committee, through the Controller of Traffic, proposals for the movement of important traffic between provinces, to communicate with other Provincial Directors of Civil Supplies as to nearest points from which supplies for his own province could be obtained and to co-operate with them in preventing non-essential movements and in particular cross movements."

Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board.

3. This action was taken in April 1918. At the end of that month a Conference was held at Delhi by His Excellency the Viceroy to concert measures for the development and organisation of the resources of India for the purposes of the war. One of the resolutions adopted by this Conference drew attention to the hardships of the public and the dislocation of trade caused by the congestion on the railways, and besides suggesting that measures should be taken to encourage the building in India of sailing ships and river craft, recommended that provincial committees should be formed "for the purpose of advising Government departments and of encouraging the people to confine their private requirements as nearly as possible to local products in order to save unnecessary demands for railway transport, and for the further purpose of advising Directors of Civil Supplies as to the special necessities of particular districts and as to the commodities for which they think that priority should be given on the railways." By another resolution it was recommended that similar committees should be set up to advise in regard to the possibilities of developing the production of particular foodstuffs and to collate and propagate information likely to be of value to the agriculturist on the subject of manures, implements, etc., required for such development; also to recommend to Government what steps might be taken to facilitate the cultivation of waste lands. As the result of these resolutions, a Communications Board was substituted for the Central Priority Committee mentioned in the previous paragraph, and a Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board was constituted. This Board was presided over by the Hon'ble Sir

Claude Hill, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Member of Council in charge of the Revenue and Agriculture Department of the Government of India, and was divided into two sub-committees, one dealing with animal and mechanical transport and the other with foodstuffs. The functions of the Board in the latter capacity were to collate information and advise Government as to measures calculated to develop the production of foodstuffs, to encourage local consumption of local products and generally to inculcate economy of resources in allied directions. It was recognized, of course, that the real work in connection with these subjects must be done in the provinces, but it was thought that the institution of a co-ordinating board at the headquarters of the Government of India would be a necessary means of supplementing provincial activities and of passing on from one province to another information of value for the promotion of the objects in view as well as for the purpose of offering advice and suggestions.

Measures taken to stimulate the production of foodgrains in India.

4. It may here be mentioned that the Government of India had already in the previous year consulted the Local Governments of the principal exporting provinces as to the measures which might suitably be adopted to stimulate the production of foodgrains, particularly wheat, in India. In some provinces, notably the Central Provinces, cotton competes with wheat, and the area under the latter crop fluctuates greatly from year to year and is dependent primarily on the character of the early monsoon and the prospects of the cotton market and partly on the late monsoon and the price which the crop is likely to fetch. In areas where cotton does not compete, however, it was generally agreed that the wheat crop responds readily to an active demand, and that the cultivators are usually alive to the state of the market. The Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies had already undertaken to buy the entire surplus of foodgrains (other than rice) grown in India and available for export, and though this undertaking had not been made known to the public for fear of a rise in prices, the Local Governments concerned had been asked to publish abroad the fact that a large demand for wheat and other foodgrains was expected. The policy approved by the Government of India also contemplated the stimulation of the production of foodgrains not only by liberal grants of takavi loans for the purchase of seed and bullocks, but also by the grant of temporary leases of Government waste lands on attractive terms for the growth of food crops. Other measures suitable to the particular conditions of particular provinces had also been approved. These measures comprised the supply of good seed whenever required, the grant of special irrigation facilities and the grant of rewards to village officers and zamindars who succeeded in increasing the area under wheat in their villages. Arrangements had also been made with the Agents of the Bengal Nagpur and Great Indian Peninsula Railways for the carriage of wheat for seed purposes to selected stations in the Central Provinces at specially reduced rates. The correspondence on the subject was now circulated to all Local Governments and Administrations and to all Darbars in India, and their attention was drawn to the importance of stimulating the production of foodgrains in order that each locality in India might as far as possible be self-supporting in the matter of food supplies and that cross traffic in the railways might be reduced. Numerous proposals with the same end in view were considered by the Foodstuffs Committee of the Central Board. It was suggested to the Agents of the different railways in India that unoccupied railway land should be leased out for temporary cultivation. Notes on the utilisation of farm yard manure as fuel and on the encouragement of the use of bone meal and basic slag as fertilisers, which had been prepared by the Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India, were circulated to Local Governments and Administrations for communication to provincial Advisory Committees where these had been formed. A proposal that Local Governments should be asked to consider the question of leasing out maidans, pleasure grounds and open spaces in and around cities for the cultivation of food crops was considered and rejected. The possibility of allowing zamindars to irrigate over and above the fixed percentage of areas commanded by irrigation free of charge, provided that only food crops were cultivated and that water was available, was investigated. It was found that on the Lower Chenab Canal alone the proposal, if adopted, would result in a loss amounting to some 30 per cent. of the average revenue of the previous five years, and it was decided that the suggestion should not be pressed. Other possibilities, which it is not necessary to mention, were also explored.

The failure of the S.W. Monsoon.

5. But it soon became evident that the activities of the Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board would necessarily be concentrated rather on the equitable distribution of available supplies than on the production of increased supplies. The Foodstuffs Sub-Committee held its first meeting on the 13th June 1918. Already the south-west monsoon had made an ominous start by appearing on the Malabar Coast on May 11th, three weeks before its normal date, and it is significant that at its first meeting the Committee found it necessary to discuss the question of restrictions on the export of foodgrains from one part of India to another. One Local Government and certain Native States had already been induced by the high level of prices prevailing in their territories and by threatened depletion of stocks to resort to the expedient of prohibiting the export of foodgrains, and almost the first action taken by the Board was to circularise Local Governments on the dangers of this policy and to call for information as to stocks in the different provinces. Unfortunately the progress of the monsoon did not belie its bad start. The Arabian Sea monsoon gave widespread and unusually heavy rain over nearly the whole of the Peninsula in May, but in the beginning of June its activity declined rapidly, and except for short intervals of comparative improvement, it remained very weak up to to the end of July. The Bay current arrived in Bengal two weeks earlier than usual; it was decidedly strong in June, but appreciably weaker than usual in July. In July, indeed, the failure of the rains was unprecedented. Assam had 63 per cent. more rain than usual, in Bengal the total precipitation was nearly normal, and in Burma the rainfall was only 22 per cent. in defect. But no other division of India had more than half of its usual supply, and most provinces had considerably less. The extent of the failure of the rains in June and July 1918 is exhibited in the following table:—

The Nagpur Conference.

6. The situation was carefully watched by the Government of India. Already currency difficulties had necessitated a reduction in the programme of purchases of wheat for the Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies, and on the 18th July the Government of India reported to the Secretary of State that the delay in the Arabian Sea monsoon was giving cause for anxiety and suggested that in order to give the monsoon time definitely to declare its character, purchases in the Punjab should be entirely stopped for one month.

The Royal Commission agreed to this proposal, but urged that when the position was reviewed at the end of August, the vital importance of economising tonnage by provisioning the Mediterranean countries from India should not be lost sight of. The Government of India's next step was to summon a Conference of Directors of Civil Supplies to consider the new position with regard to the general food supplies of the country caused by the threatened failure of the rains. The Conference met at Nagpur on the 18th August. It was presided over by the Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill and was attended not only by the Director of Civil Supplies in the different provinces, but also by a member of the Railway Board, the Controller of Traffic, and the Agents of the Great Indian Peninsula and Bengal-Nagpur Railways. Much useful work was done in the direction of introducing order and method into the system of railway priority certificates, and of defining the powers of Directors of Civil Supplies in relation to one another and the Railway Companies. In particular a decision was arrived at on the vexed question whether a Director of Civil Supplies was at liberty to prevent exports of foodgrains from his province by the expedient of withholding priority certificates. It was agreed that this power should not be vested in Directors, and that if such action were considered necessary, the orders of the Government of India should be taken. But the Directors of Civil Supplies had not been long enough in existence to be able to furnish accurate information as to the position of their provinces in regard to supplies of foodstuffs, and it was decided that detailed estimates of stocks and requirements should be furnished to the Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board not later than the 15th September.

7. After this Conference events moved rapidly. The prospects of the monsoon, which had shown a slight improvement at the time of the Nagpur Conference, again deteriorated, and the September rains proved a failure. By the end of that month it became certain not only that the kharif crops would be a failure over a great part of India, but also that the rabi sowings would seriously be restricted. Prices not only of wheat but of other foodgrains began to rise rapidly, and food riots occurred in the Madras Presidency and were threatened elsewhere. It was now obvious that in addition to the difficulty of distribution, there was the fear of an actual shortage of supplies. The estimates of stocks and requirements furnished to the Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board in accordance with the Resolution passed at the Nagpur Conference disclosed a net deficit, and the Board reported to the Government of India that the outlook was grave. Accordingly, in spite of the fact that the war was still in progress, it was decided in the beginning of October, in consultation with the Secretary of State, to stop immediately purchases of wheat and "feeds" for export overseas to destinations other than Mesopotamia, though in view of the serious embarrassment caused by the failure of Indian supplies, no objection was raised to the shipment of quantities already purchased by the Royal Commission. The Government of India also decided at the beginning of October that effective measures must be taken to ensure the equitable distribution of supplies in India. For this purpose they resolved to set up, in lieu of the Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board which was purely an advisory body, a single executive authority working under themselves and to be designated the Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner. Mr. M. M. S. Gubbay, C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S., was selected for the new appointment and assumed charge on November 1st.

T appointment of an Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner.

II.—The Foodstuffs Problem.

8. I have traced briefly the sequence of the events which led to the appointment of an Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner, and I now propose to examine the situation in India in respect of the supply of foodstuffs (a) as it existed at the time of Mr. Gubbay's appointment and (b) as it developed with the harvesting of the rabi crops of 1919. The essentials of the problem were known when Mr. Gubbay became Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner, but it is now possible to fill in the details. On the 15th October a second Conference of Directors of Civil Supplies was held at Delhi. This Conference gave Mr. Gubbay an opportunity of meeting the officers with whom he would have to work, but it was convened mainly for the purpose of arriving at a correct appreciation of the difficulties which confronted the Government of India and Local Governments and of deciding what was the most hopeful solution of those difficulties The reports of the Directors were not encouraging. They indicated that surplus stocks of rice were available in Bengal and Burma and that supplies of wheat and gram were obtainable from the United Provinces and the Punjab, but when the balance was struck, it was found that the estimated requirements of deficit areas during the three months ending January 1919, exceeded the supplies of wheat, gram, rice and other foodgrains reported to be available for export from more fortunate provinces by 229,460 tons. There was some reason to believe that the prospect, though it was sufficiently gloomy, was not quite so black as it had been painted, and it may here be remarked that all efforts to obtain accurate estimates of stocks of foodgrains in this country during the past year have failed. A more serious attempt was made in December. The co-operation of district officers was secured, and a formal census of stocks of foodgrains was held throughout the country. No pains were spared to make the returns as accurate as possible, but when they were received, they were recognised by common consent to be of very little value. The proceedings of the Delhi Conference were useful as indicating the areas from which supplies of foodgrains could be drawn and as containing an appreciation by those best qualified to judge of the position in India as it was when Mr. Gubbay was appointed, but I propose to examine that position in the light of more general considerations.

The Delhi Conference.

Stocks at the end of 1918.

9. Fortunately, the main harvests of the two previous years had been particularly good. The rice and wheat crops of 1916-17 and 1917-18, these being by far the two most important food crops in India, were almost the biggest crops on record. The same remark is substantially true of the gram and barley crops of those two years, while the maize crops were above the average. The bajra crop of 1916-17 was exceptionally good and the jowar crop normal, but both these crops failed over large areas in 1917-18 and the yields were poor. But taking the harvests of 1916-17 and 1917-18 as a whole, it may be said with confidence that India's period of stress in 1918-19 succeeded two exceptionally good years. It is commonly believed, however, that during the war India had been denuded of grain and pulse in order to feed the United Kingdom and her Allies as well as the Expeditionary forces operating in Eastern theatres of the war. The exports of wheat, gram, maize, barley and the like in 1917-18, which were mostly on the account of the Royal Commission on wheat supplies, were heavy, and particular areas may have suffered in this way, but export statistics over a long series of years do not support the theory of denudation as applied to India as a whole. The relevant statistics are given in Appendix I to this report, and in Appendix II I have compared the total yield of various important foodgrains and pulses, as recorded in the publication of the Department of Statistics entitled Estimates of the area and yield of the principal crops in India 1917-18 with the quantities of these foodgrains and pulses exported. It will be seen that the results of this comparison do not support the view that stocks were particularly low in India at the end of 1918 owing to heavy exports. It is quite probable that owing to the bad harvests of 1917-18 stocks of bajra and jowar were short, but unless indeed increasing prosperity due to the war had resulted in a general rise in the standard of living and an increase in consumption, such evidence as is available points to the conclusion that stocks of foodstuffs in India must have been comparatively large at the end of 1918. Had not this been the case, indeed, it is difficult to see how India could have come through 1919 as well as she did.

Margin of production over consumption in India.

10. Unfortunately, for the reasons already explained, it is impossible to give any quantitative estimate of these stocks, nor can any comparison between production and consumption in India be usefully undertaken. Apart from the difficulty of fixing a standard of consumption, which could reasonably be applied to a population of more than 300 millions, it is useless even to attempt the comparison, since there are very large areas in India under crops classed in the Agricultural Statistics under the head "other foodgrains and pulses" for which no estimates of outturn are framed. Moreover, though constant attention is being paid to the improvement of our agricultural statistics, it must be admitted that they are still defective. In some provinces, particularly provinces where there are large tracts of country under permanent settlement, even the statistics of the area under cultivation are unreliable, while the estimates of the out-turn of crops are always rather doubtful quantities. In my opinion, all that can usefully be said on the subject of the margin of production over consumption in India is what follows. Of the total amount of food produced in the country, part goes into current consumption and part is held in stock for purposes of seed and as a reserve. These two parts between them constitute internal requirements, and the surplus that remains is exported. In times of scarcity the country falls back on its reserve stocks and on the safety margin afforded by the surplus ordinarily exported. There is no means of ascertaining accurately the amount of reserve stock held in the country, but the safety margin afforded by the surplus ordinarily exported is not large. The figures are given below. In working them out Burma has been excluded. That is to say, exports to and imports from Burma have been added to exports from and imports into India proper.

Net exports of grain and pulse from India.

Year.	Quantity (000's of tons.)
1909-10	783
1910-11	1,571
1911-12	3,018
1912-13	3,387
1913-14	1,483
1914-15	133
1915-16	151
1916-17	601
1917-18	2,314
1918 up to October	1,091

It will be noted that the above table does not support the theory that India was drained of foodstuffs during the war, but the main interest of the figures lies in the fact that in the ten years ending 1918 the net export of grains and pulse from India proper averaged less than 1½ million tons per annum. The amount is small, compared with the total production in the country, and moreover the level of prices in India does not ordinarily allow deficiencies in local production to be made up by imports from outside countries other than Burma.

The crop failure of 1918-19.

11. We may now consider the extent of the calamity which overtook India owing to the failure of the crops in 1918-19. This crop failure, if less intense than had been experienced previously in particular areas, was unprecedented in the extent of country affected. I have already referred to the unsatisfactory character of the south-west monsoon, and it may be noted that taking the average precipitation over the whole of the plains of India, the rainfall in the monsoon period was 6·5 inches or 19 per cent. in defect. The records of the Meteorological Department contain only two instances of similar failures of the monsoon. One was in the disastrous year 1899, when the deficiency was 6·5 inches; the other was in the even more disastrous year 1877, when the deficiency was 7·9 inches. The Bay current was stronger than that from the Arabian Sea, but it died away early in September, and there was no part of India which did not suffer to a greater or less extent. In Burma the final estimate of the paddy crop showed a defect of 16 per cent. compared with the out-turn of the previous year. Both in Bengal and Bihar and Orissa excessive rainfall in June, deficient rain in July, and the entire cessation of the rains in the middle of September seriously affected the out-turn of the bhadai or autumn crops and gravely prejudiced the prospects of the important winter rice crops. The outturn of this crop was estimated at only 77 per cent. of the normal in Bengal and at only 60 per cent. in Bihar and Orissa. Even in Assam both the autumn and winter rice crops were exceptionally poor, floods being the cause of the damage in the one case and drought in the other. The failure of the Arabian Sea monsoon was more complete than that of the Bay current and other provinces fared even worse. The season in the United Provinces was one of the worst on record. The unirrigated kharif crops failed over large areas, and rabi sowings were much restricted. In the Punjab, kharif sowings were 27 per cent. below normal, and the percentage of crop failure was 41, double the normal figure. Rabi sowings were late and were much restricted. In the Central Provinces, where, apart from deficient rainfall, influenza was particularly severe, all field work being brought to an entire standstill just when labour was required for the sowing of the rabi crops, the yield of the kharif and rabi crops taken together was little more than half the normal. In all these three provinces, however, timely rain in January resulted in a better rabi than at one time had been expected, and heavy rain in November assisted to relieve the situation in Madras. But the rain came too late to save the kharif crops in Madras, and throughout the Peninsula the crops were bad. The Bombay Presidency fared particularly badly. The harvests were poor everywhere and in some areas failed altogether, and a widespread fodder famine aggravated an already serious situation.

Deficiency of production.

12. Normally in India crop failures are only partial, and shortages in some parts of the country are made up for by bountiful harvests in other parts. But in 1918-19 there was no province which did not suffer from a failure of the monsoon which was either partial or complete, and the terrible influenza epidemic of the autumn months of 1918 was another calamity which tended still further to restrict production. The effect of these factors is exhibited statistically in the appended table in which I have compared the estimated yield of the principal crops in 1918-19 with the corresponding figures for 1917-18 and with the average yield of the five years ending 1916-17.

The real nature of the problem.

13. The above table shows that in British provinces alone and in respect only of certain principal crops, the deficiency of production in 1918-19 amounted to more than 14 million tons compared with the average of the four years ending 1916-17, and more than 19 million tons compared with the year 1917-18. Attention in the press and in the Legislative Councils has been concentrated recently mainly on the question of prices. I will deal with this question later. But it will now be clear why at the end of 1918, the Government of India and Mr. Gubbay regarded the question of prices as one of secondary importance. The problem before them obviously was how to conserve, supplement and distribute to the best advantage supplies of food which were feared to be inadequate for the needs of the country.

III.—The policy adopted.

14. The measures adopted may conveniently be considered under the above three heads. The conservation of resources covers the Government of India's export policy and under this head I will deal not only with the ring fence drawn round India by the embargo on exports of foodstuffs, but also with the arrangements made to ration countries which ordinarily draw their supplies from India. The second head involves the consideration not only of the arrangements made for the control of the Burma rice trade and for the importation of Australian wheat, but also of the control exercised over shipping in Indian waters and the measures taken to reduce the rates of freight on rice imported from Burma. Under the head of distribution falls the consideration of the whole subject of internal control in India.

Restriction of exports.

15. The policy of prohibiting exports of foodstuffs in times of scarcity has frequently been examined by the Government of India, and up to the outbreak of the war, the conclusion arrived at had always been the same. Nothing could justify recourse to this expedient, it was stated in 1873, "unless it were a certainty or a reasonable probability that exports of food had so exhausted the resources of India as to render them incapable of affording supplies, which may be required for affected districts." This principle was re-affirmed by the Hon'ble Mr. (now Sir J. O.) Miller in the Legislative Council in 1908, but the war had not been long in progress before the rapid rise in the price of wheat in the Indian markets compelled the Government of India to abandon their established policy, and since the beginning of 1915 some form of embargo has always existed on the export of wheat and wheat flour. When Mr. Gubbay joined his appointment as Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner in November 1918, the orders in force prohibited the export of wheat and wheat flour except under license, and no further action in this direction was necessary. But the question at once had to be examined whether supplies of wheat could be made available for the United Kingdom. At the beginning of 1918, in response to an earnest appeal from the Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies, a very large programme of wheat purchases in 1918-19 had provisionally been arranged. Fortunately, as it turned out afterwards, currency difficulties had necessitated a reduction of this programme in June 1918, and as I have already explained, purchases had been temporarily suspended in July at the instance of the Government of India, and except for Mesopotamia, had been stopped altogether in the beginning of October. The Secretary of State, however, in agreeing to this measure, had asked, in view of the extra strain on tonnage caused by the failure of Indian supplies, that the possibility of resuming purchases on the Royal Commission's account might be examined before the 15th December. The signing of the Armistice on the 11th November fortunately made the question of supplies from India less important, and on December 17th the Secretary of State was informed that in view of the necessity of conserving stocks to meet the Indian demand, it was quite impossible for the Government of India to agree to the resumption of purchases by the Royal Commission for export overseas. The position as regards rice was very similar. As I shall explain later, the export of rice on private account had already been prohibited, and the only question requiring immediate settlement was how far the Government of India could meet the Royal Commission's requirements for 1919 which had been estimated at one million tons. After a careful examination of the position in Burma, the Government of India offered to supply the United Kingdom with 300,000 tons of rice in 1919, but when the Royal Commission resigned their claim to this amount in favour of the colonies, the Government of India decided to retain the rice for India. The position in regard to other foodgrains was then examined, and in the beginning of February 1919 notifications were issued prohibiting the export except under license of bajra, jowar, barley, gram, maize and pulse. Chillies, onions, potatoes and ragi were also included in the notification on various dates.

The Rationing Scheme.

16. It was, of course, not possible to shut down exports of foodgrains from India altogether. India supplies a considerable proportion of the world's requirements of rice, and there are many rice-eating countries which are almost entirely dependent on India for their food supplies. Many of these countries, moreover, besides being included in the British Empire, contain large resident Indian populations. Ceylon, the Straits Settlements, Mauritius and South Africa are cases in point. For political reasons, moreover, it was important to supply certain countries, and the resumption of the pilgrim traffic made it imperative to send foodstuffs to Jeddah. One of the first duties, therefore, taken up by Mr. Gubbay and Mr. Hullah (who had been appointed Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner) was the devising of a rationing scheme. Certain countries, although large importers of rice from India, were eliminated altogether as having no special claim on India, and it was announced on the 17th December that it would not be possible to grant licenses for shipment to Australia, Canada, the Dutch East Indies, China and various other countries. 300,000 tons were then earmarked for the Royal Commission (it has already been mentioned that this quantity was subsequently reserved for India), and a preliminary estimate was made of India's probable requirements. The balance remaining for export was then divided up between countries regarded as having a special claim on India, and was distributed among the different Indian ports. Exports from Madras and Karachi were closed down altogether, and the bulk of the exports were made from Burma. Details of the rice rationing scheme as finally settled by Mr. Gubbay are given in appendix III to this report. In most cases the rations allowed were much below the quantities of rice normally imported by the countries concerned, and in order to give them time to exploit other sources of supplies, they were allowed to overdraw in the first quarter of 1919. The effect of the scheme was also obscured at first by the fact that at the end of 1918 the Royal Commission held large stocks of old crop rice in Burma for which it had not been able to provide shipping. Shipments of these stocks still continue, and this fact explains the exports to Egypt, Sweden and some other countries which appear in the sea-borne trade returns, and which have occasioned some comment in the press. I do not propose to enlarge on this matter. It is sufficient to remark that the rice was old crop rice bought at a price much above the controlled price for the 1919 crop and therefore useless to India, and that much of it had been bought for allied or neutral countries under agreements effected during the war and therefore could not have been resigned by the Royal Commission even if the Government of India had pressed this course. Moreover, it was shipped at a time when there was far more of the 1919 crop in the Burma ports than we could arrange to lift to India. I should explain that it was not possible absolutely to adhere to Mr. Gubbay's rationing scheme. Most of the modifications made were unimportant and consisted mainly of transfers of allotments from one port to another. But the allotment made to Ceylon had largely to be increased. This island, which contains more than 4 million people including a large resident Tamil population, has only a small area under food crops, and is almost entirely dependent on India for its food supplies. For reasons into which it is unnecessary to enter but which were accepted by the Government of India as satisfactory, the Government of Ceylon were not able to make up the deficiency between their ration and their normal supplies from India by imports from the only two free markets, Siam and Saigon, and the Government of India were compelled to assume responsibility for providing the Island's minimum requirements, namely 26,000 tons of rice a month. Had they not done so, the island would have starved, the tea and rubber industries would have been ruined, and there would have been a large influx of starving Tamil coolies back into Madras. The task of supplementing the sanctioned allotment was not easy. But as the situation in India improved with the harvesting of the kharif crops, licensed importers of Burma rice in various ports found themselves with stocks of Burma rice for which there was no demand and which could not be sold except at a loss. These surplus stocks were utilised in feeding Ceylon, and it was also found possible to make additional allotments from Burma. In the end we were able to make available for Ceylon during 1919 a large proportion of her normal supplies of Indian rice amounting to some 315,000 tons. A small additional allotment was also sanctioned for the Straits Settlements, but much of the Foodstuffs Commissioner's time was taken up in rejecting appeals from countries east of Suez for supplies of rice. Similar rationing schemes for wheat, wheat flour and other grain and pulse were drawn up in respect of exports from Bombay, Karachi and Calcutta, but the amounts involved were small, and it is not necessary to go further into detail.

It will be seen that if exports of Burma rice be excluded, exports of grain, pulse and flour from India proper were reduced in the year ending 30th September 1919 to slightly more than 500,000 tons or rather more than one-fifth of the annual normal exports of just under 2,300,000 tons. A saving was affected to India in this way of about 1,800,000 tons of food grains.

(2) Import Policy.

(a) Burma rice control.

18. Before describing the measures adopted for the control of the Burma rice trade in 1919, it may be of interest to give a brief account of the inception and extent of the operations of the Royal Conmission on Wheat Supplies in respect of Burma rice in 1918, especially as those operations have been the subject of considerable misapprehension in the press. In September 1917 it was evident from reports in the newspapers as well as from representations received by the Government of India, that the position of the Burma rice trade was becoming critical, and the Government of Burma were asked to report what the position actually was. In reply they stated that owing partly to the shortage of shipping and partly to the curtailment of markets, a large proportion of the 1916 crop was still on the local market, that the price of paddy had dropped to R78 per 100 baskets, a price which had not been touched at that season of the year in any of the previous 17 years, that if no relief could be arranged the price would probably drop to R60 when the new crop came in, and that the cultivators would be involved in very heavy loss. Urgent representations were at once made to the Secretary of State that additional tonnage should be provided for the Burma rice trade, and the suggestion was also made that the United Kingdom and her allies might welcome supplies of Burma rice. The Secretary of State, in consultation with the Shipping Controller, was able at once to relieve to some extent the shipping position, but in December 1917 more important developments ensued. The Secretary of State cabled out that it was proposed to supply the allied countries with 100,000 tons of Burma rice monthly in 1918, and in view of the immense quantities involved, he asked that local arrangements might be made which would ensure continuous supplies at a reasonable price. These arrangements were made by the Local Government in consultation with the trade. The export of rice to all destinations was prohibited except under license, and purchases on behalf of the Royal Commission were entrusted to a Rice Commissioner who in distributing the contracts among the millers was assisted by an Advisory Committee. The Royal Commission naturally provided the Operations of the Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies in 1918.

tonnage for the rice purchased on its account, and in this way the situation in Burma was saved. The amount of rice purchased for the Royal Commission in 1918 was 788,632 tons, and the price paid amounted approximately to £6,020,000.

Mr. Gubbay's scheme of control.

19. The Royal Commission originally agreed to pay for the rice supplied on its order on the basis of R105 per 100 baskets of first quality Europe paddy delivered at Rangoon or Bassein. This price was considerably higher than the Royal Commission had been paying, but they agreed to it on the representation of the Government of Burma that it was the average price of paddy in Rangoon in the three months January, February and March in the 20 years preceding the war, and that with due regard to the interests of the Burma cultivators, the price could not be fixed at a lower figure. As a matter of fact, the price was not fixed under the Defence of India Rules or otherwise made effective. Wide publicity was given to the fact that the Royal Commission had agreed to pay for the rice it required on the basis of R105 per 100 baskets of paddy, and it was hoped and believed that the cultivators would stand out for this figure. But the 1917-18 crop was an exceptionally good one, and paddy poured down into the ports in such quantities that the millers, especially as the supplies of tonnage were irregular, were able to obtain their requirements at a price much below Rs. 105, and it became necessary to revise the terms of the contracts between the millers and the Royal Commission. The price of paddy remained low in the first six months of 1918. It averaged R89 in May, R93 in June and R98 in July, but when it became apparent that the monsoon in India threatened to be a failure, prices rose rapidly. The average price in August was R112, in September it rose to R150 and in October to R162. When Mr. Gubbay arrived in Rangoon in the middle of November the price had touched R180, a figure never before reached at this season of the year. The market was in a very sensitive mood, and prices were rising in response to every demand from India. This sensitiveness was due to the fact that it was certain that India must require large supplies, and was accentuated by competitive buying in Burma by merchants from Bombay, Madras and Mysore. It was also thought that need for rice in India was so urgent that Mr. Gubbay must take over the balance remaining of the 1918 crop (which was estimated at between 100,000 and 150,000 tons) at any price which those who held that balance might chose to fix in combination with one another. Mr. Gubbay, however, destroyed these hopes by stating that he had no intention of taking over the balance of the 1918 crop, and he contented himself with devising in consultation with the big millers, the small millers and the Government of Burma, a scheme for the control of the 1919 crop. The main features of his scheme as announced in a press communiqué issued on the 25th November were as follows :—

(1) Licenses would be required for export to any destination.

(2) The quantities which might be shipped to any destination would be determined by the Government of India;

(3) Licenses to ship rice of the 1919 crop to authorised destinations within the quantities allowed by the Government of India would be granted only on satisfactory evidence being furnished that the price paid or to be paid for the rice which it was intended to ship was not in excess of the controlled basic price, and

(4) The maximum buying price for the Burma rice crop of 1919 was fixed at R335 ex hopper for the quality known as big mills specials.

It may be explained that the prices of other qualities of rice in the province bear a definite relation to the price of big mill specials, and that the price of rice in the Burma market bears a definite relation to the price of paddy. The rice price is made up of (1) the price of paddy, (2) the milling-hire and (3) the cash out-turn i.e., the quantities of white rice and kuddis or brokens obtained in the course of milling from a given quantity of paddy. (2) is a fixed charge and (3) depends on the milling quality of the paddy, but without going further into a very technical matter, it may be said that price of R335 fixed by Mr. Gubbay for 100 baskets (each of 75 lbs.) of big mills specials represented a price of R124 for 100 baskets (each of 46 lbs.) of paddy. This price was undoubtedly fair and even liberal. In the 10 years preceding the war the medium average price for paddy in the first quarter of the year had been R116; in the three years ending 1917 the average had been R105; in 1918 the average had been R97, and the settlements in Burma assume a price of R105. Mr. Gubbay in fixing the price of big mills specials at R335 added about 20 per cent. to the price assumed by settlement officers, and in doing so he was guided by the considerations (1) that the paddy cultivator in Burma naturally expected that the necessities of the world for food would bring him compensation for the lean years which he had experienced since 1914, and (2) that his price must be sufficiently liberal to make it certain that paddy would come down freely. Mr. Gubbay's system of control, as already explained, applied only to the 1919 crop which would not come on to the market till January, but the issue of his press communiqué on 25th November 1918 led to an immediate fall in the price of old crop paddy. In the first week of December the price of paddy had dropped to R140 and during the course of the month it fell to R110, a figure well below the maximum permissible under the control scheme.

Working of the control.

20. A number of officers were engaged in working the control. The Foodstuffs Commissioner, with the approval of the Government of India, fixed the quantities which might be licensed monthly for import into the different ports of India. The Agent to the Shipping Controller (or, as he afterwards became, the Shipping Controller in India) was responsible for providing the tonnage as far as it was available. The Directors of Civil Supplies in Bombay, Madras and Calcutta, issued licenses for import up to the quantities allotted by the Foodstuffs Commissioner, and the Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Rice) under which name Mr. Stevens, the Rice Commissioner, had been transferred to Mr. Gubbay's staff, supervised the working of the scheme in Burma. He licensed shipments and satisfied himself that the maximum buying price had not been exceeded by the shippers. The control came into force with the arrival of the new crop in January, and for the first three months of the year it worked, by common consent, remarkably well. Paddy poured down into the ports in normal quantities, and while shippers experienced no difficulty in obtaining all the rice they required at or below the control price, the cultivators obtained a reasonably good price for their paddy, as will be seen from the average prices for January, February and March noted in the margin. In fact when Mr. Gubbay visited Rangoon in March, the only complaint made to him in respect of the working of the control was that sufficient tonnage had not been provided.

Temporary breakdown of the control in April–May.

21. Even in March, however, the price of paddy had risen slightly above the parity of the maximum controlled price for rice, and in April it became evident that the control was breaking down. There was sufficient rice already licensed and contracted for to fill our steamers for some time to come, but Mr. Stevens reported that unless early action were taken the time would soon arrive when it would be difficult to find rice for the shipping provided. Accordingly at the end of April I, who had in the meantime succeeded Mr. Gubbay as Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner, proceeded to Rangoon to investigate matters on the spot. The general position when I arrived was that the millers had stopped selling rice of the controlled qualities, and that the price of paddy had advanced far beyond the parity of the controlled rice price. As already noted, Mr. Gubbay had fixed his maximum price for rice on the basis of R124 for 100 baskets of paddy. At the time of my arrival transactions in paddy had been reported at R150 and R155, and one transaction at R165. It was evident therefore that the control scheme had temporarily broken down. It was freely said in the bazaar that the price control no longer existed, and it was an open secret that certain shippers were evading the control. The most common method of evasion was for the shippers to pay, in addition to the nominal control price, secret bonuses for the rice they bought.

Its causes.

22. My enquiries showed that this temporary breakdown of the price control was due to a variety of reasons. In the first place, the rule that rice might not be exported unless Mr. Stevens was satisfied that the transaction was not effected at a price above the control price was not, and could never be, in itself a really effective safeguard against dishonesty. Up to the end of March, it worked well enough, but merely because owing to the arrival of the new crop and the glut of paddy in the ports the market price of rice was below the control figure. As soon as the point arrived when rice could not be bought at the control price, the rule ceased to be effective. It was not possible for Mr. Stevens to check every shipping bill, and even in cases where he was dissatisfied and called for further information, it was quite easy for a dishonest shipper to put in a false bill. The next point, which impressed itself on me, was that no system of control in Burma could by itself be effective. The first condition of success in Burma was that price control in India should be real, and there was little doubt that laxity of control in India had contributed to the temporary breakdown of control in Burma. His Honour the Lieutenant Governor laid great stress on this point, and it was emphasised by everyone whom I consulted in Burma. It was obvious that if the licensees could evade the price control in India, and if they could make large illicit profits on the rice which they imported from Burma, they would find means of evading the control in Burma. The first conclusion I came to, therefore, was that control in India must be tightened up, otherwise whatever measures were taken in Burma must prove ineffective. This point was important for other reasons on which His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor laid emphasis. If we had not restricted the export of rice from Burma, prices would have been much higher than those fixed by the control. It might reasonably be argued that the necessities of India justified control in Burma, but obviously there was no justification for limiting the profits of the miller, the merchant and cultivator in Burma unless steps were taken to ensure that the consumer in India, and not the profiteer, got the benefit of the artificial lowering of the price. In addition to laxity of control in India, faulty methods of issuing licenses had also enhanced the difficulties of the position. Originally it was the intention that the Director of Civil Supplies of importing provinces should work as far as possible through the ordinary trade channels, and should issue licenses to established shippers. Moreover, in some provinces there was at first a reluctance on the part of merchants to take the risk of importing rice, and the Director of Civil Supplies welcomed any one who came forward to take up licenses. The result was that in some provinces the mistake had been made of issuing too many licenses and of issuing licenses for too small quantities. These licensees had competed against one another for rice in Burma, and, moreover, the greater the number of licensees, the greater the difficulties of control. Further, in the original control scheme the price of certain qualities of rice, such as Europe No. 1, boiled rice, and the lower grades of brokens, had been left uncontrolled. Fancy prices had been obtained for Europe No. 1 and boiled rice, and this fact had contributed to the rise in the price of paddy. The omission to control the lower grades of brokens had also opened the door to fraud. All these reasons had contributed to the temporary breakdown of the price control, but all whom I consulted were agreed that the main cause of the stagnation in the rice market was that the first rush of paddy had spent itself, and it is noteworthy that Mr. Gubbay in introducing the control scheme had clearly indicated his opinion that some raising of the control price would be necessary in April or May. At the time of my arrival in Burma, the cultivator was scarcely in the picture. The balance of the paddy had passed into the hands of the stock-holders. The exportable surplus was even smaller than had been supposed, and the Government of Burma had just issued a communiqué reducing its estimate of this surplus from 2,250,000 tons cargo rice to 2,110,000 tons. The stock-holders knew not only that the crop was short in Burma and that the exportable surplus was estimated officially to be nearly three-quarters of a million tons less than in the previous year, but also that famine conditions prevailed in India, and that India was in urgent need of large supplies of Burma rice. It was also believed that if the monsoon opened well in India, conditions would change and that the control would be relaxed in July. The stock-holders thought that then the Burma market would be opened again to the world generally, and that prices would rise to the extraordinary levels prevailing in Siam and Saigon. It was reported that they could afford to hold till the end of the year, if necessary, or even longer, and it was obvious that they were in a strong position.

Revised control scheme.

22. If I had been in a position to put up a bluff, the best course would undoubtedly have been to reduce the control price and divert the rice steamers for a month or two. This course was impossible for obvious reasons. In the first place, if I had diverted the rice steamers for a month or two it might have been impossible to collect the fleet again. Secondly, India was in urgent need of rice. I came to the conclusion, therefore, after consulting not only the Local Government but also the big millers, the small millers, and the Rice Merchants' Association, that there was only one way of inducing a free flow of paddy, and that was to raise the control price. Paddy had already been sold at R155 for 100 baskets, and I decided that no smaller price than R150 would have the effect of bringing out stocks. All whom I consulted were also agreed that it was essential that if the rice price was raised, the price of paddy should be fixed under the Defence of India Rules, and that it should be made clear to the stock-holders that if they continued unreasonably to withhold their stocks they would run the risk of having their stocks commandeered, and that if they sold above the maximum price, they would be liable to go to jail. Before, however, I could ask the Local Government to take action in this direction, it was necessary for me to satisfy them that I was offering a reasonable price to the stock-holders. It must be remembered that these stock-holders are an essential link in the chain of the paddy trade, and that it has been the policy of the Local Government in past years to encourage the ryot to hold up his stores of paddy. An examination of the statistics of paddy prices between May and December showed that in the previous ten years the average price in these months had been as high as R172 in 1912, and R155 in 1911. In 1915 it was R141. In no other year had it been more than R128, and in five years out of the ten it was less than R120. Judging by these figures, no reasonable cause of complaint would have been given if the paddy basis had been fixed at R145 or even R140. But the main thing was to tempt out stocks of paddy. It was doubtful whether commandeering on a large scale was possible, and in any case I regarded commandeering as a weapon to be held in reserve rather than as an ordinary means of bringing out paddy. For the purpose of bringing out the paddy, it was necessary to rely mainly on an attractive price. I therefore recommended to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor that the rice price should be increased so as to enable millers to pay up to R150. His Honour, after examining the price statistics submitted to him, accepted this price as a reasonable price in all the circumstances of the year. Accordingly on the 8th May, with his approval and that of the Government of India, I issued a press communiqué. I raised the maximum control price of rice in Burma from R335 per 100 baskets of big mills specials to R385, this being the equivalent of R150 per 100 baskets of paddy. The maximum prices of other qualities of rice were revised in the same proportion, and practically every quality of rice known in the trade in Burma was brought under control. It was announced that the Government of India had issued a notification under rule 11-J. of the Defence of India Rules declaring that it was necessary to control the supply of rice in Burma and that in the exercise of the powers conferred on them by this notification the Government of Burma intended to prescribe that the price at which paddy might be sold in Burma should not exceed R150 per 100 baskets delivered at the mills in the various Burma ports. It was also stated that there was no foundation for the belief that the rice control was likely to be relaxed in July or August, and that, if necessary, the Government of India would retain control until the 1919 crop had been completely disposed of.

Operation of revised scheme.

23. For reasons for which the Local Government were in no way responsible, the notification prescribing the maximum price for paddy was not issued till the 17th May, and some further time elapsed before the news penetrated into the jungle. But as soon as my press communiqué was issued, the price of paddy dropped to R150, and as soon as stock-holders became aware of the Local Government's notification, paddy, arrivals of which had dropped alarmingly at the end of April, again began to move freely down to the ports.

On my return to India, I visited Calcutta, Madras and Bombay and discussed with the Directors of Civil Supplies the question of tightening up rice control in India. The measures adopted will be referred to later, but it may be mentioned that they consisted chiefly of a rigorous limitation of the number of licensed importers with the object of rendering control at once easier and more effective. For two months everything worked smoothly, but with the signing of the peace treaty in July, the rumour again revived that the relaxation of control was imminent, and the price of paddy at once hardened. Millers were unable to obtain paddy at controlled prices and consequently were unwilling to enter into fresh commitments, and complaints were received from Madras, Calcutta and Bombay that licensees were experiencing difficulty in securing rice. It was also reported that speculators in Burma had brought up large stocks of rice, and that large premia had been paid in addition to the control price. On the 31st July a press notice was issued that the control would not be relaxed until the 1919 crop had been disposed of and that in any event it would be maintained till the end of December 1919. On the 1st August the Local Government issued a notification prescribing the control prices for rice announced in the press communiqué of the 8th May as maximum prices under the Defence of India Rules, and authorising the commandeering of rice in the event of its being unreasonably withheld. Finally, it was decided to make an example of stock-holders who refused to sell paddy at the controlled prices by commandeering their stocks. The modus operandi as finally settled by the Local Government was as follows. The different centres for paddy were divided up by arrangement among the millers. The names of stock-holders, so far as they could be ascertained by Mr. Bower, who had succeeded Mr. Stevens as Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Rice) in May, were communicated to the millers, and they were instructed to approach the stock-holders with a firm offer for their stocks of paddy at the equivalent of control rates. In the event of a refusal, it was decided that notices should be served on the stock-holders requiring them to deliver the stocks at a specified wharf or station within a specified period, the millers being left to make their own arrangements to take delivery. A number of notices were served on stock-holders, but as was to be expected, it was not found easy actually to secure the paddy. The measures taken, however, had the desired effect, and very large quantities of rice were secured for India in August, September and October without any serious difficulty, nor was any shipping held up for lack of rice. Fortunately the final official estimate of the exportable surplus (2,100,000 tons cargo rice) turned out to be too low. By the middle of October 1,953,256 tons of white rice equivalent to nearly 2,300,000 tons cargo rice had arrived in the ports, and paddy was still coming down at the rate of some 20,000 tons a week.

Provision of shipping

24. I may here break off to refer very briefly to two questions which have had a very direct bearing on the supplies of Burma rice to India, namely, the arrangements for control over shipping and the rates of freight charged for the conveyance of rice to the different Indian ports. At the end of 1918, control was exercised over British vessels by arrangement with the Ministry of Shipping at home and in respect of foreign vessels by virtue of the powers conferred on the Government of India by rule 14-A. of the Defence of India Rules. The powers of control were vested in an officer styled the Agent to the Shipping Controller in the East, an appointment held by Major R. Douglas Story. In February 1919, however, the Government of India found it necessary to take further powers. Information had been received from home that it was proposed very shortly to terminate the Liner Requisition Scheme, but that the Ministry of Shipping would retain the powers of licensing and direction of vessels registered at ports registered in the United Kingdom. Control, therefore, could still be exercised over such vessels by arrangement with the Ministry of Shipping, but there was no power to control British vessels registered in Indian ports or ports other than those of the United Kingdom. Consequently the powers conferred by rule 14-A. of the Defence of India Rules were extended to include the licensing and direction of all vessels, whether British or Foreign, not registered at ports in the United Kingdom. The effect of the rule as amended was that owners of such vessels were required to obtain licenses from Major Story before proceeding to sea from an Indian port, and to submit such licenses to the Collectors of Customs at the various ports when applying for Port Clearance.

This action was taken solely for the purpose of ensuring that adequate tonnage should be available for the conveyance of rice from Burma to India, and for the same reason, the Government of India resisted pressure from home that the policy in India with regard to shipping control should be brought into line with the policy decided on at home and that detailed control and direction of shipping should be dispensed with as far and as quickly as possible. But when the post of Shipping Controller was abolished at home, it was no longer possible to retain Major Story as Agent to that officer, and in March 1919 he was appointed Shipping Controller with the Government of India. As already explained, one of his duties was to provide the tonnage necessary for the execution of the Foodstuffs Commissioner's monthly programme, and in the first three months of the year his task was a very difficult one. The shipping available in Indian waters was very limited in comparison with the demands for rice for India, and the position in Bombay at the beginning of April was critical. Urgent representations were made to the Secretary of State as the result of which the Ministry of Shipping made additional tonnage available for the rice traffic and also expedited the return of requisitioned ships to the British India and Asiatic Steam Navigation Companies. Thus in spite of the fact that successive reductions in the freight charges on rice gradually drove foreign ships (on which we relied greatly in the early part of the year) away from Indian waters, the tonnage position steadily improved. Indeed as the year advanced, the problem of supplying India with rice completely changed. In the early months of the year the difficulty was one of shipping. In the later months, as the exportable surplus in Burma gradually approached exhaustion, it was one of rice. Since May, indeed, a periodical anxiety has been the bunching of steamers and consequent congestion at the ports. However carefully the shipping programme was arranged and however meticulously steamers were spaced out, unforeseen accidents and delays would occur, and a bunch of rice steamers would arrive simultaneously at a port. Congestion in the docks would follow, and congestion in one port invariably led a month later to congestion in another. The most anxious time was at the end of May when I had 900,000 bags of rice in the Port Trust sheds at Bombay with another 80,000 tons afloat en route to the port. But by heroic efforts on the part of the Director of Civil Supplies, the Port Trust authorities, the railways and the merchants, the sheds were cleared in a remarkably short space of time, and the crisis passed away. The steamer companies also were sympathetic and forebore to press their claims for demurrage. I should here like to express my obligations to Major Story. His achievements in the matter of supplying shipping will be exhibited statistically below and will speak for themselves. But one of my chief difficulties was the bewildering rapidity with which the foodstuffs position was apt to change, and I was constantly calling upon Major Story to alter his programme and provide at short notice large quantities of tonnage for particular ports. He never failed me. Another pleasing feature of the shipping control (if I may be permitted to travel rather out of my sphere) was the complete absence of friction with the two great Indian Shipping Companies, the British India and the Asiatic Steam Navigation Companies. I had frequently to consult and negotiate with these two companies, and I should like to testify to the assistance and courtesy which invariably I received from them.

25. The following table shows the rates of freight on rice from Rangoon which were in force at the end of 1918 :— Rates of freight *Gross rates. Rebates were allowed.

A freight rate of R35 per ton represented an addition of 52 per cent to the ex-hopper price of big mills specials as fixed by Mr. Gubbay, and as soon as he returned from Burma in the beginning of December, he was directed by the Government of India to consider whether some reduction of freight could not be secured. Under the system of control then in vogue, rates of freight were fixed by Major Story in consultation with the Shipping Controller at home, but the danger was that if freights were materially reduced, foreign ships would desert Indian waters for more remunerative markets, and much of our essential tonnage would be lost. After discussion with Mr. Gubbay, however, Major Story agreed with effect from January 15th to reduce the rates of freight on rice from Rangoon to R40 per ton for Bombay, R35 per ton for Tuticorin and West Coast ports, R30 per ton for Madras, Negapatam and Cuddalore, R20 per ton for Calcutta and R42 per ton for Karachi. At the end of the month a further reduction was secured. The position had been entirely changed by the announcement of the approaching termination of the Liner Requisition Scheme, and questions of freight instead of being decided by the Shipping Controller were henceforward a matter for negotiation with the two companies chiefly concerned, namely the British India and the Asiatic Steam Navigation Companies. Negotiations were at once opened by Mr. Gubbay and Major Story, and on the 30th January the former was able to announce that the rates of freight for foodstuffs from Rangoon and Akyab were reduced as below :—

To—	R
Bombay	30	Less a rebate of 10 per cent. on the usual terms.
Malabar ports	32
Madras and East Coast ports	28
Karachi	35
Calcutta	20

Slightly higher rates were fixed for Bassein and Moulmein and the revised rates were guaranteed for three months. On the expiry of this period in April, I again interviewed the two companies as to the possibility of securing a further reduction of the rates, and as the result of these negotiations, the rates were finally fixed with effect from the 1st June at R24 for Bombay, R26 for Tuticorin and Malabar ports, R22-8 for Madras, Negapatam and Cuddalore and Rs. 16 for Calcutta. These rates, of course, are still high compared with those prevailing before the war, and they have been criticized on that ground. But they are much lower than those obtaining for other kinds of cargo—for instance R72 per ton have freely been paid on timber from Rangoon to Madras—and it is, perhaps, a sufficient answer to criticism that the announcement of the new rates was followed by the disappearance of the Dutch tonnage which Major Story had hitherto been able to use for the transport of rice. These steamers henceforth avoided Indian waters lest they should be impressed into the service of the foodstuffs programme.

Results of the control.

26. The following statement shows the amount of Burma rice shipped to India between the 1st January and 31st October 1919 :—

	Tons
Bombay	734,251
Calcutta	442,609
Chittagong	92,118

Madras	211,654

Cochin	59,247
Calicut	10,096
Alleppey	58,615
Other Madras ports	4,898
Total	1,732,643

In the ten years ending 1917-18 India's imports of Burma rice never exceeded 1,139,978 tons in any one year, and it will be seen that in the first 10 months of this year shipments of rice from Burma to India exceeded this figure by nearly 600,000 tons Except a few thousand tons shipped in January, the whole of this quantity was rice supplied under the control scheme, and the saving to India must have been enormous. I do not propose to enter at any length into the p ce at which the rice was sold in India. The price varied, of course, not only according to the quality but according to the ex-hopper controlled prices in Burma, the f. o. b charges (which were revised by Mr. Stevens in May with my sanction), the rate of freight, and the profit allowed to the importer. It is sufficient to say that in Bombay in July the whole-sale controlled prices of the different qualities of Burma rice varied from R6-4-0 per bag of 168 lbs. for the lowest quality of brokens to R13-15-6 per bag for long grain special, the most expensive quality of boiled rice. The controlled price for small mill specials was R12-0-3 per bag of 168 lbs. or R8 per cwt., and it is interesting to note that according to information collected by Mr. Bower, this same quality of rice was selling about the same time at R14 per cwt. in Java and Saigon, at R15 in Siam and at R18 in Japan. In most cases, moreover, the prices quoted by Mr. Bower were controlled prices. It has been ascertained from the Government of Ceylon that they had to pay in Bangkok, Hong Kong and Singapore prices for rice varying from R27 to R57 per bag f. o. b The f. o. b prices of the corresponding qualities of Burma rice in Rangoon at the same time varied from R8-9-3 to R10-2-4 per bag Mr. Gubbay's controlled ex-hopper price of R335 per 100 baskets of 7,500 lbs. of big mills specials is equivalent to R100 a ton, and my revised price of R385 per 100 baskets represents R115 per ton. It is generally agreed that if it had not been for the control the price of big mills specials would have risen to R500 (equivalent to R150 per ton) or even higher. But even if we make the very conservative assumption that had it not been for the control, the average wholesale price of Burma rice in India would have been R30 per ton higher, it means that the saving in India by the operation of the price control on the 1,700,000 tons imported amounted to more than 5 crores of rupees.

Burman criticism of the control scheme.

27 An equivalent loss was, of course, caused to Burma, and in Burma the whole scheme of control was fiercely assailed. It was asserted that the Government of India were feeding India at the expense of the Burman cultivator, and it was pointed out that instead of attempting to control the price of wheat in Canada and Australia, the British Government were paying £50 million sterling a year to keep the price of the quartern loaf at home at 9*d*. I do not think that I need reply at any great length to these criticisms. It is, of course, true that the prosperity of the cultivator in Burma is bound up with the prosperity of the export trade in rice. Indian cultivators had prospered greatly during the war owing to the high prices obtained for their cotton, their wheat, and their oil seeds. The Burman cultivator, on the other hand, had passed through a series of lean years and naturally looked to recouping his losses. Extremely high prices ruled for the rice exported from Siam and Saigon in 1919, and it must have been extremely galling to the Burman to find himself prevented from reaping similar profits. Quite naturally this point of view was strongly pressed in the press and on the platform in Burma, but I do not think that anyone in Burma ever expected that the Government of India or the Local Government would take this line of argument seriously. Reduced to its essentials, it amounted merely to a plea that the Government of India should stand aside and leave the rice trade of Burma to take advantage, for the purpose of profiteering, of the necessities of India and of the world shortage of food which was the direct consequence of the war. Mr Gubbay had shown how the rice trade of Burma could be brought under control, and having regard to the needs of India, of which Burma is a part, it would have been a clear dereliction of duty on the part of the Government of India if they had omitted to use the weapon which Mr. Gubbay had forged. At the same time, both Mr. Gubbay and I realised the necessity of dealing fairly with the cultivator, the stock-holder, and the miller in Burma, and had we not done so, the control scheme would at once have broken down. In making it effective, we had to rely very largely on the co-operation of the Government of Burma, and at every stage we had to satisfy the Local Government that the interests of Burma had been duly safeguarded. With this aspect of the question I have already dealt. It is here sufficient to mention that the average price for paddy in this year has only twice been exceeded in the last 17 years, and I do not think that we can reasonably be accused of illiberality. The people of Burma, no doubt, will still continue to nurse their grievance, but at any rate they have the consolation of knowing not only that Burma rice has been the salvation of the situation in India, but also that had it not been for the control, their experience would have been the same as that of the people of Siam. Until the 12th June 1919, Siam was a free market for rice, and no embargo was placed on exports. Unprecedented prices were obtained, and exports were very heavy. They were so heavy in fact that the country was drained of rice. Prices were driven up for the consumer in Siam, and large sums of money had to be advanced by the Treasury "for the purpose of buying and transporting rice for the relief of the people." I quote from a notification issued by the Siamese Board of Rice Control on the 28th August 1919. It must also be remembered that while, on the one hand, we regulated exports of rice from Burma, we also provided the shipping necessary to take away that rice. I append below the latest statement of the rice position received from the Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Rice):

Acknowledgments

33. It will be seen that we lifted practically the whole of the 1919 crop, and that every port in Burma was extremely well served with shipping. Mr. Gubbay and I both owe a deep debt of gratitude to His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, not only for his advice which was always freely at our disposal, but also for his consistent support of the control scheme when once he had accepted it. Mr. Stevens worked under me as Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Rice) only for a short time. But his unique experience of the rice trade in Burma was invaluable, and he was of great assistance both to Mr Gubbay when he was working out the control scheme, and to me when I was revising it. Mr. Bower succeeded Mr. Stevens in May 1919. His previous training, both in the Customs Department and in the office of the Shipping Controller, served him in good stead, and he was a most useful Assistant. I venture to bring the good work done by both these officers to the notice of the Government of India. There is one other remark that I should like to make. I have made above certain criticisms on points of detail in Mr. Gubbay's scheme of control, and I should like to make it clear that every one whom

I consulted in Burma considered that the control had worked marvellously well, and that whatever scheme had been devised in December modifications would have been necessary in April.

(b) Imports of Australian wheat.

34. As soon as Mr. Gubbay returned from Burma in the beginning of December 1918, he was directed by the Government of India to consider the possibility of importing wheat from Australia. The wheat position in India was then very difficult. In spite of the announcement by the Government of India in the beginning of October of the termination of purchases for the Royal Commission, prices of wheat in the Punjab and the United Provinces had touched the record. The balance of the 1918 crop had passed into the hands of stock-holders, the prospects of the 1919 crop, owing not only to restricted sowings but also to the continued holding off of the winter rains, were not bright, and there was reason to believe that stocks were being hoarded up in the Punjab and the United Provinces in the hope of prices being forced still higher. It was impossible to apply to Indian wheat a system of control similar to that devised for Burma rice, and it was decided that there was no method either of tempting out the stocks of wheat held in the country or of keeping down prices other than that of turning the markets on to a new source of supply. Large stocks of wheat were known to exist in Australia, and on the 9th December preliminary enquiries were addressed to the Secretary of State as to the possibility of securing a share of these supplies for India. At first it was hoped that the business of import could be left to private firms, but the scarcity of tonnage, the high rates of freight, the uncertainty of the Indian market and the risk of serious loss all made it impossible for private enterprise to touch the business, and the Government of India were compelled themselves to assume the responsibility and to take the risk. Thanks to the good offices of the Secretary of State, however, very favourable terms were secured from the Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies and the Australian Government. Both agreed to supply wheat at cost price, and in recognition of the assistance received by the Home Government from India during the war in the matter of wheat supplies, the Treasury agreed to freight being charged for at bare cost, the rate being estimated at 50 shillings per ton. It was stipulated, however, that the wheat should not be sold at a profit in India. These terms were gratefully accepted by the Government of India, and arrangements were made for the shipment to India of 50,000 tons of wheat in each of the months of February, March and April. Of this quantity, 120,000 tons were sold by the Royal Commission at cost price, namely shillings 44-6 per quarter of 480 lbs., while 30,000 tons were purchased from the Australian Government at shillings 44 per quarter f. o. b. Australia. Arrangements for import.

35. The next step was to settle the method of finance and to arrange for the handling of the cargoes on their arrival in India. At that time a large number of flour mills in India had been taken under control by the Controller of Contracts, and these mills were employed entirely on producing flour and atta for the troops, wheat being supplied to them for the purpose. It was originally intended that the bulk of the imported wheat should be utilised by these controlled mills and that the balance should be sold to uncontrolled mills in Bombay and Calcutta. It was arranged that payment for the wheat and freight should be made at home by the Secretary of State, and that the Government of India should recoup themselves from the sale-proceeds in India. Supplies made to controlled mills, of course, involved no payments by the mills, but it was anticipated that the reduction of the payments then being made for purchases of Indian wheat would reduce military expenditure, and that this reduction combined with direct recoveries from uncontrolled mills would tend to ease the strain on Indian balances. As a matter of fact, for reasons which will be explained later, supplies to controlled mills were small, and the great bulk of the imported wheat was sold to uncontrolled mills and merchants in Bombay and Calcutta. The arrangements for finance, therefore, whereby the wheat and freight were paid for in sterling in London while the sale-proceeds were recovered in rupees in India, were of some assistance in relieving the ways and means problem in India since, in effect, the rupee payments Method of finance.

represented a retransfer to India of funds locked up in London. The successive rises in exchange, moreover, which took place between May and October 1919 also helped to protect the Government of India from loss in respect of transactions of an unusual character which involved very large sums of the taxpayers' money.

Handling and sale in India.

36. The condition that the wheat must not be sold at a profit made it necessary that the firms selected to deal with the wheat on arrival should work merely as agents of the Government of India. The firms selected were Messrs. Louis Dreyfus and Company at Bombay and Karachi, and Messrs. Shaw, Wallace and Company at Calcutta, both these firms having offered to dispense with any commission and to charge merely on the basis of actual expenses incurred. After negotiations with these firms, pro forma charges were finally agreed to by the Foodstuffs Commissioner. In Bombay and Karachi they covered the following items:—(1) Terminal tax, (2) town duty, (at Bombay only), (3) weighing on arrival, (4) loading on boats, (5) unloading, (6) sewing on steamers and replacing gunnies, (7) weighing on delivery, (8) godown rent, (9) establishment charges, and (10) fire insurance. All these charges, except the first three, were arranged for on a contract basis. In Calcutta a similar pro forma was drawn up, though naturally the details differed, but Messrs. Shaw, Wallace and Company preferred to work on the basis of expenses actually incurred. In addition to the above charges, allowances were made for loss in outturn, quality, loss in interest and marine insurance (3-10%). Marine insurance was effected by Messrs. Shaw, Wallace and Company at the contract rate for all wheat ships arriving at Calcutta, Bombay and Karachi. The charges under the above heads amounted to As. 7·1 per maund in Bombay, As. 6·6 per maund at Karachi and As. 5·5 per maund in Calcutta. The basis for the sale price was arrived at by adding to the pro forma the f. o. b. price of the wheat in Australia plus the freight charges, both converted at the current rate of exchange. Special officers were posted to Bombay and Calcutta for the purpose of effecting sales. Mr. C. W. Jacob, I.C.S., who had previously held the appointment of Wheat Commissioner, was appointed Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner (Wheat) and was placed in direct charge of the operations under the Foodstuffs Commissioner with headquarters at Calcutta. Mr. O'Byrne, I.C.S., the Assistant Foodstuffs Commissioner (Wheat), was posted to Bombay. In June the need for a second officer having disappeared with the completion of sales in Calcutta, Mr. Jacob was transferred to Bombay, and Mr. O'Byrne reverted to his province. Both officers did very good work, Mr. Jacob's exceptional knowledge of the wheat trade due to his long connection with the operations of the Royal Commission being particularly useful. Sales at Karachi were small, and delivery orders were issued under the directions of the local Director of Civil Supplies.

The quantities.

37. The first wheat cargoes began to arrive from Australia in the beginning of March. In the meantime, the first forecast of the 1919 wheat crop had been received by the Government of India. It showed a decrease in the area cultivated with the crop of 33 per cent., compared with the previous year, and on the 11th February the Government of India had asked the Secretary of State whether supplies of Australian wheat to India could be raised to a total of 500,000 tons delivered at the rate of 100,000 tons a month. In view of tonnage difficulties and the demands of European countries, the Royal Commission were unable to accede to this request, but after some negotiations they agreed rather reluctantly to supply at a slightly higher price 75,000 tons in excess of the programme previously sanctioned. In the middle of April, however, the Royal Commission found it necessary to reconsider its decision. The United Kingdom, France and Italy had reached the period when home crops having passed into consumption, they were entirely dependent on imported supplies, and it was essential to utilise the limited shipping which the Shipping Controller was able to provide for the purpose of sending wheat to Europe. The Government of India accordingly were asked whether they would agree to the diversion to Europe of the 75,000 tons extra wheat previously promised them. At this period the wheat position in India was temporarily easier. Prices had fallen, and the new harvest was expected in the following month. The Government of India, therefore, agreed to the diversion of these cargoes to Europe, but they stipulated that they should be regarded as having a preferential claim to an equivalent quantity of Australian wheat later in the year if it was required. Further supplies at a slightly enhanced price (shillings 46-6 per quarter) amounting to some 15,000 tons were secured in July and August, and a certain amount of wheat was shipped to India from time to time in liners up to the end of October. But at the end of September the improvement in the general agricultural outlook justified the Government of India in renouncing their lien on supplies of Australian wheat. In all 53 steamers (inclusive of liners) brought wheat to India on Government account in 1919, and the appended statement shows the total amount imported and the distribution among the different ports :—

38. These imports of Australian wheat were arranged partly in order that the pressure on stocks of Indian wheat might be relieved and partly in the hope that we could use them as a lever on prices. At first our position was not easy. The pro forma price was so calculated as to cover reasonable risks, and strictly speaking it represented the best estimate we could make of the price at which we could afford to sell without incurring loss. At the same time, the stipulation made by the Treasury that we should not sell at a profit rendered it necessary at first that we should not go above the pro forma price. In the initial stages therefore the position was that, while we could not exceed the pro forma we might have to go below it if as we hoped the arrival of larger quantities of Australian wheat had the effect of bringing down the price of Indian wheat. Later on of course it might be legitimate to sell above the pro forma in order to cover losses previously incurred, but if the arrival of the wheat did result in a fall in the price of Indian wheat it was natural to suppose that the United Provinces harvest in April and the Punjab harvest in May would bring prices still lower. The Government of India therefore were quite prepared to face a considerable loss. Sales and price policy.

At first, it looked as if our expectations would be realised. Four steamers with more than 25,000 tons of wheat arrived in Bombay in the first half of March. The price of Indian Pissi wheat 70 per cent of which on the 2nd March had been quoted in Bombay for March delivery at R11-8-0 per cwt. dropped to R10-6-0 on March 14th and to R9-14-0 at the end of the month. Prices in Calcutta fell in sympathy, and in order to sell the first three cargoes which arrived in Calcutta at the end of March and in the beginning of April, we had to reduce our price well below the pro forma, and we sustained considerable loss. In Bombay great difficulty was experienced at first in finding a sale for the wheat. The pro forma price at that time was R9-8-0 per cwt. or As. 6 below the current price of Pissi wheat. But buyers held off possibly because they had no experience of Australian wheat, and also because with stocks beginning to emerge in view of the approaching harvest in the Punjab, they expected the prices of Indian wheat to drop and a corresponding reduction in our price. At the end of the first week in April, 72,429 tons of Australian wheat had been landed in Bombay but only 12,895 tons had been sold. Nearly 30,000 tons were due to arrive before the end of the month, and another disquieting fact was that it had not been possible to find covered storage for all the wheat which had arrived, and much of it was lying on open plinths at Sewri. Heavy showers of rain might do this wheat considerable damage. In order to expedite the rate of sale, the price was reduced to R9-4-0 per cwt. from the 6th April, and arrangements were also made to secure covered storage for the wheat lying in the open at Sewri. Sales, however, continued to be small till the 3rd week in April, but in that week, probably owing to the disturbances in the Punjab, prices of Indian wheat began to harden. Pissi wheat, which had dropped to R9-10-0 per cwt., rose sharply to R10. Simultaneously, a brisk demand for Australian wheat sprang up from Berar, and in the week ending 26th April, 8,215 tons were sold. The outbreak of the Afghan War followed, and in spite of the harvest of the new crop in the Punjab, the price of wheat in Bombay continued to rise till Pissi wheat reached ₹11 per cwt. in the middle of May. Our selling price was gradually raised to the maximum allowed by the original pro forma viz., ₹9-8-0 per cwt., but the wheat was eagerly bought up, and by the end of the first week in June 76,446 tons had been sold out of arrivals in Bombay aggregating 107,641 tons. By this time the risk of serious loss had disappeared. In the first place, in the original pro forma the estimates for quality allowance and loss in outturn had necessarily been pitched high, as we had no experience to guide us in dealing with Australian wheat, and moreover it was known that the wheat which was being supplied to us had been for a long time in storage in Australia. After the first few cargoes had been handled, however, it was found that the estimate for quality allowance and loss in outturn might safely be reduced from 2 per cent. and 1½ per cent. respectively to ⅜ per cent. and ¾ per cent. These reductions reduced our pro forma price to Rs. 9-4 per cwt., but it was decided to retain Rs. 9-8 as our maximum, partly because of losses which had occurred in Calcutta and were expected in Karachi, and partly because there was no object in making a present of As. 4 per cwt. to uncontrolled flour mills in Bombay. But what really saved us from loss was the rise in exchange from 1s.6d. to 1s.8d. on the 13th May, followed by the further rises in August and September. With the advent of the monsoon, prices of Indian wheat began to drop, and sales fell off. The price was again reduced, and a temporary improvement was effected in the rate of sales, but as the monsoon developed, increasing difficulty was experienced in disposing of the wheat which had arrived in April and May, and which had deliberately been kept back at Mr. Keatinge's request as a reserve against the trying times expected in Bombay in the monsoon. This difficulty was not felt in respect of fresh cargoes arriving from Australia. The 5,000 tons which arrived by the S.S. Orissa were sold within two hours of the vessel's arrival on the 19th June. But the other wheat had previously been treated for weevil in Australia, and as invariably happens with wheat so treated, when the weevils again made their appearance, they increased and multiplied at an incredible rate. I inspected the stocks then amounting to 18,000 tons at the end of July, and again reduced the price. But at the end of August 11,000 tons still remained unsold. There was no demand either in Bombay or elsewhere in India. Merchants refused to buy the wheat for sale as wheat, and the mills whose markets had been contracted by the restrictions on the export of flour were fully stocked. Mr. Jacob reported that no reasonable reduction in price was likely to have any appreciable effect on the rate of sale. On the other hand, he stated that weevilling was proceeding at such a pace, that unless early measures were taken to get rid of the stocks, there was every likelihood of large quantities of valuable foodstuffs, which if not required in India were in urgent request in countries ordinarily dependent on India for their supplies, being entirely destroyed without anyone being benefited. It had been previously arranged that the Controller of Contracts should take over 2,000 tons of this wheat for use in controlled mills, and it was now decided that other millers who bought the balance of the wheat should be given not only an allowance for loss in weight, but also export licenses for flour up to 90 per cent. of the quantity of wheat purchased. No difficulty was experienced in selling off the weevilled stocks on these terms, and such odd liner cargoes as continued to arrive in Bombay were readily sold at prices which the fall in exchange enabled us to pitch fairly low. In Karachi the imports of Australian wheat gave greater trouble. Mr. Gubbay had despatched five steamers to this port, and it was originally intended that the whole of this wheat should be made over to the Controller of Contracts for use in the controlled mills. The first two cargoes, aggregating 13,774 tons net, which arrived on the 21st March and the 1st April, were accordingly made over to Messrs. Ralli Brothers on military account, but the flour and atta made from the wheat did not keep quite so well as the products of hard Punjab wheat, and it was decided that the remaining cargoes should be utilised for civil requirements. There was, however, only one uncontrolled mill in Karachi, and the Indian population of Sind much preferred the qualities of wheat to which they were accustomed. Moreover, Punjab wheat was considerably cheaper in Sind than in the Bombay Presidency proper. The price of the Australian wheat was reduced at the end of June, but the reduction had little effect on the rate of sales, and a further complication ensued in the setting in of weevilling at an even more rapid rate than in Bombay. It was found necessary to go to the expense of cleaning the wheat, but at the end of July there were still more than 13,000 tons in stock. The price was again reduced, but by this time the demand had died away altogether, and practically no sales were effected. At the end of August, therefore, the balance of the wheat remaining at Karachi, amounting to 11,300 tons, was made over to the Controller of Contracts for use in the controlled mills. It was agreed that an allowance should be made based on the actual loss in outturn experienced in milling, and that this loss should be charged to the wheat account.

Financial results.

39. I regret that I am not yet able to state accurately the financial results of the transactions. Account sales for several cargoes are still due from the agent firms, and until all these accounts have been received the audit cannot be begun. Mr. Jacob hopes that it will be possible to begin the audit before the end of the current month (November), and the audited accounts will be published as soon as possible. In the circumstances, only an approximate estimate can be offered at present of the financial results of the transactions. No intimation has yet been received from the Secretary of State of the amount paid on account of the freight and cargoes of three steamers totalling about 4,000 tons which arrived in Bombay only recently. Excluding these three steamers, payments by the Secretary of State on the account of the Government of India in respect of Australian wheat have been as below:—

The net receipts from the sale proceeds of all cargoes for which account sales have been received amount to more than ₹254 lakhs. But account sales have yet to be received in respect of nearly 50,000 tons of wheat, and I prefer at this stage not to commit myself too far. As far as can be seen, however, the final accounts when received are certain to show a profit. This profit was due partly to the fact that we had the Controller of Contracts to fall back upon in case of need, and, as has already been explained, we should have lost heavily on our stocks in Karachi in August had he not taken them over for use in the controlled mills. But the main factor was the rise in exchange. Our pro forma was drawn up on the assumption that payments would be made by the Secretary of State on receipt of cable advice of shipment, and as a very large proportion of our wheat ships sailed from Australia in February, March and April, exchange was calculated at 1*s.* $5\frac{31}{32}$d. But some delay took place in payment in London and we got the benefit of the 1*s.* 8*d.* exchange on an unexpectedly large proportion of the earlier payments. If there is any loss on the guarantee given to Distributing Agent firms in Calcutta, as explained in paragraph 51 of this report, it will be more than covered by the profits on the Australian wheat transactions.

General effect of wheat policy.

40. In all about 200,000 tons of Australian wheat were imported into India. This quantity is a mere fraction of the amount of wheat consumed in India which has been estimated at some 8 million tons in a normal year. But the imports combined with the stocks conserved for Indian consumption by the restriction on exports helped to relieve the situation caused by the serious shortage of the wheat crop in 1919. The stocks of Australian wheat in Bombay, Calcutta and Karachi eased the pressure on the Punjab and the United Provinces, and undoubtedly they contributed to the result that the retail price of wheat in the Punjab, United Provinces, Central Provinces and Bombay was cheaper in September 1919 than it had been in September 1918. It was in Bombay of course that the effect of the imports of Australian wheat on retail prices was most marked. The average retail price in the Presidency was three seers and 11½ chittaks for a rupee in January 1919. In September 1919 it was four seers six chittaks. It is noteworthy that in the latter half of October, when imports of Australian wheat were known practically to be at an end, the wholesale price of wheat in Bombay rose rapidly. A desire was expressed in some quarters that Government should continue to import wheat from Australia, but with exchange at 2*s.*, the freight position becoming easier and all danger of an actual shortage of food in India at an end, it was thought that there was no reason why Government should continue to interfere in a sphere which properly belongs to private enterprise. I have had applications from more than one quarter for permission to import Australian wheat and I take this opportunity of noting that no permission is required. On the contrary, in order to encourage private imports of foodstuffs, Government have removed temporarily all import duties on grain and pulse imported.

Quality of Australian wheat.

41. The wheat was shipped under a certificate from the Australian Government that it was of fair average quality. Mr. Jacob reports that in quality it most nearly resembled Indian Pissi wheat. It was practically clean containing only about ½ per cent. of dirt and ¼ per cent. of foreign grain. It appeared, however, to have been treated for weevil in Australia, and there was a fair proportion of shrivelled and weevilled grains averaging about 3½ per cent. and varying in different cargoes from 2 to 6 per cent. Though Australian wheat has been shipped to India in the past, the majority of the mills had had no experience of it, and at first they showed some reluctance to take it. The wheat being rather soft, it was considered at first that the best milling results would be obtained by mixing Australian wheat with Indian in the proportion of 60 to 40. After some experience had been gained, however, some mills found it unnecessary to mix Australian wheat with Indian wheat and there was a keen demand for the wheat not only because it was cheap but also because the flour made from it was popular with the public. Unlike Indian wheat, Australian wheat was passed through the mills without being washed, and though the mills lost the advantage of the gain in weight which follows washing, compensation was afforded by the greater speed with which the wheat could be passed over the mill and by the better yield of flour. At first, before the mills had gained experience of the wheat, the bulk of it was sold to merchants. Thus between the middle of March and the end of June some 44,000 tons were sold to merchants for distribution in the Bombay Presidency, while during the same period only 16,000 tons were sold to the mills. After the end of June, the demand from the interior declined while that from the Bombay mills increased. Thus between July and September private merchants bought only 5,000 tons against 40,000 tons purchased by the mills. Nearly 9,000 tons were taken at intermittent intervals by the Central Provinces and Berar merchants.

The Agent Firms.

42. My acknowledgments are due to the two agent firms Messrs. Louis Dreyfus & Co. and Messrs. Shaw Wallace & Co., and in particular to Mr. Henchoz of the Bombay Branch of the former firm on whom the bulk of the agency work fell. As already stated, these firms gave their services without charge except for actual expenses incurred.

(c) Burma white beans and South African maize.

Beans and maize

43. Two other possibilities in the way of imports were examined. The Royal Commission on Wheat Supplies had bought practically the whole of the 1918 crop of Burma white beans amounting to upwards of 110,000 tons. In October 1918 the unshipped balance of the crop amounted to more than 40,000 tons, and the question was considered whether these stocks should be taken over for use in India. But the price of the beans was high, and it was ascertained that opinion in the provinces was much in favour of the limited shipping available being utilised for the carriage of rice. In the meantime the 1919 crop was coming on. The cultivators had been warned that there would be little demand for beans in 1919, but in view of the high prices obtained in 1918 they had disregarded these warnings and had planted a large area with this crop. It was suggested that these beans might be utilised for feeding the Central Empires in Europe, but the Government of India were advised by the India Office that the prospects of finding a market for the crop in this way were small. A limited amount of space was set aside in every rice steamer loading for India for general cargo, and in March Mr. Gubbay offered to allow the shipment of 5,000 tons of beans in the space so set aside in order that the market for beans in India might be tested. Subsequently as the demand for rice slackened, the space reserved for general cargo was increased and there was a certain demand for beans in India. In all nearly 40,000 tons of beans were shipped to India between the 1st January and the 30th September 1919. The efforts to secure maize from South Africa were entirely unsuccessful. A Calcutta firm was encouraged to make enquiries in South Africa, and the Secretary of State was asked whether there was any objection to the Government of India endeavouring to arrange for import. The Secretary of State's reply was that almost the whole of the South African crop had been purchased by the Royal Commission for use in Europe and that none could be spared for India. The matter was not pressed since the private firm already referred to had ascertained that the price obtaining for maize in South Africa was so high as to rule out any possibility of import into India except at a very heavy loss.

(3) Internal Distribution.

Internal restrictions on the movements of foodgrains by rail.

44. The primary object of the appointment of the Indian Foodstuffs Commissioner was to secure the most effective distribution to deficit provinces of the supplies of wheat, rice and gram, and subsequently of other foodstuffs which were not required for local consumption in surplus provinces. Originally it was intended that the Foodstuffs Commissioner should arrange through the agency of selected firms for the actual purchase of grain and for its despatch to the destinations and consignees indicated by the Directors of Civil Supplies in the deficit provinces. On further examination, however, this idea was given up. It was considered to be too risky to endeavour to substitute a Government distributing agency for the private distributing agency created by generations of small traders. Only three foodgrains were brought under strict control, wheat, rice and gram, and it was decided to limit the intervention of the Foodstuffs Commissioner to the fixation, subject to the approval of the Government of India, of certain allotments within which ordinary trade agencies should be allowed to import into the deficit provinces. Eventually the system developed into the following arrangements :—

(a) Wheat, gram and rice :—These grains could not be moved from one province to another save within the limits of allotments sanctioned in each month by the Government of India. The procedure was that the Director of Civil Supplies of the importing province issued railway priority certificates to selected merchants up to the limit of the amount sanctioned by the Government of India. The certificates, however, were not honoured by the railways until the counter-signature of the Director of Civil Supplies of the exporting province had been obtained. Except in Madras, where the certificate was in force for a shorter period, the period of validity was 21 days.

(b) Foodstuffs other than wheat, gram and rice :—In British provinces Local Governments had no power to prohibit the export of flour or foodgrains other than wheat, gram and rice. The Directors of Civil Supplies of the importing provinces were at liberty to issue certificates for their requirements, and these certificates did not require the counter-signature of the Directors of the exporting provinces. But the Directors were expected to work in consultation with one another, and to avoid issuing certificates on scarcity areas or areas where stocks were known to be low.

(c) Intra-provincial movements:—Local Governments were given full powers, in consultation with the railways concerned, to restrict the movement of foodgrains from one district to another within their provinces.

Working of the system.

45. As has already been explained, these restrictions were necessitated by the congestion on the railways, and it is not necessary to discuss at any length the question how the system of control, which circumstances compelled the Government of India to impose, worked in actual practice. It is probable that the measures taken tended to reduce speculation, to conserve supplies, to keep down prices in exporting provinces, and to facilitate price control in importing provinces. On the other hand, the Government of India always recognised that the system had grave disadvantages, and as far back as December 1918 they considered seriously whether they would not be justified in abolishing the railway priority system altogether. The system afforded opportunities for bribery and corruption, and as the year advanced, there was reason to believe that it was increasingly lending itself to evasion. The delays inseparable from certification hampered trade operations which often depend on the immediate seizure of favourable opportunities, and when, as not infrequently was the case, merchants who had been accustomed to buy in one province, were unavoidably diverted to another, the difficulty of forming new trade connections at short notice led in some cases to the priority certificates not being implemented, and the failure of supplies which may have been urgently required. The main objection to the system was that it hampered and embarrassed private trade, and the Government of India always kept before them the desirability of allowing trade to resume its normal course and of leaving the movement of foodgrains within India to the regulation of the laws of supply and demand as soon as the railway position and the agricultural outlook justified this step.

Uncontrolled grains.

46. Some comment is necessary on the orders relating to the movement of foodgrains other than wheat, gram and rice. Originally Local Governments had been given power to prohibit the export of such foodgrains from their provinces. Some Local Governments promptly exercised this power with the result that certain areas, especially in Western India, owing to the closure of their usual markets, soon found themselves in a condition of serious deficit. It was considered whether the detailed control exercised over wheat, gram and rice should not be extended to other foodgrains, but effective control was impossible unless the available supplies of the controlled commodities and their location had been ascertained with some approximation to accuracy. More information of this kind was available in respect of wheat, gram and rice than in respect of other foodgrains, and the Government of India decided that the information at their disposal in regard to available stocks of these other foodgrains did not justify them in extending their control further than it already existed. They came to the conclusion, therefore, that in respect of these foodgrains the dangers inherent in the restrictions imposed by Local Governments were greater than those to be apprehended from the removal of these restrictions. Accordingly it was decided in December 1918 to withdraw from Local Governments the power of prohibiting the export of these foodgrains from their provinces. The orders aroused some protest, especially from the Government of Madras. On the whole, however, they worked well. Difficulties at one time seemed likely to arise in respect of a threatened denudation of stocks of jowar, bajra and ragi in certain deficit areas in Madras owing to heavy purchases by Bombay merchants. But a compromise was effected, and the danger was averted. No attempt, however, was made to enforce these orders on Native States. The Darbars of some of these States considered that the interests of the people committed to their charge rendered it essential that a complete embargo should be placed on the export of foodgrains from their States. Pressure might have been put on at least some of the Darbars to come into line with the policy adopted in British India by depriving them of supplies of Burma rice. But though they were placed in possession of the Government of India's views on the subject, it was decided that the Darbars should be allowed to decide for themselves what policy they would adopt.

Movements by road.

47. Another question which was referred to the Government of India on more than one occasion by more than one Local Government was the question whether movements of foodgrains by road, river and canal should be brought under control as well as movements by rail. The Government of India decided against this proposal. Their policy was to confine their interference with the ordinary course of trade within the narrowest possible limits, and further, it was considered that it would be very difficult to make the control of movements by road effective while the attempt to do so would inevitably open the door to petty blackmail and oppression Another reason for rejecting the proposal was that it meant the addition of a new rule to the Defence of India Rules, and as the year advanced the Government of India became more and more reluctant to use these rules for the purpose of dealing with economic distress in India and still more reluctant to extend them.

Price control.

48. Price control in India was no part of the Foodstuffs Commissioner's duties. With the approval of the Government of India, he made monthly allotments of wheat, gram and rice, but Local Governments through their Directors of Civil Supplies made their own arrangements for licensing importers, for distributing the grain when received and for price control. Intervention by the Foodstuffs Commissioner was necessary only when laxity of control in India threatened to upset his arrangements in Burma. Even then no orders were issued. The matter was discussed in person with the Directors concerned. It may be remarked parenthetically that both Mr. Gubbay and I toured incessantly, and that in this way we were able to keep not only the Government of India advised of the position and prospects in the different provinces but also the Director of Civil Supplies in one province in touch with developments in another. Railway priority certificates and import licenses offered Local Governments a useful lever for control, and all Local Governments had power not only to commandeer stocks of foodgrains unreasonably withheld from the market under the Articles of Commerce Ordinance, but also to delegate their powers to their officers. Some use was made of these powers from time to time, but generally speaking the policy of attempting to keep down prices artificially by drastic penal legislation was avoided. After the outbreak of the Afghan War, the Chief Commissioner of the North-West Frontier Province was authorised to fix maximum prices for foodstuffs under the Defence of India Rules, and for special reasons similar action was sanctioned in two districts of Bombay and in respect of ragi in Bangalore. But as a matter of general policy the Government of India disapproved of the fixation of maximum prices under the Defence of India Rules. They attributed the high range of prices to an actual shortage of foodstuffs aggravated in particular areas by difficulties of railway transport, and apart from the difficulty of enforcing maximum retail prices over wide areas, there was the obvious danger that the prices, if fixed too low, would deter the merchants from importing and thus accentuate the shortage. There was little divergence of opinion on this point, only one or two Local Governments being desirous of making the fixation of prices an integral part of their price policy. The policy favoured in most provinces was that of controlling prices by opening cheap grain shops. In most of these shops Burma rice was used for purposes of control, and the first essential, of course, was that strict supervision should be exercised over the importers at the ports of entry in order both that the rice might be distributed where it was most required and that it might reach the consumer without unnecessary or undue intermediate profits. This was a question in which I was deeply interested from the point of view of the maintenance of the rice control in Burma, and I give below a brief account of the methods adopted in Bombay, Madras and Calcutta.

Control in Bombay.

49. No great measure of success was attained in the early months of the year in any of the ports, but gradually an improvement was effected. In Bombay drastic methods were employed, and licenses for import after the beginning of May were granted only to a few reliable firms. 10,000 tons a month were earmarked for Bombay city, and the import of this amount was entrusted to a single firm, Messrs. Currimbhoy, Ebrahim and Company. The remaining licenses were divided up in fixed proportions between the big millers in Rangoon and two Indian firms, Messrs. Tata Sons and Company and Messrs. Amarchand Madhowji and Company. These arrangements naturally caused strong resentment among the merchants established in the Bombay-Burma rice trade, but unfortunately the interests of the trade had to be sacrificed to other more important considerations. The problem of control was extremely difficult. The difficulty arose from the fact that we were endeavouring to place Burma rice on the market at a price much below its real market value. It was obvious, therefore, that unless control was real right up to the point when the rice reached the consumer, some one would snatch an illicit profit at some link in the chain, and it was the fact that these illicit profits were made that led to the secret bonus system, which threatened to render nugatory the rice control in Burma in April. Apart from price control the mere problem of sending the rice from the port to the numerous districts which were clamouring for it was very complicated where the Director of Civil Supplies had to deal with immense quantities of rice and a very large number of small importers. The main justification for the revised arrangements made by Mr. Keatinge, the Director of Civil Supplies, Bombay, whose health unfortunately broke down under the strain in May, was that they were successful. The distribution to districts was entrusted to whole-sale agents selected by the Collector. These men took over the rice from the importers at prices fixed by the Director of Civil Supplies and railed it up-country on priority certificate. The business thus was reduced to manageable proportions, and Mr. Brander, Mr. Keatinge's successor, had no difficulty in maintaining a steady stream of rice to the districts which required it. The whole-sale district agents distributed to retail dealers under the supervision of the district officers, and as a further check against profiteering, nearly 400 cheap grain shops were opened. Ten thousand tons of Burma rice were allotted every month to the Bombay Famine Relief Fund, which by the end of May had sold three lakhs of maunds of rice at or below cost price, and loans amounting to more than R9 lakhs were advanced by the Government of Bombay to District Boards and Municipal Councils for the purpose of enabling them to open similar shops. Similar measures were taken in the Presidency Town. The distribution of rice to the retail shops was entrusted, at a fixed rate of commission, to a single firm; the prices at which the rice might be sold were fixed by the Director of Civil Supplies; and Inspecting officers were employed to see that these prices were not exceeded. In addition, the Bombay Merchants Cheap Grain Agency opened 23 cheap grain shops in the town and sold more than R16 lakhs worth of rice at or below cost price.

Control in Madras.

50. In Madras very similar methods were employed by Mr. Moir, the Director of Civil Supplies. The number of licenses was cut down. It was made a condition of the license that all rice imported under license should be held at the disposal of the Director of Civil Supplies. The importers' profit was cut down to annas 4 a bag, and licensees were required to deposit, as security for the fulfilment of the conditions of these licenses, a sum of R5 per ton up to a maximum of R1,000. In this way Mr. Moir was able to arrange to supply rice to up-country merchants nominated by the Collector and to Local Boards. In Madras city Messrs. Best and Company opened several retail shops where Burma rice was sold at cheap rates, and shops were also opened by the Madras Corporation, supervision being entrusted to an Emergency Committee presided over by the Commissioner of Police. In Madras there were other stores of rice to draw upon. Owing to the policy of inter-district control, a small reservoir of rice was maintained in the Kistna district, and supplies from this reservoir were carefully regulated. A Deputy Director of Civil Supplies was posted to Bezwada. Monthly allotments were made to specified districts, and supplies were arranged through the Deputy Director. A limit of price was fixed, and tenders were called for. No attempt was made to finance the transactions. The licensed merchants were merely put in touch with the millers whose tenders had been accepted, and priority certificates were issued in the names of the millers as consignors and the licensed merchants as consignees. Over 50,000 tons were obtained in this way between May and October.

The distributing agent system in Calcutta.

51. In Calcutta the problem was somewhat different in that until August the port was merely a distributing centre for rice required not in Bengal but in other provinces. As elsewhere the policy of relying on established shippers failed. It was a condition of their licenses that at first half, and subsequently the whole, of the rice imported under license should be held at the disposal of the Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal, but it was found impossible to ensure that the rice reached the provinces to which it had been allotted. There were incessant disputes between the importers and the up-country merchants. Frequent complaints were received that rice could not be obtained at the controlled prices, and there was reason to believe that much of the rice landed in Calcutta evaded control in the early months of the year. Licenses for import were granted accordingly only to a limited number of firms, and a system of distribution was devised by Mr. Townend, the Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal. Four Calcutta firms, Messrs Becker Gray and Company, Messrs. Shaw Wallace and Company, Messrs. Amarchand Madhowjee and Company, and Messrs. Chaudhuri and Company, were appointed agents for distribution. These firms took over the rice from the licensed importers under Mr. Townend's instructions. Only merchants nominated by the Director of Civil Supplies in the importing province were allowed to import rice into that province, and they were placed by Mr. Townend in touch with one or other of the distributing agent firms. The rice was placed on rails by these firms, and the railway receipt was sent to the consignee through the District Officer. In this way it was ensured both that the rice was sent where it was required, and that the nominated merchants secured it at the control price. Large quantities of rice were supplied under this system to the United Provinces, Bihar and Orissa, and the Central Provinces, and, on the whole, the system worked extremely well. But it was open to certain disadvantages. In the first place, as invariably happens when control is applied, Burma rice steadily deteriorated in quality, and the licensed importers, secure in the knowledge that the heavy demands would compel us to take over all the rice brought over from Burma, embarrassed us by importing large quantities of inferior brokens, or of brokens of a quality not ordinarily eaten in Northern India. The demand for rice was so keen in the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa that even these brokens were accepted, though with reluctance at first, but the despatch of brokens to the Central Provinces in response to indents for rice led to some troublesome disputes. Secondly, it was found necessary to guarantee the agent firms against loss. They were remunerated only by a small commission, and there was obvious danger that in the event of a sudden break in the demand for rice and a fall in prices they might be left with large stocks of rice on their hands which they could not sell except at a loss. It was decided to protect them against this risk. The guarantee applied only to rice taken over from importers under the instructions of the Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal, for supply to nominated merchants and left on the hands of the agent firms by the failure of the merchants actually to accept the rice. The extent of the guarantee was limited to the difference between the price paid for the rice and the price at which it could be sold in the open market, and it was further stipulated that the guarantee would not become operative unless one month's notice were given me together with full particulars of the stocks in respect of which the guarantee was claimed and unless the rice were held at my disposal during that period. The object of this stipulation, of course, was to enable me to dispose of the rice whether to any other province in India, or by export. The guarantee was first given up to September 1st, but at the request of the Government of Bengal it was extended first up to the 1st October and then up to the 1st November. In September and October the system was very useful in ensuring the prompt despatch of rice to the districts affected by the cyclone of September 24th, but it was not found necessary to take over all the rice imported, and the difference in price between controlled and uncontrolled

Burma rice in Calcutta was so small in the second half of October that it was decided to terminate the system on November 1st. On this date nearly ten thousand tons of rice were left on the hands of the agent firms, and preliminary notice was given that the guarantee was claimed in respect of this quantity. It was considered, however, that it would be a useful lever on prices if this rice were retained for some time in Calcutta, and no effort was made to dispose of it to outside countries. By the middle of the month one firm, Messrs. Amarchand Madhowji and Company, had intimated that it did not propose to press its claim for the benefit of the guarantee, and of the stocks held by the other firms, all but 1500 tons had been sold locally without loss. It was left to the Government of Bengal to decide whether this small amount should be sold in Calcutta even at some sacrifice or whether it should be offered to export firms. The agent firms distributed in the manner explained more than 150,000 tons of rice and rendered at very small profit to themselves but at the expense of much time and trouble, very useful service. In particular I must mention Mr. C. F. Beadell of Messrs. Becker Gray and Company. This gentleman who was the first Director of Civil Supplies in Bengal was always most helpful.

IV.—Conclusion.

Results of the control.

52. Put statistically, the main result achieved by the Government of India was that in the year ending 30th September 1919, they converted a normal net export of 1½ million tons of grain, flour and pulse from India (excluding Burma) into a net import of rather more than 1,400,000 tons. They also did something to ensure an equitable distribution among deficit areas of such stocks of foodstuffs as were available in surplus provinces. The different Directors of Civil Supplies will no doubt report in detail how their respective provinces fared. Only the most general summary can be attempted here, written partly from the point of view of prices and partly from that of supplies.

Supplies in the different provinces.

53. To take the latter first, our chief anxiety first centred on the Bombay Presidency. This Presidency is never self-supporting in the matter of food-supplies, and Mr. Keatinge, the Director of Civil Supplies, an officer of great experience who is an acknowledged authority on all questions relating to rural economics, originally estimated that in order to keep the people alive, the Bombay Presidency would require in the year ending the 15th November 1919 a net import of more than 1,800,000 tons of foodgrains. At the beginning of April, prices were extraordinarily high and things were critical. Through no fault of his own, Major Story had lifted 100,000 tons less Burma rice than Mr. Gubbay had allotted for Bombay in the first three months of the year. On the other hand, it was a matter of urgent importance to stock the Konkan districts before with the advent of the monsoon communications were interrupted. There were ample stocks of Australian wheat in Bombay, but the demand was all for rice. On the urgent representations of the Bombay Government, a special allotment of 10,000 tons of Bengal rice was sanctioned for Bombay, but owing, it is reported, to reckless buying by the Bombay merchants in Bengal, this allotment while it did harm in Bengal was of no benefit to the Bombay Presidency. Burma rice saved the situation. Over 90,000 tons were poured into Bombay in April, and of this amount nearly 500,000 bags were despatched to the Konkan districts. In May nearly 160,000 tons were landed, and further large supplies followed in June. These measures, combined with favourable monsoon prospects, had the desired effect. In the second half of July, prices of foodgrains began to fall, and there was a sudden break in the demand for Burma rice. Bombay was over the worst of its troubles and ceased to be an anxiety. In May the situation in Bihar and Orissa became disquieting. In March the Local Government in a closely reasoned letter had given reasons why the province could not be treated as a surplus area, and had estimated that 345,000 tons of foodstuffs would be required in the six months ending the 30th September. Railway and other difficulties had prevented Mr. Gubbay from arranging for the monthly supply of the 59,000 tons reported by the Local Government to be the minimum required, and in May there was a sharp rise of prices. The position was discussed at Ranchi with the Local Government, and the critical months of June and July were tided over by increased allotments of Bengal and Burma rice. In July rice prices showed a tendency to fall, and in August, with the maize crop beginning to ripen and the autumn rice crop promising well, there was a general improvement in prospects, though the demand for Burma rice lasted well on into September. But the necessity of providing large supplies of Bengal rice for Bihar and Orissa reacted on Bengal. At the end of 1918 it was known that there were large surplus stocks of rice in Bengal, and in the early months of 1919 these stocks were freely drawn upon for other provinces. In May there was a sharp rise in prices. The allotments on the province for June, though increased for Bihar and Orissa, were cut down materially in the aggregate, and further reductions were made in July and August. Small supplies of Burma rice were also placed at the disposal of the Director of Civil Supplies, Bengal, in May, June and July for the purpose of testing the market and ascertaining whether there was any real demand for additional supplies of rice. These measures were at first successful. The average retail price of common rice remained steady in June and by the 15th July, though the average price had risen, it was still lower than in any other important province. Moreover, there was little demand for Burma rice, and in the beginning of July the Director of Civil Supplies reported that the cheap grain shops opened in Calcutta by the Municipal Corporation for the sale of Burma rice had definitely proved a failure. In August, however, a crisis arose. The trouble began with a temporary shortage of stocks in certain districts of Eastern Bengal. The merchants from these districts scoured the country for rice, and a general panic followed in the Bengal markets. Prices rose rapidly, and grain looting followed in the beginning of September in the Burdwan Division. Arrangements were at once made to pour in supplies of Burma rice into Bengal. 44,000 tons of rice from Burma were shipped to Calcutta in the first fortnight of September and 15,000 tons to Chittagong. By the third week of September the tide had definitely been turned, and the price of common rice fell in that week in more than thirty reporting stations. But on the 24th September a disastrous cyclone devastated Eastern Bengal and caused a distinct set back. The first reports of damage to standing crops turned out to be exaggerated, but stocks of food were destroyed, flats were sunk, and communications were interrupted. A brisk demand for Burma rice sprang up from the affected districts, and it was necessary to arrange for imports on a large scale right up to the end of October. Between the 31st August and the 31st October 149,007 tons of rice were despatched to Calcutta and 40,851 tons to Chittagong. By the end of the latter month the demand had ceased, and though prices were still high they were falling steadily. There was no sudden crisis in Madras, but there were more grain riots in the Presidency than in any other province, and prices reached unprecedented heights. Mr. Gubbay had promised an allotment of 30,000 tons of Burma rice a month for the Presidency including Travancore, but as the tonnage position improved, we were able to make larger supplies available. In arranging shipments to Madras ports we had always to take into account not only the capacity of the ports but also railway facilities, but in the ten months ending 31st October 455,119 tons of rice were shipped to Madras ports from which Travancore and Mysore were fed as well as the Presidency proper. There were stores of rice also available in the Kistna district, and additional supplies were also made available from Bengal. In spite, however, of these large imports, we were not able to prevent the price of rice from rising slowly till September, and much hardship was caused by the extremely high prices prevailing for jawar, bajra and ragi. At the end of July, the prospects of the season were very favourable, and it was hoped that August would see a distinct fall in prices. But a prolonged break in the monsoon in that month caused a set back, especially in the Ceded Districts, and it was not till October that the demand for Burma rice broke, and prices began seriously to fall. The control worked smoothly in the United Provinces and the Central Provinces. In both provinces, particularly the latter, prices were very high but they were fairly stable, and both provinces stood up to them in remarkable fashion. The Punjab was the granary of India in respect of wheat and gram, and the main object of the control was so to regulate export as to prevent stocks from being rapidly exhausted. The control was so far successful that prices in the Punjab were kept materially lower than those in other provinces.

Rise in prices. General causes.

54. I do not propose to deal at any length with the general causes which have operated to raise prices in India since the war began. The rise has not been confined to India of course, and it is a commonplace that it is mainly due partly to the facts not only that a large proportion of those ordinarily engaged in production in the principal European countries were called up for military service but also that the energies of the rest were concentrated mainly on producing commodities required for the maintenance and supply of the armies in the field, and partly to the simultaneous creation of a huge additional volume of credit and currency for the purpose of financing the war. The cost of producing almost all the ordinary necessities of life naturally increased, and the increase in the cost of living led to demands for higher wages. These higher wages increased still further the cost of production, and a further rise in price levels followed. India has to some extent been protected from the operation of these factors. Shortage of freight limited the demands for her raw materials in 1917 and 1918. Exchange difficulties had the same effect, and in the last year the export of all foodstuffs has been prohibited. But the exigencies of the war forced the Government of India to make large additions to their rupee and note circulation with the result that the purchasing power of money declined, and though India was to some extent sheltered from the full operation of the causes which led to the great increase of prices in other countries, it was not to be expected that she could remain unaffected by the general upheaval in price levels which has taken place throughout the civilised world since the war began. The increase in the price of imported articles naturally reacted on the price of commodities produced in the country.

Causes of rise in prices of foodgrains in India.

55. But I am concerned principally with the prices of foodstuffs, and I append a table showing wholesale prices of certain foodgrains in India together with index numbers. The figures are based on statistics supplied by the Director of Statistics. The quotations are wholesale price quotations and were compiled on a uniform basis, viz., the average price prevailing in January and July of each year. Information regarding the markets selected will be found in appendix 4. I have included the quotations for the year 1900, a year of severe and widespread famine, in order that they may be compared with those of 1919.

The above tables, I think, fully bear out what has been said in the previous paragraph. Prices of foodgrains rose in the four years ending 1917, no doubt owing to the operation of the general causes to which I have referred. But the rise was comparatively small, and India escaped lightly in the first three years of the war. In 1918 the rise in price levels continued. It was accentuated by the sharp increase in the price of jawar and bajra following on the failure of those crops in 1917-18. Moderating factors were a slump in rice prices in Burma, Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, due in the first case to shortage of freight, and in the last two to shortage of railway wagons. Then came the crowning disaster of the widespread crop failure of 1918-19, and prices in 1919 rose by 73 per cent. compared with the previous year.

Extent of the rise

56. The above prices are the average of prices recorded at a few selected markets which are mostly big towns. In appendix V, I give a series of statements showing the trend of retail prices of different foodgrains in India since July 1913. The statistics represent the average of the retail prices recorded at numerous markets in each province and published fortnightly in the Gazette of India, and have kindly been furnished by Mr. Findlay Shirras. I have selected the prices prevailing in July 1913 as the pre-war level, since 1913-14 was a scarcity year in Northern and Central India, and in July 1914 there were still 150,000 people on relief in the United Provinces. The average index numbers given in the tables have not been properly weighted, and are merely a rough guide to the average rise in retail prices. I do not propose to comment at any length on these figures. They indicate clearly the extraordinary heights to which prices of foodgrains have risen in India in the past year. Wheat prices have risen more than those of rice over the whole period, but in the last year rice rose in price while the price of wheat slightly declined. The prices given, it may be noted, are those of 'common rice' in which term Burma rice is not included in most provinces. The biggest rise took place in the price of jowar and bajra, no doubt owing to the fact that these two crops failed in 1917-18 as well as in 1918-19. The control tended to equalise prices in the different provinces. For instance, in the rice-eating provinces (excluding Burma) prices of rice in September 1918 varied between a maximum of 4 seers and 7 chittaks per rupee in Bombay and a minimum of 9 seers per rupee in Assam. In September 1919 the variations were much smaller, the maximum being 4 seers and 2 chittaks in Madras, and the minimum 5 seers 15 chittaks in Assam. The control also tended to stabilise prices in deficit provinces, but in the country as a whole Government were not able to prevent prices from rising to heights which never before had been reached.

Effect of the rise in prices.

57. These high prices have caused the greatest distress and embarrassment in India. They have pressed most hardly on the poorer classes and on people living on small fixed incomes in the towns, but the effect of them has been felt by every section of the community as well as by Government and by other large employers of labour. It is small comfort to the Indian to be told that on the whole he has escaped more lightly than the people in most other countries. For instance, in Japan in July 1919 the wholesale prices of rice in Tokyo were 305 per cent. higher than in October 1910. But the fact which is painfully brought home to the Indian is that prices in 1919, as the table in the margin shows, have been considerably higher than ever before. High prices have promoted crime, unrest and discontent, and there has been a tendency to lay them at the door of Government. No one would pretend that the control has been perfect or that it has benefited all provinces in the same degree. It would have suited Bengal best if we had closed down exports of rice to all other provinces, but the adjoining provinces would have been gravely embarrassed. On the other hand, if we had consulted only the interests of the wealthy province of Bombay, we should have controlled only Burma rice and have allowed all other foodgrains to move freely within India. But in that case prices would have been driven up in less wealthy provinces. But it is hoped that this report will show that the rise of prices in India in 1919 was due to causes beyond control by any Government and that it will place the foodstuffs problem in its proper perspective. The crop failure of 1918-19 was one of the worst on record. It was not only severe, but it affected every province in a greater or less degree, and moreover the failure of the rains was aggravated in most provinces by a disastrous epidemic of influenza just when the sowing of the rabi crop should have been proceeding. In a normal year, the total production of foodstuffs in India, including Native States, may be estimated at somewhere near 80 million tons. Last year the loss of production due to the failure of the rains may be put, at a conservative estimate, at not less than 20 million tons. This crop failure moreover followed on a failure of the jowar and bajra crops in the previous year; it came at a time when prices had already begun to rise under the pressure of world causes; and the difficulties of the situation were increased by the fact that the Railways were not able properly to perform their normal functions of distribution. Whatever measures of control Government might take, they could only palliate these difficulties. All this year, India has been drawing largely on reserve stocks of food grains, and it was inevitable that prices should rise and that much hardship and distress should be caused. It was foreseen from the beginning that nothing could prevent this rise of prices, and as I have already said, the main preoccupation of the Foodstuffs Commissioner has always been with the question of supplies, not with that of prices. Literally we were afraid that in the middle of the year there would not be enough food to go round in some provinces, and the people of India have much to be thankful for. Had this year's monsoon again failed, instead of being on the whole exceptionally good, nothing could have saved India from appalling disaster. Reserve stocks of food must now be very depleted, and had there been this year, as there was last, a deficiency of production amounting to 20 million tons, it is impossible to see how the deficiency could have been made good. Now, of course, the problem has changed. The agricultural outlook is excellent almost every where in India, and all immediate difficulties as regards supplies are at an end. The Railway position has also improved, and the problem is now purely one of prices. The prices of kharif grains has already begun to fall owing to the harvest, and prices of rice are beginning to show a downward tendency. But reserve stocks must be so low that it will probably be a long time before grain becomes really cheap, and it is doubtful whether prices will ever return to their pre-war level. The Government of India have decided to keep on, for some time longer, their embargo on the export of foodgrains from India, and they propose to go as far as they safely can in removing all restrictions on the movement of foodgrains within India. But there are obvious dangers in the former measure. If the embargo is maintained too long, it will tend to drive the cultivator to grow other crops of which the export is not prohibited, and the safety margin afforded by the surplus foodgrains which ordinarily are exported will disappear. Regarded purely as a temporary measure, however, the continuance of the policy of the ring fence should help to bring down prices in India, and even when the fence is removed, the rising exchange should assist in the same direction. For the rest we can trust only to time and good harvests and to the restoration of more normal conditions not only in India but in the world generally.

58. There is one other remark which I must make before I close this report. We have just passed through the worst crop failure India has experienced since the famine of 1899-01. The crop failure was complicated by other factors to which I need not refer again, and prices of food grains were 100 per cent. higher than in 1900. Nevertheless, nothing has impressed me more in my numerous tours round India than the comparative absence of visible signs of distress, and the apparent ease with which the people stood up to the unprecedented level of prices. The same fact is commented upon by more than one Director of Agriculture in the Season and Crop Reports for the year 1918-19. Prices were nowhere higher than in the Central Provinces, yet the report records that distress was nowhere really serious or severe and that the agricultural population had come through a period of anxiety extremely well. The report for the United Provinces bears similar testimony. The agriculturists 'weathered the season without much apparent difficulty' and 'over a great part of the provinces,' it is said 'a degree of protection seems to have been attained which removes the worst danger of a failure of the rains.' Famine and scarcity were declared in numerous areas, and all the usual measures were taken. It would not have been surprising if the circumstances of this disastrous year had been reflected in the famine returns, but as a matter of fact, the numbers on relief were never very large. In 1900 the maximum number on relief at any one time was 6,332,211; in 1919 it was 565,348. In the five war years, rupees were absorbed in India at the rate of 22·08 crores per annum compared with an average of 8·78 crores in the preceding quinquennium. As pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Mant in his speech in the Legislative Council on the 17th September, the balance of trade, as deduced from the excess of exports of merchandise over imports minus private imports of treasure and council bills, was against India in the five years ending 1913-14 to the extent of 23 lakhs per annum; in the five years of war the balance in India's favour averaged £0·90 crores per annum. These figures point to an increase of wealth in India, and the history of the year which is just over indicates that no small portion of this wealth has passed into the hands of the cultivator. At any rate the most hopeful feature of a year, which otherwise was disastrous, is the clear evidence it affords of India's increasing power to withstand crop failure and famine prices.

59. This report has been written entirely from the point of view of the Foodstuffs Commissioner. The Directors of Civil Supplies in the different provinces were not my subordinate officers, and it would be impertinence on my part to comment on their work. But I should like to make it clear that the burden and heat of the day have been borne by them and by District Officers, ably assisted in many provinces by various non-official and semi-official organisations. Mr. Gubbay, I am aware, received the greatest assistance from Mr. Hullah, the Deputy Foodstuffs Commissioner, and when the latter was promoted, his place was ably filled by Mr Hardy. Mr. Green, the Superintendent of the Foodstuffs Branch, has been most useful. His work, like that of the Branch generally, was at times very heavy, and it was always cheerfully and satisfactorily done.

2. In exercise of the power conferred by sub-section (1) of section 6 of the said Act, the Governor in Council is pleased to establish union boards for each of the unions hereby declared and to fix 9 as the number of members of each union board.

3. In exercise of the power conferred by sub-section (2) of section 6 of said Act, the Governor in Council is pleased to direct that one-third of the members of each union board shall be appointed by the District Magistrate on the grounds that the electors are inexperienced and that such appointment is necessary for the due representations of minorities.

No. 4267 L.S-G.—The 5th January 1920.—In exercise of the powers conferred by clause (e) of sub-section (2) of section 101 of the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, 1919 (Bengal Act V of 1919), the Governor in Council is pleased to make the following rules:—

Rules under the Village Self-Government Act, 1919, regulating the conduct of meetings of Union Boards and the method of forming a quorum.

MEETINGS.

1. Meetings shall be held at the office of the Union Board or at such other place as the President may from time to time determine.

2. Meetings shall be either ordinary or special.

3. An ordinary meeting of the Union Board shall be held once every month on a day to be selected by the members of the Board at a meeting: Provided that if for any reason it is deemed inconvenient to hold any such meeting on the day thus selected, the President may fix another day for that particular meeting.

4. A special meeting of the Union Board may be called at any time by the President.

5. The President shall call a special meeting on a requisition signed by not less than three of the members. If he fails to do so within thirty days after any such requisition has been made, the meeting may be called by the members who signed the requisition, in the manner laid down in rules 8 and 10.

6. The following subjects shall be dealt with at special meetings only:—

(a) Scale of establishment and salaries (section 36).
(b) Imposition of union rate (section 37).
(c) Applications for the revision of assessment (section 39).
(d) Annual budget estimate.
(e) Removal of the President, the Vice-President or a member [sections 12 (1) (c) and 16].
(f) Salaries, appointment and dismissal of chaukidars and dafadars (sections 20 and 21).
(g) Loans.

7. All other subjects which come within the province of the Union Board may be dealt with at either ordinary or special meetings.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

8. At least seven days' notice of all meetings shall be given to every member: Provided that the annual budget estimate shall be circulated to all the members of the Board at least a fortnight before the date fixed for its consideration.

9. Accidental failure of service of notice on any member shall not invalidate the proceedings of any meeting.

10. The notice shall set forth clearly and fully the business to be transacted at the meeting.

QUORUM AND CONDUCT OF PROCEEDINGS AT MEETINGS.

11. Three of the members of the Union Board shall form a quorum. If at the time appointed for the meeting or within one hour thereafter, a quorum is not present, the meeting shall stand adjourned and shall be called again on a future day to be appointed by the President. The members present at such adjourned meeting shall form a quorum, whatever their number may be.

At special meetings the quorum shall be formed by at least one-half of the number of members; if, however, the board consists of 7 or 9 members, 4 or 5 members respectively shall form the quorum.

12. The President or, in his absence, the Vice-President (if any) shall preside at every meeting, and in the absence of both the President and the Vice-President, the members shall choose some one of their number to preside:

Provided that the provisions of this rule and of rule 11 shall not apply to a meeting convened for electing a President or a Vice-President.

13. At ordinary meetings the business shall be conducted in the following order:—

(a) The minutes of the last ordinary meeting and of any special meeting held since shall be read and, if approved as correctly entered, shall be signed by the President of such meeting.

(b) Business postponed from the last ordinary meeting shall be considered.

(c) A progress report of works shall be laid before the members.

(d) Accounts and statements shall be considered and passed.

(e) Motions and amendments duly moved and seconded shall be discussed.

14. At a special meeting, only the business for which the meeting was called shall be considered.

15. Notwithstanding anything contained in rules 13 and 14, it shall be competent for the Union Board at a meeting to transact any business other than that set forth in the notice under rule 8, if the majority of the members present agree to do so.

16. Every motion and amendment duly moved must be seconded, and until seconded, no debate thereon shall take place.

17. Every motion or amendment duly made and seconded and pressed to a division shall be reduced to writing and signed by the proposer and seconder before being put to the vote. Every such resolution or amendment shall be recorded in full in the proceedings, together with the number and names of voters for and against it

18. The President of the meeting may, for reasons to be recorded in writing and entered in the minutes of the proceedings,—

(a) rule that a motion or amendment is illegal or out of order, and

(b) make such alterations in a motion or amendment as shall in his opinion render it legal and in order; and may in case (a) refuse to put the motion or amendment to the meeting, and in case (b) refuse to put the motion or amendment to the meeting unless and until the proposer and seconder accept and sign the alterations made; and the decision of the President shall be final.

19. After a motion has been moved and seconded an amendment may be moved at any stage of the debate thereon.

20. On the discussion being concluded, in the event of several amendments having been proposed, the President of the meeting shall put the last amendment to the vote first ; if it is negatived he shall put the last preceding amendment ; and lastly, the first amendment ; and if all the amendments are lost the original proposition shall be put to the vote.

21. All questions which may come before the meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of equality of votes, the President of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

22. Voting by proxy is prohibited; and no member shall vote upon any motion or amendment unless he be present in person at the time when it is put to the vote.

23. When any business of which notice has not been given is considered at a meeting, the decision recorded or resolution adopted at such meeting shall be of no effect unless and until it is confirmed at the next succeeding ordinary meeting, or at a special meeting called expressly for the purpose.

24. It shall be competent to any member to move the adjournment of the debate or of the meeting. When such motion is seconded it shall be put to the vote. No motion for adjournment shall be admissible which proposes an adjournment beyond the next ordinary meeting.

25. The members shall be informed of the date of an adjourned meeting by a fresh notice. Rule 8 shall not apply in this case.

26. An adjourned meeting is not competent to transact any business save that which the original meeting left unfinished.

MISCELLANEOUS.

27. Unless not less than two-thirds of the members consent by signing a requisition; no subject once finally disposed of can be reconsidered within six months.

28. The minutes of proceedings shall be recorded in the vernacular.

29. The minutes of proceedings shall be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the President of the meeting and such book shall be open to the inspection of the public.

N. B.—The Commissioner of Excise reserves the right to establish new warehouses at such other places within the contract area as he may deem suitable or to close existing warehouses.

3. Where both mahua and molasses are mentioned in the schedule the spirit may be made from either material or from a mixture of the two in any proportions.

4. As the whole contract will not be given to one party, tenders should be submitted for parts of the contract either with or without a tender for the whole area.

5. The rates tendered must include the cost of carriage of the spirit from the distillery to the warehouses and must specify the price per London-proof gallon at which the tenderer is prepared to sell the spirit to licensed vendors at any of the warehouses enumerated in the schedule and at any additional warehouse or warehouses that may be opened. Spirit will be issued at prescribed strengths only and the price to be realised from the licensed vendors will be proportionate, according to strength, to the price specified in the contract. The price is at first credited into the Government treasuries and is paid to the contractors after the close of each month. Under special orders the payment of price may be withheld for any reason.

6. Spirit intended for warehouses must be conveyed in sound watertight and approved vessels, and the contractors will be bound to pay duty on any deficiency in excess of the allowable limit, in accordance with the rules for the time being in force in the Province from which the spirit is conveyed to the warehouses.

7. The contractor will be required to purchase from the existing contractors at the current cost price for the warehouse in which such spirit is stored the spirit in stock at the warehouses, but he shall not be bound to take over a quantity in excess of the probable requirements for fourteen days. The contractor must deposit not later than 21st March 1921 in each warehouse stock of spirit from his own distillery, equivalent to the probable requirements for one month.

8. The spirit must have been made in the contractor's own distillery in India.

9. In the case of the distillery not being situated in Bengal, the Commissioner of Excise will require satisfactory evidence that the plant is adequate to meet the total demands made upon the distillery, and he may require the contractor to instal additional stills and other accessories.

10. In case the Government premises at Russa in Tollygunge near Calcutta are used for the manufacture of spirit for wholesale supply, any additions to the existing buildings must be made at the expense of the contractor and he must maintain these and the existing buildings in repair. A fee of half an anna per proof gallon will be charged for the buildings and land.

11. The spirit intended for contract supply must be distilled at such strength as may be prescribed by the Excise Commissioner.

12. The contractor will be bound to provide all plant, viz., vats, pumps, pipes, etc., required for the storing, reducing and issue of liquor or, if there be any such plant belonging to the present contractor in the warehouses he will be required to purchase such plant which is in use and in serviceable condition at a valuation made, if necessary, in accordance with paragraph 20. All new plant proposed for erection must be approved by the Commissioner of Excise.

13. Water for reduction purposes is available at or near each warehouse, but the cost of conveying water, and of filtration, etc., must be borne by the contractor.

14. The contractor shall be bound to maintain at each warehouse such minimum daily stocks as may from time to time be fixed by the Commissioner of Excise.

15. The contractor must keep an agent at each warehouse and shall be responsible for reducing spirit to issue strengths and for all wastages and shrinkages.

16. Government shall not be held responsible for the destruction, loss or damage by fire, theft or any other cause whatsoever occurring to any spirit in the warehouse or in gauging, weighment or proof.

17. In case the contract be not renewed at its expiry the contractor will be bound to allow Government the right of pre-emption of the vats, pumps, pipes, etc., at a valuation made by two valuers according to paragraph 20 and in the case of the distillery being situated in this province this clause will apply to the distillery buildings and plant.

URGENT ORDERS.

The Board of Trade, Import and Export Licence Section, announces that in collaboration with the Department of Overseas Trade, an arrangement has been made whereby firms receiving orders which require immediate acceptance may telegraph details of any such order to the Department of Overseas Trade in order to ascertain whether a licence will be granted for the export of the goods if the order is accepted.

In the event of an applicant being promised a licence he will be enabled to deal with the order straightaway with the knowledge that upon application being made in the proper form to the Export Licence Department the licence will be granted.

The telegrams should be addressed to "Orders, c/o Advantage, Stock, London." They should give in each case in addition to the name and postal or telegraphic address of the applicant, the quantity and description of the goods comprised in the order and the name and address of the ultimate consignee if the goods are destined for a neutral country. In the case of orders from Allied or British Territory or from Territory in the occupation of troops of the Associated Governments, the consignee need not be stated; and it will be sufficient merely to give the country of destination. A reply of 24 words (1/3) must be prepaid.

Applicants are requested in their own interest to confine their enquiries to orders needing a very urgent decision, since the fewer the enquiries the more promptly can answers be given.

Any subsequent correspondence that is necessary in connection with the telegraphic enquiries should be addressed to the Comptroller General, Department of Overseas Trade (Export Facilities Section), 4, Queen Anne's Gate Buildings, Westminster, S. W. 1.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE LEAVE RULES OF OFFICERS SUBJECT TO THE EUROPEAN AND INDIAN SERVICE LEAVE RULES.

RESOLUTION.

(LEAVE AND LEAVE ALLOWANCES.)

HAVING considered the recommendations in the Report of the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India for the improvement of the leave rules of officers subject to the European and the Indian Service leave rules, the Government of India are pleased, with the approval of the Secretary of State, to sanction the following rules :—

(1) Gazetted officers subject to the European service or the Indian service leave rules may in future accumulate privilege leave up to a total of four months.

(2) Officers who take furlough under the European service leave rules may be granted by the authority sanctioning the furlough full average salary as defined in article 16 of the Civil Service Regulations, subject to the following conditions :—

(a) Average salary will be granted during furlough for a total period not exceeding one year in an officer's whole service.

(b) When an officer has taken furlough on average salary, he will be treated for all purposes as having taken furlough on half average salary for twice the period actually taken on average salary ; provided that, for the purposes of article 408 of the Civil Service Regulations, the actual period of furlough during which he has drawn average salary will count as service.

(c) The maximum period of furlough on average salary in each separate period of leave is eight months.

(d) The period during which an officer may draw during furlough average salary in lieu of the allowances ordinarily admissible should be so regulated that at the termination of the period he will still have six months' furlough due to him : but this condition is not absolute and may be relaxed at its discretion by the authority granting the furlough.

(e) The officer's average salary, if paid at the Home Treasury of the Government of India or in a Colony where the standard of currency is gold, will be converted into sterling at the same rate of exchange as ordinary furlough allowances, subject to the condition that it must not exceed the maximum limit of £2,400 a year. Orders as to a maximum rupee limit of allowances when drawn in India will be issued later.

(f) Privilege leave to the extent due may be prefixed to furlough on average salary, subject to a maximum of eight months for the two kinds of leave combined, on each occasion of such combination.

(g) Furlough on half average salary may be granted in continuation of furlough on average salary or of combined privilege leave and furlough on average salary.

(3) Article 264 and note 2 to article 826 of the Civil Service Regulations will be cancelled, and all officers will be permitted to take privilege leave or furlough on average salary or both combined preparatory to retirement. Similarly, officers who have passed the age of superannuation will be allowed to take privilege leave preparatory to retirement.

2. These orders will take effect from November 18th, 1919, the date of issue of the Secretary of State's sanction, and officers who were on furlough or combined leave on that date may be permitted to commute into furlough on average salary the furlough portion of the leave which they were then enjoying.

3. The concession sanctioned for officers subject to the European service leave rules in clause (2) of paragraph 1 above will be extended to gazetted officers who come under the Indian service leave rules on conditions which will be announced as soon as possible.

4. The necessary additions and corrections to the Civil Service Regulations will be issued in due course.

ORDERED that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

In the event of an applicant being promised a licence he will be enabled to deal with the order straightaway with the knowledge that upon application being made in the proper form to the Export Licence Department the licence will be granted.

The telegrams should be addressed to "Orders, care of Advantage, Stock, London." They should give in each case, in addition to the name and postal or telegraphic address of the applicant, the quantity and description of the goods comprised in the order and the name and address of the ultimate consignee if the goods are destined for a neutral country. GENERAL INFORMATION WITH REGARD TO WIRELESS TIME SIGNALS.

No. 3 (first publication).—The following particulars, etc., relative to the above, issued by the British Admiralty (No. 1993 of 1919), are republished:—

Former Notice.—No. 1264 of 1919 hereby cancelled.

The accompanying list of wireless time signals is intended to provide in a form suitable to give all information required by the wireless operator, a complete and up-to-date list of all time signals issued by wireless stations throughout the world. The details showing the method of transmission of any given time signal will be found in the "Admiralty List of Lights and Time Signals" or in the "International List of Radio-telegraph Stations" (The Berne List).

The times given in the 4th column of the list are expressed in the 4-figure notation employed for signalling during the war. The term "G. M. T." here means the civil mean time of the meridian of Greenwich, with the day commencing at midnight and the hours reckoned from 00 to 23. Where two times are joined by a hyphen, the times denote respectively the beginning and end of the signal.

Most of the wireless time signals at present transmitted are sent by means of an automatic arrangement operated by the pendulum of a chronometer situated at some observatory. In such cases absolute reliance may be placed upon the accuracy of the signal. There are, however, many stations in the world which are very suitably situated for transmitting time signals to ships which could otherwise not receive them, where it would be very difficult or impossible to establish an automatic system. In such cases "hand" signals may be provided; but in general these signals should not be trusted to be accurate within closure limits than about two seconds.

It is hoped that all wireless time signals will eventually be standardised so that there shall be only two kinds of signals transmitted, the automatic signals being all alike and quite distinctive from the hand signals. It is further expected that arrangements will be made for all time signals to be transmitted at times so selected that a ship with only one wireless operator will be able to read them. A similar scheme for wireless weather bulletins is being evolved.

Note.—This Notice will be subject to revision from time to time.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON PUBLIC INSTRUCTION IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1918-19.

CALCUTTA, THE 12TH JANUARY 1920.

RESOLUTION—No. 72Edn.

READ—

The Report on Public Instruction in Bengal for the year 1918-19.

1. During the year 1918-19 the total number of educational institutions, both public and private, rose from 50,887 to 51,701, but the pupils attending them decreased by 33,738, viz., from 1,965,273 to 1,931,535, a result attributed by the Director of Public Instruction to adverse economic conditions, failure of crops and the prevalence of influenza and other diseases.

The total expenditure rose by 22¾ lakhs and aggregated 277½ lakhs, of which 86 lakhs were granted from Provincial revenues, 15¾ lakhs were contributed by local bodies (mainly from grants placed at their disposal by Government), 126½ lakhs were realized from fees and 49¼ lakhs were obtained from private sources, such as subscriptions, donations, etc.

2. Controlling Agency.—There was no change in the Indian Educational Service cadre, but 10 posts were added to the Provincial Educational Service cadre and 92 posts to that of the Subordinate Educational Service. Seven officers joined the Indian Army Reserve of Officers and 11 returned from military duty.

3. Collegiate Education.—Two new arts colleges, teaching up to the intermediate standard, were established, one at Faridpur and the other at Bagerhat, the number of arts colleges for Indian male students consequently rising from 31 to 33. Of these, seven were under Government management, one was under municipal management, 12 were aided and 13 unaided. The number of students rose from 20,318 to 20,616 and the expenditure increased by Rs. 1,02,754, bringing up the total to 19¾ lakhs, of which nearly a third was derived from provincial revenues. The new system of post graduate teaching undertaken by the University of Calcutta led to a considerable decrease in the number of post-graduate students in the Presidency College.

4. Secondary Education.—While the number of high schools for boys showed an increase of 81, the number of middle schools fell by 46, owing mainly to the conversion of a number of those institutions to high schools. The middle vernacular schools are steadily losing popularity and, as the Director of Public Instruction observes, there is now little demand for them. On the other hand, there has been a steady increase of high schools, the number of which has arisen by 114, or 16 per cent., in the last two years. The increase of pupils has, however, been scarcely commensurate, the total of those under instruction rising in the same period by only 14,406, or 6·6 per cent.; there is reason to believe that in some places this disproportionate growth of schools and pupils is due to rival high schools springing up, with consequent overlapping. The manual instruction classes which were opened in 1915-16 as an experimental measure in selected secondary schools having proved successful, Government sanctioned their permanent retention during the year under review. The question of improving the secondary schools in the Presidency has long been engaging the attention of Government, and a scheme for their improvement involving a cost of Rs. 4,47,000 has recently been sanctioned.

5. Primary Education.—The number of primary schools for boys increased by no less than 1,486 in 1917-18, but during the year under review there was an addition of only 197 schools, while enrolment fell by 38,277 (8,068 in upper primary schools and 30,209 in lower primary schools). The decrease in the number of pupils is shared by all the divisions in the Presidency and is ascribed by the Director of Public Instruction to economic stress and the ravages of epidemic diseases. The number of Hindu pupils in primary schools for boys fell by 4·3 per cent. and that of Muhammadan pupils by 2·3 per cent.

During the year the Government of India sanctioned a recurring grant of 5½ lakhs for the improvement of primary education, and with the help of this grant the Education Department was able to resume the panchayati union scheme which was started some years ago in Eastern Bengal with the object of providing each union with a decent primary school, but had to be suspended owing to financial stringency. Under this scheme 119 primary schools for boys and 30 for girls were established during the year, and the grant will ensure similar progress each year, so that in course of time every union will have a primary school conducted on improved lines. Owing to this and other Imperial grants the proportion of the expenditure on primary education met from public funds has risen, with a corresponding lessening of the ratio borne by fees. On the creation of the Presidency public funds contributed under 30 per cent., but in the year under review they contributed nearly half of the expenditure. Large additional resources are required for further expansion. The number of schools is still inadequate, the provision for the training of teachers is insufficient, while the housing and equipment of the schools are poor.

6. Training of male teachers for Indian schools.—There were 125 institutions for the training of teachers for Indian schools at the end of the year, viz. 2 training colleges, 6 normal schools and 117 guru, muallim and special training schools. A number of improvements were effected in the David Hare Training College, viz., the opening of L.T. classes, the appointment of an additional professor, the creation of a number of stipends for the training of intending teachers and the provision of allowances for teachers under training from aided high schools. The college is still accommodated in a hired house, and a scheme has been drawn up for its re-establishment on improved lines in a building of its own. Altogether 134 trained teachers were turned out from the training schools for vernacular teachers, while 954 trained teachers passed successfully from the guru-training schools and special training schools. An important scheme designed to secure an increased outturn of trained teachers for primary schools received the assent of the Secretary of State after the close of the year.

7. Professional and Technical Education.—The study of law continues to maintain popularity, the number of students rising from 3,054 to 3,149. Out of 1,131 candidates who appeared at the B.L. final examination, 493 passed during the year. Owing to the demand for trained artizans consequent on the industrial development of the country, the number of students in technical and industrial schools increased. With the object of improving the training of mechanical engineers a committee was appointed by Government to work out a scheme for recruiting students for the mechanical engineering classes of the Civil Engineering College at Sibpur from among apprentices trained at the Eastern Bengal Railway workshops at Kanchrapara. A system by which visiting lecturers deliver courses of lectures in special subjects, such as municipal engineering, river engineering and structural engineering, has been instituted in the college. Proposals for the improvement of the Dacca School of Engineering, which have since been sanctioned, were submitted to Government during the year under review; a three years' course for the overseer department was introduced in the school as an experimental measure. Owing to the rise in the price of cloth, there was a demand for the development of hand-loom weaving, and six peripatetic centres of instruction were established. A scheme for giving practical training in mine surveying at the collieries to passed students of the survey school at Mainamati has been brought into effect.

8. Education of Indian girls and women.—There was noticeable expansion of female education during the year under review, the number of institutions for Indian girls increasing by 622 and the number of scholars by 8,215. The number of Hindu girls declined by 1,635, while that of the Muhammadan girls increased by 9,918. Progress is still hampered by the inadequate salaries paid to female teachers and by want of facilities for training them, while the female inspecting agency is not sufficiently strong and the school buildings are generally poor. With the help, however, of the Imperial recurring grants of 9 lakhs and 5½ lakhs some improvements have been effected, such as the enhancement of the pay of teachers in certain classes of primary schools, the extension of the scheme of panchayati union schools for girls, the appointment of two additional assistant inspectresses of schools, the improvement of the buildings of model primary schools for girls, etc. The work of zanana teachers is reported to have been unsatisfactory owing to the prevalence of epidemics, in consequence of which many teachers were absent on medical leave and a number of centres were closed for want of teachers. Peripatetic needlework teachers have done useful work which is appreciated by the Indian community, while the industrial and technical schools for girls and women, of which the most important are those at Kalimpong, Baranagar and Berhampore, are working satisfactorily.

On the creation of the Presidency the Hindu girls under instruction outnumbered the Muhammadan girls by 40,000; but since then the Moslem community has shown an increasing readiness to take advantage of the opportunities offered them for the education of the girls, while the Hindus have lagged behind. Since 1912-13 the number of the latter has risen by only 21,000 or 17 per cent.—during the year under review there was actually a small decrease—whereas the enrolment of Muhammadan girls in the same period has risen by 63,000, or a little over 70 per cent.

9. Education of Europeans.—There were altogether 10,005 European and Anglo-Indian pupils under instruction in schools working under the code for European schools. A munificent donation of 10 lakhs, intended mainly for the progress of education among the domiciled community, was received from a European citizen of Calcutta, and a trust fund was created for which a scheme of management was drawn up during the year. The trust provides, inter alia, for the creation of a number of scholarships for European and Anglo-Indian boys and girls for both general and professional education, either in India or in the United Kingdom.

10. Muhammadan education.—The total number of Muhammadan pupils in institutions of all kinds decreased by 8,561, the net result of an addition of 9,455 female scholars and a loss of 18,016 male scholars; but the falling off, which represents under 1 per cent., was less than among the Hindus, who lost 24,853 scholars or 2½ per cent. There was a regrettable decrease of 5,642 Moslem students in secondary schools, but there was no falling off either in professional colleges or in medical, engineering, technical and industrial schools, while in madrasahs the number increased by 1,571, or a little over 7 per cent. Additional grants were sanctioned during the year to enable District Boards to aid maktabs at a higher rate, and the number of those institutions rose by 1,600 and their enrolment by 36,000.

Sanction was given to the establishment of Islamic intermediate classes attached to the Dacca Madrasah and regulations were approved for Islamic Matriculation and Intermediate examinations, in conducting which the Education Department will be assisted by an Advisory Board.

11. The report of the Director is published for general information.

By order of the Governor in Council,

L. S. S. O'MALLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

REPORT

ON

PUBLIC INSTRUCTION IN BENGAL

FOR

1918-19.

CHAPTER I.

Introductory.

Total number of institutions and pupils.

1. The total number of all classes of institutions, both public and private, increased from 50,887 to 51,701, or by 814; while that of pupils attending them decreased from 1,965,273 to 1,931,535, or by 33,738. The increase of 814 institutions is the net result of a loss of 106 in the number of private institutions and a gain of 920 in that of public institutions. Public institutions increased from 48,303 to 49,223, while private institutions decreased from 2,584 to 2,478. A decrease in the number of pupils is recorded in the case of both public and private institutions. The number of pupils in public institutions decreased from 1,892,951 to 1,862,326, or by 30,625; and that of pupils in private institutions from 72,322 to 69,209, or by 3,113. The decrease was due to adverse economic conditions, failure of crops and the prevalence of influenza and other diseases. Of the total number of pupils in all classes of schools, 1,605,646 were males and 325,889 were females as compared with 1,648,078 and 317,195, respectively, in the preceding year.

Different classes of public institutions.

2. The number of public institutions, returned on the 31st March 1919, included 53 arts and professional colleges, 847 high schools, 1,966 middle schools, 44,925 primary and 1,432 special schools. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 52; 767; 2,019; 44,111 and 1,354, respectively. Classified according to management 412 of these institutions were under the direct management of Government and 2,976 under that of district boards and municipalities, while 38,671 were aided and 7,164 unaided. The corresponding figures for the preceding year were 416; 2,954; 37,096 and 7,837 respectively.

Total expenditure on public instruction.

3. The total expenditure on public instruction increased during the year from Rs. 25,493,539 in 1917-18 to Rs. 27,757,635, or by Rs. 2,264,096. Of this amount Rs. 19,427,078 represented direct and Rs. 8,330,557 indirect expenditure as compared with Rs. 18,478,285 and Rs. 7,015,254, respectively, in the previous year. The expenditure incurred from different sources during the years 1917-18 and 1918-19 is shown below :—

Head.		1918-19.	1917-18.	Difference—increase.
		Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1. Provincial revenues	...	8,627,261	8,246,905	380,356
2. District funds	...	1,336,207	1,249,821	86,386
3. Municipal funds	...	194,703	187,082	7,621
4. Fees ...	...	12,664,883	11,395,876	1,269,007
5. Other private sources	...	4,934,581	4,413,855	520,726
Total	...	27,757,635	25,493,539	2,264,096

The above table shows an all round increase of expenditure during the year, the most marked increases having been under the heads of "Provincial revenues" and "Fees" and "Other private sources." The increase under "Provincial revenues" was almost entirely due to the Imperial grants. The enhanced fee receipts testify to the ever-increasing popular demand for certain grades of education—a demand which persists in spite of economic distress.

CHAPTER II.

Controlling Agencies.

Indian Educational Service.

4. The strength of the Indian Educational Service cadre on the 31st March 1919 was the same as at the close of the year 1917-18, viz.—49 permanent posts on ordinary rates of pay, 4 on special rates of pay and 1 temporary post on the ordinary rate of pay.

Provincial Educational Service.

5. On the 31st March 1918 the Provincial Educational Service cadre contained 162 appointments : 161 permanent and 1 temporary. Eleven posts—10 permanent and 1 temporary—were added during the year under review. The cadre thus contained 173 appointments—171 permanent and 2 temporary—at the close of the year 1918-19. Among the additions during the year 3 appointments were created for certain secondary schools for girls, 2 for additional assistant inspectresses of schools and 6 for professors in colleges.

Subordinate Educational Service.

6. The Subordinate Educational Service cadre consisted of 809 appointments at the close of the year 1917-18. During the year under review 92 posts were added. Of these 53 appointments were created in consequence of the permanent provincialisation of the four high schools at Jhalakati, Bhola and Porojpur in the district of Bakarganj and at Jamalpur in the district of Mymensingh. The remaining 39 posts were created to improve the staff of certain colleges and secondary schools. The strength of the service on the 31st March 1919 was thus 901 posts.

Lower Subordinate Educational Service.

7. On the 31st March 1919, the number of appointments in the Lower Subordinate Educational Service was 728 as against 733 on the corresponding date of the preceding year, 16 posts having been abolished and 11 added during the year.

Officers not Within the classified lists.

8. The number of posts outside the graded educational services was 485 on the 31st March 1919, against 527 at the close of the previous year. During the year 9 posts were created and 51 abolished. Of the officers 32 drew salaries of Rs. 200 a month or more and 453 salaries ranging from Rs. 15 to Rs. 175. Besides these there were 393 additional appointments for teachers of guru-training schools (including muallim training schools) and model girls' schools carrying salaries ranging from Rs. 6 to Rs. 30 a month.

9. During the year under review the Assistant Director of Public Instruction for Muhammadan Education returned from military duty.

In addition to the above 409 officers there were 10 assistant sub-inspectors and 146 inspecting pandits (including inspecting maulvis and munshis) or guru instructors.

17. On the 31st March 1919 there were 927 students on the rolls of the college against 1,035 of the previous year. This number included 788 Hindus, 133 Muhammadans, while 6 students belonged to other communities. The total expenditure on the college was Rs. 3, 51, 831 towards which Provincial revenues contributed Rs. 2. 15. 487. The average cost of educating a student was Rs. 368-6-7 of which Government paid Rs. 225-10-3.

The new system of post-graduate studies considerably decreased the number of post-graduate students in the college. The seminars which had hitherto been worked only with the post-graduate students were thrown open, as an experimental measure, to the B.A. honours students.

Proposals for the extension of affiliation in botany to the intermediate standard were placed before the Government of India. This proposal was sanctioned after the close of the year. The provision for excursions, previously confined to geology students, was extended to the students of botany. Chemistry students paid a number of visits to factories of various kinds.

An attempt was made to increase the space available for games by levelling a fairly large plot of ground near the Baker Laboratory. The college sports which had not been held for a good many years were revived. Discipline in the college and the hostel was satisfactory throughout the year.

Dacca College.

18. The Dacca College returned 800 students on the last day of the year 1918-19, against 943 in the previous year. Of the total number of students 614 were Hindus, 185 Muhammadans and 1 Christian. Government spent Rs. 1, 91, 262 on the college and received Rs. 57, 810 from fees. the net cost to Provincial revenues being Rs. 1, 33, 452. The gross cost of educating a student was Rs. 216-9-8, of which Provincial revenues met Rs. 151-2-2. Discipline was satisfactory.

(3) Hooghly College.

19. The number of students in the Hooghly College increased from 247 to 219. The total direct expenditure on the college amounted to Rs. 53,933 towards which Government contributed Rs. 34,800. The average cost per student was Rs. 229-8 of which Government provided Rs. 148-1-4.

The college applied for affiliation in economics and philosophy up to the B.A. pass standard.

(4) Sanskrit College.

20. There were 168 students on the rolls of the college on the 31st March 1919, against 184 on the same date of the preceding year. The gross expenditure on the college and the net cost to Government were Rs. 28, 216 and Rs. 15,772 respectively. Every student, on the average, cost Rs. 147-11-8 towards which Government contributed Rs. 82-9-3.

(5) Krishnagar College.

21. On the 31st March 1919 the college had 264 students on its rolls, against 234 on the corresponding date of the previous year. The total direct expenditure was Rs. 67, 487. The cost to Government of the college during the year and the cost of educating each student were Rs. 42, 932 and Rs. 171-11-8, respectively.

During the year the affiliation of the college was extended in English to the B.A. honours, in mathematics to the B. A. and B.Sc. honours, and in philosophy to the B.A. pass standard. Many structural improvements were effected and extensions were made to the new annexe buildings. Increased accommodation was provided for the practical work of the intermediate chemistry classes.

(6) Chittagong College.

22. The college returned 370 students against 311 in the previous year. The number of Muhammadan students increased from 93 to 115. The total direct expenditure amounted to Rs. 43,368 towards which Provincial revenues contributed Rs. 13,130. The annual average cost per scholar was Rs. 123-8-10 of which Government paid Rs. 37-6-6. The college received affiliation in logic up to the intermediate standard, in English to the B. A. honours, and in political economy and political philosophy to the B. A. pass standard.

There were several cases of breach of discipline. In one case the student concerned was expelled.

23. The number of pupils on the 31st of March 1919 was 760, against 786 of the preceding year. Of these 617 were Hindus and 143 were Muhammadans. The total expenditure on the institution was Rs. 95,361, the cost to Government being Rs. 27,238. The cost of educating a student was Rs. 128-5-7, of which the net cost to Provincial revenues was Rs. 36-10-7. (7) Rajshahi College.

24. The Midnapore College is the only college managed by a municipal board. In addition to the annual grant of Rs. 7,848 for the maintenance of the college, Government paid Rs. 6,128 for the improvement of its buildings. The college had 223 students on its rolls of whom 209 were Hindus and 14 Muhammadans. The total expenditure of the college amounted to Rs. 18,858 and the average cost of educating a student was Rs. 86-1-9. Municipal College.

25. The number of "aided" private colleges during the year was the same as in 1917-18, viz., 12. The number on the rolls of those colleges was 6,412 of whom 5,601 were Hindus, 648 Muhammadans, while 163 came from other communities. Government contributed Rs. 1,25,227 towards the total expenditure of Rs. 5,81,802 during the year. The corresponding figures for the previous year were Rs. 1,24,135 and Rs. 5,36,336, respectively. The average cost of educating a student in aided colleges was Rs. 91-8-1 towards which Government contributed Rs. 19-11-2. Aided Colleges.

CHAPTER IV.

Secondary Education.

26. The total number of secondary schools of all types and grades showed an increase of 27 only, viz., from 2,786 to 2,813. The number of pupils declined from 413,162 to 404,469, that is by 8.693. The gross direct expenditure increased from Rs. 91,77,686 to Rs. 96,27,419. The average cost of a secondary school was Rs. 3,422-7-7 and the cost of educating a pupil Rs. 24-7-1. General statistics.

Secondary Education for Indian Boys.*

27. During the year under review there was an increase of 35 schools in the total number of secondary schools for Indian boys. The high schools increased from 731 to 812, or by 81, while middle schools decreased from 1,942 to 1,896 or by 46. The decrease of 26 in the number of middle English schools was mainly due to the raising of a number of those institutions to the high school status. The fall of 20 in the number of middle vernacular schools requires no explanation. There is now little demand for these institutions. Schools and pupils.

In spite of the increase in the number of schools, the number of pupils under instruction during the year fell from 396,465 to 388,038. The loss of 8,427 pupils was the net result of a gain of 8,532 pupils in high schools and a fall of 16,959 pupils in middle schools.

28. The total expenditure on secondary schools for Indian boys was Rs. 80,42,831. Towards this amount public funds contributed Rs. 9,65,937 and private sources Rs. 70,76,894. A comparison with the corresponding figures for 1917-18 reveals an increase in expenditure of Rs. 28,668 from public funds and of Rs. 3,59,748 from private sources. High schools cost Rs. 58,69,488, middle English schools Rs. 19,95,716 and middle vernacular schools Rs.1,77,627. The corresponding figures for the previous year were Rs. 54,33,861, Rs. 20,37,483 and Rs. 1,83,071. The increase in expenditure was, therefore, due to the increased number of high schools. Expenditure.

29. During the year under review proposals for the improvement of Government middle English schools and of high schools under municipal management were given effect to at an increased annual cost of Rs. 18,192. The main scheme of which these formed a part is still under the consideration of the Government of India. Improvements.

30. The number of high schools is increasing rapidly. In 1916-17 the number of such schools was 698, in 1917-18 it was 731 and in 1918-19 it rose to 812. Thus during the course of two years the number of high schools increased by 114, or by more than 16 per cent. The rise in the number of pupils has not been commensurate with that of the number of High schools.

* The secondary education of Indian girls and Europeans is dealt with in the respective chapters.

schools. In 1916-17 there were 2,18,070 pupils in high schools, in 1917-18—223,944 and in 1918-19—232,476. Thus during the course of the last two years the number of pupils under instruction in high schools increased by 14,406 only, or by 6·6 per cent. A remark which occurs in the report of the Inspector of Schools, Chittagong Division, viz., that in his area rival high schools are springing up at the detriment of efficiency and discipline would seem to be not without bearing on this disproportionate growth of schools and pupils.

The Hastings School, Alipore.

31. The school had 48 pupils on its rolls on the 31st of March 1919. Of these 24 were boarders and the rest day scholars. The gross income from school fees was Rs. 37,064, and the expenditure Rs. 49,231, the deficit of Rs. 12,167 being met from Provincial revenues. The question of the permanent retention of this school is under consideration.

Manual instruction.

32. During the year under review manual instruction classes were conducted in 9 Government and 11 aided high schools and in one middle English school. The experiment has proved a success and Government sanction was obtained for the permanent retention of those classes.

CHAPTER V.

Primary Education.

General statistics.

33. The total number of primary schools for boys and girls rose from 44,111 to 44,925, while the number of pupils fell from 1,409,316 to 1,384,201. The expenditure rose from Rs. 46,66,615 to Rs. 48,02,756. The average cost of a primary school and of educating a pupil in it during the year was Rs. 106-14-6 and Rs. 3-9-9, respectively.

Primary Education of Indian Boys.*

Schools.

34. The number of primary schools for Indian boys increased from 34,074 to 34,271, that is, by 197. Of these 3,138 were returned as upper primary and 31,133 as lower primary schools. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 3,174 and 30,900. A comparison of these figures shows that upper primary schools decreased by 36 while lower primary schools increased by 233. The table below compares the numbers of these schools in each division for 1917-18 and 1918-19 :—

	1917-18.		1918-19.

Pupils.

35. The number of pupils attending primary schools for Indian boys on the 31st March 1919 was returned as 1,144,383 as against 1,182,660 on the same date of the preceding year, these figures showing a decrease of 38,277 pupils. Of the total number of pupils 148,914 were in upper primary and 995,469 in lower primary schools. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 156,982 and 1,025,678. On comparison of these figures it is noticed that there was a decrease of 8,068 in the number of pupils attending upper primary schools and of 30,209 in that of the pupils attending lower primary schools, the net loss being 38,277. The decrease in the number of pupils was shared by all the divisions in the Presidency, Calcutta alone showing an increase and that of 405 pupils only. The loss of pupils is attributed to the rise in the cost of living, failure of crops and also to the ravages of epidemic diseases. The figures quoted above refer to primary schools only; they do not take into account the pupils reading in primary classes of secondary schools. The number of such pupils was 179,647. The total number, therefore, of pupils in the primary stages of instruction was 1,324,030. The figure for the preceding year was 1,372,959 of whom 190,299 were in secondary schools and 1,182,660 were in primary schools. These figures show a decrease of 48,929 in the total number of pupils in the primary stages of instruction in secondary and primary schools for Indian boys.

* Primary education of Indian girls and Europeans is dealt with in the respective chapters.

Progress of education among Hindus and Muhammadans.

36. Of the total enrolment in primary schools for Indian boys Hindus contributed 539,164 and Muhammadans 584,917 pupils. The corresponding figures for the preceding year were respectively 563,459 and 598,443. Thus the number of Hindu pupils fell by 24,295 or by 4·3 per cent. and of Muhammadan pupils by 13,526 or 2·3 per cent. Of the total male Hindu population 5·11 per cent. were in primary schools and of the Muhammadans 4·78 per cent. The percentages for 1917-18 stood at 5·34 and 4·89, respectively.

Expenditure.

37. In spite of the fall in the number of pupils in primary schools the total direct expenditure on these institutions increased, during the year under review, from Rs. 39,68,560 to Rs. 40,24,826. Of this amount Rs. 19,88,397, or 49·4 per cent. came from public funds and Rs. 20,36,429, or 50·6 per cent. from private sources. In the preceding year public funds contributed 45·6 per cent. and other sources 54·4 per cent. of the total expenditure. Almost one-half of the entire cost of primary education for Indian boys is now met from public funds. The figures in the table below show the gradual rise in the cost to public revenues on account of primary education :—

Year.	Percentage of total cost for primary education for Indian boys met from public funds.	Percentage of total cost for primary education for Indian boys met from private funds.
1916-17	43·4	56·6
1917-18	45·6	54·4
1918-19	49·4	50·6

The increase in the proportion of the expenditure from public funds is almost entirely due to the additional contributions received from time to time from the Imperial Government. A short description of these grants is given below.

Imperial grants—

38. The entire assignment was spent during the year through the district and municipal boards, the allotments for various objects remaining the same as in the year previous.

(I) The Durbar grant of Rs. 600,000.

Of the Imperial recurring grant of Rs. 3,65,000, a sum of Rs. 1,63,524 was permanently made over with effect from 1917-18 to district boards and municipalities for the maintenance of board primary schools and for the increase of the pay of the trained teachers employed in the aided primary schools and maktabs. The entire allotment of Rs. 1,63,524 was spent during the year under review by the boards. In addition to these disbursements a sum of Rs. 1,03,651 was spent during the year on various recurring and non-recurring objects. A portion of the grant of Rs. 3,65,000 has also been set apart for the provision of improved staffs for the guru-training schools. Proposals in regard to this much-needed improvement are still under the consideration of the Government of India.

(II) The grant of Rs. 3,65,000.

The entire amount of this special Imperial recurring grant was made over to district boards for expenditure on specified objects.

(III) The special Imperial grant of Rs. 2,85,000 for Eastern Bengal districts.

(iv) The grant of Rs. 4,50,000.

Out of the grant of Rs. 4,50,000 the aggregate expenditure during the year amounted to Rs. 2,87,665 as detailed below :—

	Rs.
(a) Special grant to the Midnapore District Board	15,000
(b) Enhancement of pay of trained teachers in aided primary schools and maktabs ...	1,83,365
(c) Increase of pay of teachers in girls' primary schools	34,800
(d) Increased stipends to guru pupils	37,000
(e) Construction of guru-training schools ...	17,500
Total ...	2,87,665

(v) The grant of Rs. 5,50,000.

During the year under review Bengal received a fresh Imperial recurring grant of Rs. 5,50,000 for the development of primary education. About two-thirds of this grant has been devoted to the improvement of primary education for boys and the balance to that for girls. During the year the following expenditure was sanctioned :—

	Rs.
(a) Increase of pay of teachers in primary schools for girls	41,640
(b) Equipment grant to girls' primary schools ...	2,280
(c) Increased grants to girls' primary schools ...	34,000
(d) Establishment of panchayati union schools ...	1,49,000
(e) Acquisition of site for model girl's school at Bankura	2,071
(f) Strengthening the female inspecting staff ...	12,134
(g) Education of daughters of Indian midwives ...	5,400
(h) Increased grants to maktabs	52,021
(i) Increase of pay of teachers in aided primary schools	48,371
(j) Sonthali education in Dinajpur	3,924
(k) Grants to the society for the improvement of backward classes	8,000
(l) Construction of buildings for guru-training schools	5,206
Total ...	3,64,050

Improvements effected.

39. The new grant of Rs. 5,50,000 enabled the Education Department to proceed with the panchayati union school scheme, progress in which had long been held up for want of funds. One hundred and nineteen board primary schools for boys and 30 such schools for girls were established during the year The provision made under this head will ensure similar progress every year and in a few years every union in the Presidency will be provided with a comparatively effective primary school. The income of untrained teachers in aided primary schools from public funds has been raised to a minimum rate of Rs. 2 per mensem. The district boards have been provided with funds which will enable them to increase their grants to maktabs to 50 per cent. in excess of the grants paid to the ordinary primary schools.

Curricula.

40. Two distinct curricula still remained in force in Eastern and Western Bengal, respectively. A co-ordinated curriculum for the whole Presidency was drawn up during the year. It is now under the consideration of Government.

Primary Education Act of 1919.

41. The Primary Education Bill introduced in the Legislative Council by the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray was passed into law in February 1919. The object of the Act is to secure a gradual extension of facilities for primary education in municipal and other selected areas. If local bodies can take advantage of this Act, the condition of primary education should benefit materially.

Conclusion.

42. The Imperial recurring grants which amount to Rs. 22,50,000 have made it possible to start some useful schemes. But the number of primary schools is still hopelessly inadequate—there are areas and communities still practically untouched; the provision for training elementary school teachers is insufficient and their remuneration is below the minimum which efficiency demands; the housing of schools is bad and their equipment is poor. In short, the provision of an adequate system of elementary education for the masses is still one of the many unsolved problems of the Bengal Presidency. Large additional resources are an essential condition of any real advance.

CHAPTER VI.

The Training of Male Teachers for Indian Schools.

Number of institutions and pupils.

43. On the 31st March 1919 there were 125 institutions for the training of masters for Indian schools and their attendance stood at 2,563. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 128 and 2,634, respectively. The decline in the number of institutions was due to the discontinuance of a small training class at Bhowanipur, conducted by the London Missionary Society, to the abolition of the Kola guru-training school in the district of Jessore and to the amalgamation of the two guru-training schools at Agla and Dacca for the establishment, at the latter place, of a training school of the improved type. Of the total number of training institutions 2 are training colleges, 6 normal schools and 117 guru, muallim and special training institutions.

Training College.

44. Both the training colleges in Bengal are affiliated to the University of Calcutta for the degree of Bachelor of Teaching and for the Licence in Teaching. The courses prescribed for those examinations require thorough revision. They are far too comprehensive for a one-year course and are to a large extent divorced from the actual conditions of school work.

(i) David Hare Training College.

45. The David Hare Training College opened an L. T. class for the first time during the year under review. There were on the rolls on the 31st of March, 1919, 42 students, 26 in the B. T. and 16 in the L. T. class. Of these 2 were Indian Christians, 31 Hindus and 9 Muhammadans. Twenty-six candidates appeared in the B. T examination of whom 18 passed, 8 being placed in the first division. The number of passes in the L. T. examination was 9 out of 16 examinees. The direct expenditure on the college amounted to Rs. 37,741. The average cost for training each student was Rs. 898-9-6, the entire amount being met from Provincial revenues.

The year under review witnessed various improvements, the most important of which were the extension of affiliation, the appointment of an additional professor, the creation of a number of stipends for the training of intending teachers, the provision of allowances for teachers under training from aided high schools and the inauguration of a scheme for the payment of honoraria to the headmasters and certain selected trained teachers in the practising schools with a view to improving the arrangements for the practical work of the students. The college continued in its old premises and the question of accommodation still remains unsolved.

(ii) The Dacca Training College.

46. At the close of the year the Dacca Training College had 56 students on its rolls. Of these one was an Indian Christian, 37 were Hindus and 18 Muhammadans. The session opened with 61 students, 28 in the B. T. and 33 in the L. T. class, but one B. T. student withdrew owing to a breakdown in health and three L. T. students retired before the completion of the course; one student died of small-pox. Three of the B. T. students came on deputation from the Government of His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderadad. Twenty-five students sat for the B. T. examination of whom 21 passed, 13 obtaining first classes. Of 26 candidates who appeared at the L. T. examination 22 were successful, one gaining distinction. The total direct expenditure on the college was Rs. 60,549 of which Provincial revenues met Rs. 59,199 and private sources the balance of Rs. 1,350. The average cost of training each student was Rs. 1,026-4-1.

The practical work of the college was carried on in the Dacca Collegiate, the Moslem High and the Armenitola High School. As in the case of its sister institution in Calcutta, honoraria were paid to certain members of the staff of the practising schools for their assistance in the practical work of the students.

Training Schools for Vernacular teachers— (i) General statistics.

47. The number of these schools continued to be the same as before, viz., 6, five of which are managed by Government, and one, an aided institution, by the Church Missionary Society. These schools had 509 pupils on the 31st of March 1919, as compared with 513 on the same date of the preceding year. The expenditure on them increased from Rs. 83,021 in 1917-18 to Rs. 87,051 in 1918-19 of which as much as Rs. 82,125 came from Provincial revenues. The number of trained teachers turned out from these institutions was 134 against 136 in the year before.

(ii) Improvements effected.

48. During the year under review the Muhammadan hostel of the Dacca Normal School, which occupied a portion of the school building, was removed to a rented house and in the room, set free, a practising school was formed by the transfer of one section of each of the lower forms of the Collegiate School. Thus the training school has now been provided with a practising school on its own premises. The sanitary arrangements of the Chittagong Normal School were improved. The practising school attached to the Rangpur Normal School was raised to the status of a middle English school. A special capital grant was made to the Calcutta Training School for the provision of books and appliances for the improved teaching of geography.

The accommodation of the Rangpur and Calcutta Schools remains unsatisfactory. The question is mainly one of funds and the question of providing both with better quarters is under consideration.

Guru*-Training schools.

49. The number of guru-training schools and special training classes returned on the 31st March 1919 was 117 of which 112 were Government and 5 were aided institutions. During the year under review, the number of Government schools decreased by 2. This was due to the abolition of one school in the Presidency Division and the amalgamation of two schools in the Dacca Division. The number of schools reserved for the training of Moslem teachers remained the same as in the previous year viz., 6. The number of gurus and muallims under-training on the last date of the year was 1,956 against 2,014 in 1917-18. Out of 1,352 candidates 954 were successful in the final examination. The maintenance charges of all the institutions amounted to Rs. 2,35,500 towards which Provincial revenues contributed Rs. 2,10,873.

A sum of Rs. 1,50,000 was made available during the year from the Imperial grants of Rs. 9,00,000 and Rs. 5,50,000 for the provision of improved buildings for guru-training schools. With this money the work of construction was started in connection with two building schemes, one for the guru-training school at Bankura the other for the muallim training school at Hooghly and building operations, begun in the previous year, at Thakurgaon and Kurigram were continued.

CHAPTER VII.

Professional and Technical Education.

Law colleges and classes.

50. The institutions for the study of law were, during the year, the University Law College, Calcutta, and the law classes attached to the arts colleges at Hooghly, Krishnagar, Dacca, Rajshahi, Chittagong, Midnapore, Berhampore and the Ripon College, Calcutta. Of these 9 institutions the law classes at the Hooghly College remained closed for want of students. The total number of law students returned on the 31st of March 1919 was 3,148 against 3,054 on the corresponding date of the year previous. Of these 2,878 were Hindus, 257 Muhammadans, while 13 came from other sections of the community against 2,820; 224 and 10, respectively, in the preceding year. The total direct expenditure on law institutions amounted during the year to Rs. 2,73,006 of which Rs. 30,000 was paid from Provincial revenues. At the B. L. Final Examination 1,131 candidates appeared of whom 493 passed.

Pleaders' Survey Examination Board.

51. The short training classes at Dacca and Sibpur continued. Out of 8 registered candidates 3 appeared at the examination held in February 1919 and one passed.

During the year the board formulated a scheme for teaching pleaders the uses and relative values of the old and new revenue maps and plans by a series of lectures. The matter is now under the consideration of Government. The question of the training of an agency to execute Civil Court Commissions was also considered by the board.

Amin Examination Board.

52. The first examination under the auspices of the board was held in September 1918. The number of candidates appearing in the examination was 59 of whom 48 passed. The cost of the examination amounted to Rs. 758 inclusive of the travelling allowances of the touring examiner in practical surveying.

Civil Engineering College, Sibpur.

53. The number of students attending the engineering department of the college was 91, being an increase of 5 over the figure in the previous year. In the apprentice department the number of students was 237 against 214 in the preceding year. The artizan classes had 58 pupils against 53 in the year before. Of the total number of students 310 were Hindus, 20 Muhammadans, 54 Christians, 1 Buddhist and 1 Parsee. The total net expenditure on the college amounted to Rs. 2,30,096, of which Rs. 2,02,561 came from Provincial revenues. The corresponding figures for the previous year were, respectively, Rs. 2,16,076 and Rs. 1,93,477. The average cost of educating a student was Rs. 707-15-9 of which Rs. 623-4-3 came from public funds. The total value of the work turned out in the college workshops aggregated to Rs. 17,931.

During the year Government appointed a committee to work out the scheme propounded by the governing body of the college for recruiting students for the mechanical engineering classes from amongst those apprentices who had completed 4 years of their apprenticeship at the Eastern Bengal Railway workshop at Kanchrapara. The scheme is to be capable of extension to other railway workshops. A proposal to secure the services of practising engineers and other experts to deliver courses of special lectures in various subjects to the students of the college was submitted to Government, and sanction was obtained to the appointment of a visiting lecturer in architecture. The appointment of such lecturers in other subjects has been sanctioned by Government since the close of the period under review. The college rules were revised during the year.

Dacca School of Engineering.

54. The school had 275 pupils on its rolls as compared with 252 in the previous year. The artizan classes had 81 students, of whom 15 completed the course during the year. This department is becoming popular. The total expenditure on the school amounted to Rs. 58,757 against Rs. 52,613 for the previous year. The total value of the work turned out was Rs. 3,092 for outside work, and Rs. 2,983 for work done to the school and its workshops. The discipline on the whole was satisfactory.

A scheme for the general improvement of the Dacca School of Engineering was submitted to Government during the year under report and is under consideration. It has been decided to reserve annually from the next session five places in the sub-overseer classes and one in the first-year overseer class for qualified candidates from Assam. The three-year course for the overseer department, sanctioned by Government, was introduced from the beginning of the session on an experimental basis for three years. Rules for the artizan department of the school were revised during the year.

Serampore Weaving Institute and Outlying Centres.

55. In the artizan classes the total number of students was 91 of whom 43 passed out. Of these, 28 are working at their own homes on fly-shuttle looms, 8 have taken employment in hand-loom factories or under Government and the remaining 7 left the institute before the completion of their course. The higher classes had 31 students during the year. The course for these classes has been extended with effect from the year under report from 2 to 3 years. Also the course of the outlying district schools has been extended from 6 months to 1 year. Dyeing classes have been opened during the year. The total direct expenditure on the institute amounted to Rs. 26,718 of which Government met Rs. 26,954

The following statement furnishes particulars regarding the outlying centres :—

Government have sanctioned the establishment of six peripatetic centres of instruction in weaving at Bankura, Pabna, Tangail, Malda, Dacca and Khulna. The instructors were directed to make a survey of their districts and to ascertain the actual condition of the hand-loom weaving industry before they began operations. This they have now done.

Government Commercial Institute, Calcutta.

56. The number of pupils who joined the day classes was 61 in the first year and 10 in the second year, and the students in the evening classes totalled 89, the great majority of whom took shorthand, typewriting and book-keeping. No class could be formed during the year either in banking and currency or in annuities and insurance. At the final examination 4 candidates passed out of 10, and at the special examinations 38 passed out of 79. The total expenditure during the year was Rs. 24,320 and the income Rs. 4,475. Sanction has been obtained to the creation of a special post outside the Indian Educational Service for the Principal of the institute.

Government School of Art, Calcutta.

57. The total number of students on the 31st March 1919 was 246 against 267 in the previous year. The decrease was mainly due to the influenza epidemic, on account of which the school was practically closed for three months. The elementary, industrial, draftsman, fine art and teachers' departments had 102 ; 46 ; 35 ; 59 and 4 pupils, respectively. The modelling section of the industrial department undertook a few useful outside commissions, which were successfully executed. Of the total number of students 143 were Hindus, 11 Muhammadans, 6 Christians, 1 Buddhist and 85 belonged to other communities. In the hostel there were 38 boarders. During the year the direct expenditure on the institution aggregated Rs. 32,780, of which Rs. 28,232 came from Provincial revenues. A number of passed students secured employment on salaries ranging from Rs. 20 to Rs. 150 per month.

Joint Technical Examination Board.

58. There were two sub-overseer examinations in the year under review, the first in July 1918 and the second in March 1919. The first was a supplementary examination for the candidates from Sibpur who commenced the course in November 1917. The total number of candidates at the two examinations was 167 of whom 90 passed, the percentage of passes being 53·9 against 60 in the year before. In the overseer examination 58 passed out of 71, or 81·7 per cent. against 70 per cent. in the previous year. The figures for the overseer examination include 16 candidates appearing in mechanical and electrical branch of whom 13 were successful. The numbers appearing in this branch are increasing. The syllabuses of the overseer and sub-overseer courses, as well as the rules for these examinations were revised during the year.

The figures in this paragraph include the candidates from Bihar and Orissa.

Mining instruction in the Coal Fields.

59. During the year under review the Mining Education Advisory Board controlled the three centres at Deshergarh, Jamuria and Raniganj in Bengal, besides the two centres at Jharia and Sijua in Bihar and Orissa. Out of 107 students eligible for the sessional examination from the five centres only 43 appeared, of whom 26 passed. The number on the rolls of those classes aggregated 288 against 312 in the previous year. The vernacular classes under Babu Hemanta Kumar Sen had an average attendance of 79.

The scheme for the practical training in mine surveying at collieries of passed students of the survey school at Mainamati was given effect to during the year under report. One student of the school was posted for training at the Ghersick colliery.

City and Guilds London Institute Technological examinations.

60. Forty-three candidates appeared in textile subjects and an equal number in other subjects. The numbers are increasing steadily. Thirty-one passed in the textile subjects and 11 in non-textile subjects. As in the year before, special examinations in domestic subjects were held in November 1918 at Kurseong and Calcutta. Thirty-five appeared in these examinations of whom 30 passed. An examination in practical cookery was held for the first time. Encouraging and instructive reports were received from London on the results of these domestic examinations.

"B" Classes

61. At the school final examination of "B" class held in 1919, 44 candidates appeared and 24 passed. These figures do not include candidates from Bihar and Orissa. The corresponding figures for the preceding year were 52 and 34, respectively.

Technological Institute, Calcutta.

62. The original proposals of 1913 for the establishment of a Technological Institute in Calcutta were reconsidered by the Department during the year and a reduced scheme was submitted to Government.

The Bengal Technical Institute.

63. The Bengal Technical Institute rendered valuable assistance in the manufacture of munitions by placing its machinery at the disposal of Government.

State Technical Scholarships.

64. During the year under review State scholarships of the annual value of £150 for the promotion of technical training were awarded to Mr. Jatindra Mohan Das and Mr. E. C. Burlow, for iron-smelting and leather tanning, respectively.

CHAPTER VIII.

Education of Indian Girls and Women.

Institutions

65. The number of public institutions of all classes for Indian girls returned on the 31st of March 1919 was 10,811 against 10,189 on the corresponding date of the previous year. Of these 3 were arts colleges, 2 training colleges, 13 high schools, 48 middle schools, 10,636 primary schools. 9 training schools and 100 other special schools The corresponding figures for the year before were, respectively, 3 ; 2 ; 14 ; 54 ; 10,020 ; 9 and 87. The Gardner Memorial school, Calcutta, was permanently closed during the year and this accounts for the loss of a high school. The fall in the number of middle schools was not a real loss. Five such schools were returned as primary schools for want of pupils in the secondary stages. Only one aided middle vernacular school in the Rajshahi Division was closed. The primary schools increased by 616 ; this is a hopeful feature considering the economic stress through which the country passed during the year.

Pupils.

66. The number of pupils including those reading in mixed schools increased from 299,558 to 307,773 or by 8,215. Of the total number of girls and women 148,859 were Hindus, 151,084 were Muhammadans and 7,830 belonged to other communities. It is to be noticed that while the number of Hindu girls declined by 1,635 that of the Muhammadans increased by 9,948.

Controlling Agency.

67. During the year under review the female inspecting agency was strengthened by the addition of 2 assistant inspectresses for work in the eastern part of the Presidency. The total strength of the female inspecting staff now comprises 2 inspectresses and 12 assistant inspectresses.

Collegiate Education—Arts Colleges.

68. The Bethune College still occupies the same building as the collegiate school and suffers from lack of accommodation. The removal of the old stables and the erection of an airy and convenient block of laboratories would relieve the pressure on the existing botanical laboratory. But no further improvements or extension of the college are possible in its present site. The Principal reports that for want of affiliation in mathematics and botany up to the B. A. standard and in history up to the honours standard the college is losing some of its best students.

During the year under review a Company of Girl Guides was established as a result of a course of lectures on first-aid delivered to the ladies of the staff by Lady Stewart.

The college had 85 students on its rolls against 81 on the same date of the year before. The total direct expenditure on the college amounted to Rs. 46,663 towards which Government contributed Rs. 41.750. The gross average cost of educating a student was Rs. 536-5-8 of which Rs. 479-14-2 came from Provincial revenues. The library grant of the college was raised from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,000 per annum.

In addition to the Bethune College there are two other arts colleges for Indian girls; viz., the Diocesan College and the Loreto House. The former had 68 pupils on its rolls and the latter 11.

Secondary Education—(1) High Schools.

69. Of the 13 high schools for Indian girls 4 are under Government management and 9 are aided. They had 2,356 scholars on the rolls against 2,339 in the previous year. The loss of one school has not, therefore, reduced the number of pupils. As in the previous year the Secretary to the St. John's Ambulance Association delivered a course of lectures in first-aid to the staff of the Eden High School, Dacca. Five teachers and 7 pupils went in for the first-aid examination and gained certificates.

(2) Middle schools.

70. Of the total number of middle schools returned on the 31st of March 1919, 5 were under public management and 43 were aided institutions. There were 5.475 pupils in them against 5,626 in the preceding year. Twenty-four schools were of the middle English status and an equal number taught the middle vernacular course.

Primary Education.

71. With the help of the allotments from the Imperial recurring grants of Rs. 9,00,000 and Rs. 5,50,000 it was possible to effect the following improvements in the primary education for girls:—

(a) The pay of whole-time teachers working in primary schools for girls which were in receipt of aid from local bodies was increased by Rs. 2 per mensem.

(b) The grant-in-aid allotments of the inspectresses were increased by Rs. 34,000 per annum for new and enhanced grants to schools.

(c) Provision was made for the extension of the scheme of panchayati schools for girls. Funds were allotted during the year under review for the construction of 30 such schools and it is hoped to build same number of schools every year until the scheme is complete. These schools work under the direct control of district boards, necessary funds for both capital and recurring expenditure being provided by Government.

(d) A scheme for educating the daughters of indigenous midwives was inaugurated during the year. The object of the scheme is to attract such girls into ordinary primary schools for girls and also to induce teachers to take them in. It was introduced, in the first instance, on an experimental basis, in the Presidency and Dacca divisions only.

(e) Provision was made for the improvement of buildings of model primary schools for girls. The scheme which was given effect to in 1918-19 contemplates the provision of improved accommodation for two model girls' schools every year.

(f) A scheme for the establishment in Calcutta of a training class for Muhammadan women teachers has been sanctioned by Government.

(g) The number of assistant inspectresses of schools in the eastern part of the Presidency was increased by two. This has tended to improve and stimulate education throughout the circle.

(h) Provision was made for certain minor schemes which included, among others, the grant of an increased number of stipends to the Ballyganj Training School and the establishment of a training class attached to the Brahmo Girls' School, Calcutta.

Zanana Education.

72. During the year 64 zanana teachers worked in the Presidency. Except in a few centres the work was reported to be unsatisfactory, the main cause being the prevalence of epidemics. Many teachers frequently went on medical leave and many centres remained closed for want of suitable teachers. The zanana central gatherings, however, worked well. These gatherings are ordinarily intended for primary work, but at the central gathering at Krishnagar an interesting experiment was made in secondary as well as primary work. Miss Brock reports on this class as follows :—

"The class is composed of young married girls and women for the most part of good family and an education is being given them in both English and Bengali. The work is managed by a committee of educated Indian ladies and is in a most satisfactory condition. Such classes could be started in any large town if any cultivated and energetic Indian woman could be found for this pioneer work."

Education of Muhammadan girls.

73. The annually increasing number of girls under instruction is a sure indication of the increasing demand for the education of girls. The greatest obstacle to progress is the lack of competent trained women teachers. The proposed Muhammadan female training class in Calcutta is urgently needed.

Training of teachers—(a) Secondary training.

74. With the exception of the training classes attached to the Diocesan College there is no college in Bengal for the training of women teachers for secondary schools. It has not yet been possible to give effect to the proposed secondary training college scheme already approved by Government. The establishment of a training college is urgently needed.

(b) Primary training.

75. The number of training institutions for teachers of primary schools for girls remained the same as in the year before, viz., 9. Two of these are managed by Government and the remaining 7 are conducted on an aided basis. In Western Bengal 10 girls passed the senior examination and 40 the junior. At the Dacca departmental examination 13 passed the teachers' test.

Industrial and Technical education.

76. The number of industrial and technical schools for girls and women increased from 24 to 29, and that of pupils attending them from 714 to 820. All these institutions are doing good work. The most important of them are the Industrial School at Kalimpong, the Industrial Home at Baranagar and the Industrial School at Berhampore.

Needle work.

77. The peripatetic needle work teaching scheme is proving a success and it is proposed to extend its scope.

Physical education.

78. Physical education is, as a rule, neglected. A few high schools teach drill, but the teachers are not competent. This is one of the most important questions to which extended training facilities must be directed.

Conclusion.

79. During the year the progress of girls' education was in many respects very satisfactory. Much, however, remains to be done especially in the matter of training women teachers. The supply of trained women teachers lags far behind the demand which grows daily more insistent.

CHAPTER IX.

Education of Europeans.

Schools.

80. The number of European schools in Bengal working in accordance with the code of regulations remained the same as in the year before, viz., 80. Of these 62 were for general instruction and 18 for special. Of the institutions for general instruction 14 are graded as higher secondary, 8 as secondary, 17 as higher elementary and 23 as elementary schools.

Pupils.

81. On the 31st of March 1919 there were 10,005 pupils under instruction ; the figure for the corresponding date of the previous year was 10,046. Of the total number of pupils 3,772 were in higher secondary schools, 1,045 in secondary schools and 4,737 in elementary and higher elementary schools. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 3,679 ; 1,185 and 4,823, respectively. Special schools had 451 pupils as against 379 in 1917-18.

The total number of European and Anglo-Indian pupils was 9,259 as compared with 9,561 in the preceding year. Of these 4,947 were boys and 4,312 girls. The corresponding figures for the last year were 5,242 and 4,319, respectively. The number of non-European pupils was, 746 of whom 614 were boys and 132 girls.

Expenditure.

82. The total direct expenditure on the education of European and Anglo-Indian children for the year 1918-19 was returned at Rs. 13,20,512 as compared with Rs. 12,27,915 for the preceding year. The money spent was derived from the following sources :—

	Rs.
(a) Provincial revenues	5,33,228
(b) Municipal funds	12,510
(c) Fees	5,30,001 and
(d) Subscriptions, endowments, etc.	2,44,773

The corresponding figures for the year before were, respectively, Rs. 4,96,142 ; Rs. 19,031 ; Rs. 5,12,130 and Rs. 2,00,562.

Scholarships.

83. The total value of scholarships and stipends paid during the year was Rs. 33,665 as against Rs. 28,689 during 1917-18. Besides the scholarships paid from Provincial revenues, 10 scholarships at rates varying from Rs. 10 to Rs. 20 a month were awarded from the Doveton Trust Fund.

A generous gift of Rs. 10,00,000 was received in 1918-19 from a European citizen of Calcutta. The scheme of management of the fund was drawn up during the year under review. Among other objects the trust provides for the creation of a number of scholarships for European and Anglo-Indian boys and girls for both general and professional education either in India or in the United Kingdom. The operations of the trust began after the close of the year under review.

Teachers.

84. There were 626 teachers in European schools against 630 in the previous year. Of these 285 were trained and 341 untrained. The figures for the preceding year were 284 and 346, respectively. There was one teacher employed on an average for every 16 pupils. This is satisfactory numerically, but the quality of the personnel leaves much to be desired from the point of view of training and of pedagogic and academic attainments.

Training of teachers.

85. During the year under review the Inspector of European Schools conducted a survey of the European teaching profession in Bengal and submitted his report to the Director.

There is only one recognised institution for the training of European teachers in Bengal, viz., the training class for women attached to the Dow Hill School, Kurseong. There were 16 students in residence during the year. The annual examination held by the Inspector of European Schools, Bengal, and the Inspectress of schools, Presidency and Burdwan divisions, was satisfactory in its results.

The training classes held at the Young Women's Christians Association by the Diocesan Board worked throughout the year. The syllabuses for these classes were revised.

Vocational Training.

86. The number of higher elementary schools with a class or classes following the recognised supplementary courses was 11. Of these five were for boys and six for girls. The number of pupils on the rolls on the 31st of March 1919 was 135 (89 boys and 46 girls).

There were 57 students on the rolls of the commercial and technical classes attached to the Young Women's Christian Association, Calcutta. During the year these classes were affiliated to the Government Commercial Institute. Of the 57 students, 25 were learning shorthand and the remaining 32 typewriting. The staff consisted of two whole-time and two part-time teachers. The Bengal-Nagpur Railway Apprentices' Night School at Kharagpur had 45 students on its rolls. Towards the total maintenance cost of this school which amounted to Rs. 2,898 Government contributed Rs. 470. The sessions of the Calcutta Technical School were held in the premises of the Government School of Art. There were 178 students learning mathematics, building construction, mechanics, steam, electricity etc. The cost of maintaining the school during the year was Rs. 7,593 including the Government grant of Rs. 2,000. A class for teaching telegraphy was started at the St. Andrew's Colonial Homes as an experimental measure. The Government Telegraph Department provided the apparatus and the instructor.

Domestic training.

87. The Dow Hill School and St. Helen's Convent held classes in domestic science subjects during the year. These classes had 14 students undergoing special training. The Entally Convent and the St. Andrew's Colonial Homes continued to hold special classes for probationary sick nurses. Special classes for children's nurses were held at the Calcutta Free School, Kidderpore House and at the St. Andrew's Colonial Homes, Kalimpong.

At the City and Guilds examinations held in November 1918, 35 candidates appeared, 11 in plain needlework, 21 in plain cookery and 3 in dress-making. In needlework 9 passed, 3 obtaining prizes. In cookery 20 candidates were successful of whom 11 won prizes. In dress-making only one candidate passed.

Examination.

88. The Cambridge Examination Syndicate agreed during the year to accept modern Indian vernacular languages in lieu of French and Latin in the senior Cambridge examination. Syllabuses in Hindi, Urdu and Bengali were drawn up by the Inspector of European Schools and approved by the Syndicate. This change is consistent with the wishes of the Government of India and the findings of the Calcutta University Commission.

The Calcutta University decided that the Cambridge senior local examination should be accepted as equivalent to the matriculation, and the higher school certificate examination as equivalent to the intermediate arts or science examination.

Controlling Agency.

89. Mr. G. D'O. Maclear, the permanent Inspector of European Schools, Bengal, who joined the Indian Army Reserve of Officers in 1915, died in London on the 29th January 1919. He was a man of the highest character and attainments. His premature death is deeply regretted.

Mr. A. Mercer officiated as the Inspector of European Schools, Bengal, throughout the year.

CHAPTER X.

Muhammadan Education.

Statistics of Muhammadan pupils.

90. The total number of Muhammadan pupils in institutions of all kinds for the education of Indians decreased from 899,679 to 891,118, or by 8,561. The loss is due to the causes which led to the general decline in the school population during the year under report. In spite of this falling off the proportion of Muhammadan pupils to the total number of pupils increased from 46·0 per cent. to 46·4 per cent. The proportion of Moslem students in arts colleges remained the same as in the year before, viz., 10 per cent., in professional colleges it rose from 7·2 per cent. to 8·0 per cent., in primary schools from 50·6 per cent. to 51·4 per cent. and in special schools from 64·4 per cent. to 64·6 per cent., while it declined in high schools from 20·2 per cent. to 20·1 per cent., and in middle schools from 32·1 per cent. to 31·1 per cent. It thus appears that it is in primary schools only that the Muhammadans have made any real advance. Their proportion in those institutions approximates the proportion of Muhammadans in the total population, viz., 52·7 per cent. In secondary schools their progress is far from satisfactory. In those institutions the number of Moslem pupils fell from 103,038 to 97,396, or by 5,642. However, the number of Moslem pupils in professional colleges increased from 349 to 403 and in medical, engineering and surveying, technical and industrial and commercial schools from 753 to 764.

Number of Hindu and Muhammadan pupils compared.

91. Of the total number of Muhammadan pupils, returned on the 31st March 1919 by public and private institutions for Indians, 729,966 were males and 161,152 were females. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 747,982 and 151,697, respectively. Thus the Muhammadans gained during the year 9,455 female scholars, while they lost 18,016 male scholars, their net loss being 8,561 pupils only. In 1917-18 the Hindus returned 1,020,314 scholars of whom 867,347 were males and 152,967 were females. During the year under review the number of Hindu pupils totalled 995,461 of whom 843,481 were males and 151,980 were females. The Hindus, therefore, lost during the year 23,866 male scholars and 987 female scholars, their gross loss amounting to 24,853 scholars. On examining these figures it is found that in the year 1918-19 the Muhammadans lost less than 1 per cent. of their total school population; their loss in male scholars constituted 2·4 per cent., while their gain in female scholars amounted to 6·2 per cent. of their total numbers of male and female scholars, respectively. The Hindus have sustained a considerable decrease in the number of pupils. They lost 2·4 per cent. of their total strength in all kinds of institutions. The number of male Hindu scholars decreased by 2·8 per cent. and that of female scholars by ·6 per cent. Comparatively speaking, therefore, the loss to the Muhammadan community on account of the general fall in the number of pupils was not great.

Madrassahs.

92. The returns show that on the 31st March 1919 there were 273 madrassahs—13 senior and 260 junior—with an enrolment of 22,792. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 260 and 21,222. In madrassahs, therefore, the number of pupils increased by 1,570 or by a little more than 7 per cent. Towards the total expenditure on these institutions amounting to Rs. 4,31,790, public funds contributed Rs. 1,92,715. The entire additional grant of Rs. 25,000 was utilized during the year. The courses of studies for the junior department of madrassahs were revised.

Proposals for the establishment of Islamic intermediate classes attached to the Dacca Madrassah were sanctioned by Government during the year under report. The scheme provides for—

(1) the establishment of an Islamic matriculation examination with effect from 1919;
(2) the establishment of an Islamic intermediate examination from 1921;
(3) the constitution of an advisory board to assist the Education Department in conducting those examinations;
(4) the establishment of Islamic intermediate classes in the Dacca Madrassah; and
(5) the appointment of 3 additional professors in the Dacca Madrassah for the proposed intermediate classes.

Regulations for the conduct of the Islamic matriculation and the intermediate examinations were also approved by Government.

Maktabs.

93. The number of maktabs (recognised and unrecognised) increased from 9,502 to 11,120 of these 8,312 were for boys and 2,808 were for girls. The number of pupils attending those institutions increased from 274,267 to 310,044. Of these 236,808 were boys and 73,236 were girls, as against 214,482 and 59,785 in the preceding year. The total expenditure on maktabs rose from Rs. 6,54,868 to Rs. 7,91,129. Contributions from public funds increased from Rs. 2,98,004 to Rs. 4,15,742. The increase in expenditure from public funds was due to the additional grants sanctioned during the year. The purpose of these additional grants was to enable district funds to aid maktabs at a 50 per cent. higher rate than that at which ordinary primary schools are aided.

CHAPTER XI.

Education of Special Classes.

Education of Chiefs and Nobles.

94. The special provision for teaching the boys of the Nizamat family in the Nawab Bahadur's Institution at Murshidabad was continued; 26 boys of the family were being educated in this way during the year.

Education of aborigines and other backward races.

95. During the year under review Government approved a scheme for the improvement and expansion of education among the Sonthals in the district of Dinajpur and assigned a sum of Rs. 3,924 per annum for its introduction. The scheme proceeds on the same lines as the one already introduced in the Burdwan Division. In the Chittagong Division the Government Middle School at Bandarban had 46 pupils on its rolls, all of whom were Maghs. Primay schools for Tipras in the district of Tippera and for the Arrakanese-Magh settlers in the Cox's Bazar subdivision totalled 11.

In the Dacca Division the District Boards of Bakarganj and Mymensingh maintained 22 primary schools for the education of Maghs and aboriginal classes.

In the Burdwan Division the Sarenga Mission continued their activities and the number of primary schools for aborigines under their control was 164.

In the Presidency Division no special facilities worth record exist. But a large number of pupils belonging to the backward classes resort to the ordinary primary schools.

The society for the improvement of backward classes maintain a number of institutions for the education of children of the various poorer communities and sects. To encourage the educational activities of this association Government sanctioned during the year an annual grant of Rs. 3,000 and a non-recurring grant of Rs. 5,000.

Education of the defective.

96. The schools for the deaf and dumb and the blind in Calcutta are the most important institutions for the education of the physically defective. At the end of the year the Calcutta Deaf and Dumb School had 85 pupils on its rolls. A printing press was started in connection with this school, Government making a grant of Rs. 1,110 for the purpose. The deaf-mutes work in the press as compositors and printers.

The Calcutta Blind School had 33 pupils on its rolls on the 31st of March 1919. Of the total expenditure during the year amounting to Rs. 23,150, a sum of Rs. 3,800 was met from public funds. Besides the ordinary primary school course the school teaches cane-work, basket-making and music.

Education of children in tea gaerden.

97. There were 106 schools, 41 in the Jalpaiguri District and 65 in the Darjeeling District, for the education of children of labourers employed in tea gardens. Of these 5 schools in the district of Jalpaiguri are managed by Government. The total number of pupils in those schools was 2,083. The total cost to Government for tea garden schools amounted to Rs. 5,386, against the gross expenditure of Rs. 8,412.

Education of Factory children.

98. The school established at Tittagarh for educating the children of operatives in the local mills is reported to have done good work during the year.

CHAPTER XII.

Private Institutions.

99. The purely indigenous education of the country is carried on in unrecognised tôls, Quoran schools, Kyaungs or monastic schools conducted by Buddhist teachers and other schools not conforming to any recognized system of public instruction. The number and attendance of those institutions are subject to fluctuation as most of them are opened and closed spasmodically. From the divisional reports it appears that there is a tendency among institutions of this class to adopt standards recognised by the Department; this is the main cause of the gradual decrease in the number of private institutions. During the year under review the number of private schools declined from 2,584 to 2,478 and that of the pupils attending them from 72,322 to 69,209. Of the total number of attendance 17,125 were Hindus and 50,084 Muhammadans, while the rest belonged to other communities.

CHAPTER XIII.

Physical and Moral Training.

Hostels.

100. The number of hostels and boarding houses for boys increased form 775 to 809 and of boarders from 22,629 to 22,896. Besides these there were 70 boarding houses for girls with 4,594 inmates. With the exception of hostels and messes attached to Government institutions and to a few of the aided and unaided institutions the general condition of boarding houses leaves much to be desired both in respect of sanitary arrangements and in the matter of control and supervision.

The boarding allowances paid in the hostels attached to the high schools for girls at Mymensingh, Chittagong and Dacca were revised during the year.

Messes.

101. In Calcutta and Dacca the same arrangements continued for the accommodation of students in messes as were mentioned in the previous report.

Physical training.

102. During the year under report, the Advisor in Physical Education visited a number of institutions, inspected their hygienic and sanitary conditions, examined the work of the drill master and demonstrated to pupils and teachers certain types of physical training and games. He also lectured in the two training colleges in Calcutta and Dacca on personal and school hygiene. The scheme for the appointment of a whole-time Advisor in Physical Education is still under consideration.

It appears from divisional reports that though physical training receives increasing attention, it is practically neglected in many unaided schools. Some of these institutions run football and cricket teams, but the large majority of the boys have no games provided for them. In many places the lack of adequate playing-fields is keenly felt.

Drill continues to be taught under the system introduced by Dr. Grey and Dr. Segard. The subject forms a part of the curriculum of most schools but competent drill instructors are rare. As in previous years a number of drill masters were given a special course of training for six weeks under Dr. Segard at the Young Men's Christian Association, Calcutta. The scheme is an excellent one but its scope needs wide extension if it is to do more than touch the fringe of the problem.

Discipline.

103. During the year under review a few cases of breach of discipline were reported. Some students were arrested in Rajshahi, Chittagong, Calcutta and Khulna under the Defence of India Act. The number of national schools remained the same as in the previous year, viz., 4, but their attendance increased from 322 to 369. No unfavourable report was received against any teacher or pupil in them.

CHAPTER XIV.

Conferences.

104. No conference of educational officers was held during the year under the presidency of the Director of Public Instruction. Conferences of inspecting officers and teachers were held at divisional headquarters and various educational topics of interest and importance were discussed. Many of the district deputy inspectors also held conferences at district headquarters to discuss educational matters relating to their respective areas. In the Chittagong Division many sub-inspectors of schools held conferences of primary school teachers.

CHAPTER XV.

Text-book Committees.

105. There are still two separate Text-book Committees in the Presidency, one at Calcutta and the other at Dacca. During the year under report the Calcutta Committee received 591 books of which 177 were approved, 198 were rejected, 201 are under consideration and the remaining 15 were sent to this office for disposal. The Dacca Committee examined 846 books of which 615 were approved.

Qualifications of Actuaries under the Act.

3. Any person who, as an actuary, investigates the financial condition of a Company, signs valuation returns of a Company, or reports on any proposed amalgamation or transfer in conformity with clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 20 of the Act, shall be either—

Accuracy of particulars.

5. An Actuary, when investigating the financial condition of a Company, shall either satisfy himself as to the accuracy of the particulars extracted from the books or require a certificate of their accuracy from the manager and one other responsible officer of the Company.

Particulars to be given by Actuary.

6 An Actuary, after investigating the financial condition of a Company, shall, along with the statement required by the Fourth Schedule to the Act, furnish a statement regarding the following matters, namely:—

If he finds it to be insolvent—

(a) he shall state whether he considers that the Company could be made solvent as regards existing contracts by the transfer of its subscribed capital (whether paid or unpaid) to make good the deficiency in the life assurance fund. If so, he shall state what in his opinion is the amount so required, and whether or not any alteration should be made in the rates of premium for future entrants;

(b) if he considers that the Company cannot be made solvent as regards existing contracts by the transfer of the whole of the subscribed capital to the credit of the life assurance fund, he shall state what proportion of the sum assured the Company would, in his opinion, be able to meet under such contracts if all subscribed capital were fully paid up and transferred to such fund, and (1) if all the premiums thereunder were reduced proportionately with the sum assured, and (2) if the premiums were not reduced.

Preliminary expenses, etc.

8. (a) Any sum for which credit is taken in the balance sheet as an asset and which represents either the adverse balance of any profit and loss or revenue account or such bad debts and preliminary or organisation expenses as may not have been included in the profit and loss or revenue account either as loss or outgo must be considered as a deduction from the capital for the purpose of transfer under clause (a) of rule 7.

(b) No sum shall be treated as divisible surplus which includes either the paid up capital or any sum by which the assets referred to in sub-rule (a) exceed the paid up capital.

(c) Particulars of the assets referred to in sub-rule (a) shall be drawn up each year in Form I set out in the schedule to these rules and submitted and published with the balance sheet. The statement shall be signed by the persons who signed the balance sheet.

Inspectress of Schools, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions.

CALCUTTA, the 17th January 1920.

The Government Diploma in Accountancy of the Sydenham College of Commerce and Economics, Bombay.

INSTRUCTIONS TO CANDIDATES FOR THE DIPLOMA.

(The Regulations referred to are the Regulations for the award of the Diploma published on pages 1170-72 of Part IC of the Calcutta Gazette of the 10th December 1919.)

Regulation 4.—

(A) Examinations equivalent to Matriculation.—Examinations recognized by an Indian University as equivalent to the Matriculation or Entrance examination of that University will be recognized as such by the Accountancy Diploma Board under this regulation. If the candidate has studied for one or more terms in a College affiliated to an Indian University, a certificate to that effect signed by the Principal of that College will be accepted as proof of the candidate's eligibility for the Diploma course. The previous orders of the Board must be secured by the candidate in other cases.

(B) Attendance certificate.—The attendance ought to be in an institution specially recognized by the Accountancy Diploma Board for purposes of this Diploma. The candidate is required to have attended three-fourths of the number of days on which lectures were delivered in each of the two academic years. Should his attendance in either of the two years have fallen short of three-fourths, that particular year will not be counted as a portion of the two years' attendance prescribed by this regulation. If he has attended the prescribed number of lectures in each of two academic years, but has not been certified as fit to present himself for the examination, he will not be required to attend lectures for a third year, but will merely be required to satisfy the Principal about his fitness to appear for the examination, and to submit his application through the Principal. He may undergo practical training in accounts during such third year, and such training will be counted as a portion of the three years' training prescribed by Regulation 12 (b).

(C) The fee of Rs. 50 must reach the Secretary to the Accountancy Diploma Board, 65, Apollo Street, Fort Bombay on or before 31st January. Fees paid in will on no account be refunded.

Regulation No. 5.—

Under this regulation, an under-graduate may, in lieu of attending lectures for two years as prescribed by Regulation No. 4, receive practical training in accounts for two years. He must apply to the Board for the recognition of such practical training and secure the orders of the Board before applying for the examination; the number and date of such order must be quoted in the candidate's application for the examination.

Regulations 6 and 13.—

When the holder of a temporary auditor's certificate applies for the examination under regulation 6 or for the Diploma under Regulation 13, the period for which the auditor's certificate was granted must not have expired. An application from such a candidate submitted after the expiry of the period for which the certificate was granted will not be accepted by the Board.

Regulation 12.—

Practical training.—Every candidate entering on the course of practical training prescribed by this regulation must submit to the Accountancy Diploma Board an application for the recognition of such practical training in the prescribed form, copies of which can be had at the office of the Board, Apollo Street, Bombay; such applications must be submitted within sixty days of the commencement of the practical training.

The practical training must be under a Chartered or an Incorporated Accountant or a certified auditor working as a Public Accountant. It is immaterial whether the candidate has paid a premium for such training or is in receipt of a salary. It is essential that he should be a full-time apprentice and should not be engaged in any other work during the usual office hours.

Chartered and Incorporated Accountants may take and train apprentices without the previous permission of the Government. The holder of a permanent (whether restricted or unrestricted) auditor's certificate granted by a Local Government may take and train apprentices, provided he is specially empowered in that behalf by the Local Government of the province where he is practising. The mere fact that he holds a permanent auditor's certificate will not empower him to take apprentices.

The apprenticeship may be served partly under one and partly under another practising accountant, provided it is in each case reported to and recognized by the Accountancy Diploma Board.

Regulation 12 (b).—

The practical training in accounts prescribed by this regulation may be (1) partly before and partly after, or (2) wholly before or (3) wholly after, the candidate passes the Diploma examination of this Board. The course prescribed for an under-graduate covers five years, viz., two years as a student of a recognized institution, plus three years' apprenticeship. The practical training in accounts, if any, received by an under-graduate during his two years' attendance at a recognized institution, will, therefore, not be reckoned as a portion of the three years' apprenticeship prescribed by this regulation.

Regulation 12 (c).—

At least two out of the three years' apprenticeship prescribed for graduates must be served after they become graduates.

Number of apprentices.—No practising accountant will hereafter be authorised to take and train more than two apprentices at a time. This restriction will not apply to candidates who have already commenced their practical training.

Auditor's certificate.—No permanent unrestricted auditor's certificate will hereafter be granted by any Local Government or Administration to a person who does not hold the Government Diploma in Accountancy of the Sydenham College of Commerce and Economics, Bombay. Holders of the Diploma have to apply for a permanent unrestricted auditor's certificate to the Local Government of the province where the candidate received his practical training for the Diploma.

By order of the Accountancy Diploma Board,

K. S. AIYAR, B.A., F.S.A.A., Secretary.

The following method of finding H. W. at various places between the Outer Bar and Basrah has been found to be approximately correct :—

Time of H. W. at—

Outer Bar	=Time of H. W.	Bushire	+4 hours.
Fao	=	Do.	+5 „
Abadan	=	Do.	+6 „
Mahommerah	=	Do.	+7 „
Basrah	=	Do.	+8 „

In calculating time of H. W. from above only the higher tide of the day at Bushire should be used.

If a Shamal is blowing about 50 minutes should be added to, and if a Kans about 15 minutes should be substracted from, above times

For H. W. Springs about 1 hour should be deducted, and for H. W. Neaps about 1 hour should be added to the above times.

It has been found on an average that ships at anchor in the river between Fao and Basrah swing to the flood about 2 hours before H. W., and to the ebb about 2 hours after H. W., except in summer when ships rarely swing to the flood.

GENERAL INFORMATION WITH REGARD TO WIRELESS TIME SIGNALS.

No. 3 (second publication).—The following particulars, etc., relative to the above, issued by the British Admiralty (No. 1993 of 1919), are republished :—

Former Notice.—No. 1264 of 1919 hereby cancelled.

The accompanying list of wireless time signals is intended to provide in a form suitable to give all information required by the wireless operator, a complete and up-to-date list of all time signals issued by wireless stations throughout the world. The details showing the method of transmission of any given time signal will be found in the "Admiralty List of Lights and Time Signals" or in the "International List of Radio-telegraph Stations" (The Berne List).

The times given in the 4th column of the list are expressed in the 4-figure notation employed for signalling during the war. The term "G. M. T." here means the civil mean time of the meridian of Greenwich, with the day commencing at midnight and the hours reckoned from 00 to 23. Where two times are joined by a hyphen, the times denote respectively the beginning and end of the signal.

Most of the wireless time signals at present transmitted are sent by means of an automatic arrangement operated by the pendulum of a chronometer situated at some observatory. In such cases absolute reliance may be placed upon the accuracy of the signal. There are, however, many stations in the world which are very suitably situated for transmitting time signals to ships which could otherwise not receive them, where it would be very difficult or impossible to establish an automatic system. In such cases "hand" signals may be provided; but in general these signals should not be trusted to be accurate within closer limits than about two seconds.

It is hoped that all wireless time signals will eventually be standardised so that there shall be only two kinds of signals transmitted, the automatic signals being all alike and quite distinctive from the hand signals. It is further expected that arrangements will be made for all time signals to be transmitted at times so selected that a ship with only one wireless operator will be able to read them. A similar scheme for wireless weather bulletins is being evolved.

Note.—This Notice will be subject to revision from time to time.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

FIRST FORECAST OF THE WHEAT CROP OF BENGAL, 1919-20.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1917-18, the area under wheat in Bengal has represented some 0·4 per cent. of the total area under wheat in India. The ratio of the irrigated wheat acreage to total wheat acreage in (a) British India and (b) in the territory now reported on, has in the five years ending 1917-18 averaged (a) 40·7 and (b) 17·8 per cent., respectively.)

Explanatory.—Three forecasts of the wheat crop are published. This forecast deals only with the area sown and the general condition of the crop in its early stages.

Area sown.—According to the estimates of the District Officers the total area sown amounts to 115,900 acres against 109,700 and 114,600 acres (now revised) returned in last year's first and final forecasts, respectively.

Character of the season and condition of the crop.—The rainfall in September was sufficient for the preparatory tillage, which began at the normal time. Light rain in October delayed the sowings to a certain extent but rainfall in the middle of November greatly facilitated the operation. The present condition and prospects of the crop are generally reported to be fair.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF DECEMBER 1919.

I. Character of the season.—During the month under review there was no rainfall throughout the province except some scattered showers in Darjeeling, Bakarganj, Chittagong, Tippera and the Chittagong Hill Tracts. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

III. State of standing crops.—The condition of standing crops was reported to be generally favourable.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn.—The prospects of spring crops were reported to be generally promising. Autumn crops yielded an outturn of 85 per cent. and winter til (sesamum) 68 per cent. The winter rice crop is generally expected to be satisfactory.

V. Damage to standing crops.—No report of any damage to the standing crops was received from any district.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of live-stock was reported to be fair on the whole. Cattle-disease, however, existed in parts of Murshidabad, Khulna, Burdwan, Darjeeling, Rangpur, Malda, Mymensingh, Noakhali and the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

No. 2138For., dated the 28th February 1916.

No. 774T.R., dated the 27th May 1916.

I.—Rules for the recruitment of the Provincial Forest Service.

Extract from Rules for the Provincial Service Course at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra-Dun.

* * * * * * *

5. Allotment of studentships.—The maximum number of students to be admitted annually during each succeeding period of three years will be decided by the Board of Forestry at its triennial meetings. Within this number studentships will be assigned to the various provinces by the President who, after satisfying their requirements, may also assign vacancies to British Possessions, Indian States, etc. The President is empowered to refuse an application for a studentship without assigning any reason.

In January of the year preceding that in which the course will commence the President will enquire of Local Governments and States the number of vacancies they desire, and all applications for nominations must be communicated to the President by the 1st April of that year. All nominations will be allotted and communicated to Local Governments and States concerned by the 15th April. Should any nomination not be accepted, the President should be informed by as early a date as possible so as to permit of his transferring the nomination elsewhere.

6. Qualifications.—Local Governments may prescribe such educational qualifications as they please for candidates whom they propose to depute to the Provincial Service Course, subject to the condition that only those who are in all respects qualified by previous education, more especially in English and Mathematics, thoroughly to follow and profit by the course of instruction should be nominated. It should also be noted that a substantial knowledge of one or more branches of natural science is very desirable.

7. Physical test.—It is left to Local Governments to prescribe any physical test they please. Should a student at any time during the course be found to be physically unfit, the President may remove him from the Institute.

8. Qualifying entrance examination—English—The test in this subject is left to Local Governments; it might suitably consist of précis writing, dictation and conversation.

Mathematics.—The examination will consist of two papers—one in Arithmetic and Algebra and the other in Geometry and Trigonometry—to each of which three hours will be allowed. The papers will be sent under sealed cover to Local Governments. After the examination has been held on the date fixed, answers will be forwarded under sealed cover to the President, Forest Research Institute, direct.

The standard in mathematics is a practical knowledge of Arithmetic, Algebra, up to and including quadratic equations and simple problems, Mensuration, Geometry (including the first 3 books of Euclid) and Elementary Trigonometry, including the solution of triangles and the use of logarithms. No candidate who fails to obtain half the full marks in each paper will be considered to have passed.

The examination will be held in the 1st August at Dehra-Dun and other centres to suit the convenience of Local Governments, the date fixed being communicated by the President in June.

With the permission of the Local Governments concerned, candidates from Indian States and private students will be examined at these centres.

A successful candidate will not without re-examination be eligible for admission to any course, save that immediately following the examination at which he has qualified, provided that for special reasons this rule may be relaxed under the orders of the Inspector-General of Forests.

There is no restriction to the number of candidates who may be permitted to appear at this examination by Local Governments and Indian States to whom nominations have been allotted by the President, Forest

Research Institute. Local Governments and Indian States to whom nominations have not been allotted are also permitted to send candidates to this examination, but these candidates, even if they qualify, will be admitted to the Institute only provided that a sufficient number of qualified candidates is not available from Provinces and States to whom nominations have been allotted. Local Governments and Indian States should inform the President by the 1st June in each year of the number of candidates they desire should appear for this examination, in order that the requisite number of examination papers should be supplied.

9. Categories of students.—There are four categories of students :—

(a) Government probationary students, stipendiary or non-stipendiary.
(b) Students deputed by Indian States and British Colonies, etc.
(c) Students already in Government service.
(d) Private students.

(a) Government probationary students are those nominated by a Local Government as probationers for the Provincial Service.

(c) Students already in Government service may be deputed at the discretion of Local Governments, provided that they pass the examination prescribed in rule 8.

(d) Private students can be admitted only if there are vacancies after the demands of (a), (b) and (c) above have been satisfied. Their chief raison d'être is to meet a possible demand on the part of large landowners who may wish to place their forest areas under professional management.

10. Submission of applications.—In the case of Government probationary students, applications must be made to the Chief Conservator or Senior Conservator or Conservator of the Province concerned, or in the manner prescribed by the Local Government ; in the case of students from British Colonies they should be made in the manner prescribed by the Governor of the Colony concerned. In the case of students deputed by an Indian State all applications for studentships must be endorsed by some responsible official, such as an Agent to the Governor-General, a Resident, a Political Agent, a Superintendent or a Deputy Commissioner, to ensure that the studentships asked for are based on the actual requirements of that State only. As a rule those who have already been through the Rangers' course at the Forest College will not be accepted.

In the case of private students, applications for nominations must be made to the President direct ; they should be supported by the certificates detailed in rule 12 and by the production of evidence to show that the candidate possesses a good general education.

11. Age.—Candidates must be between the ages of 18 and 25 on the 1st April in the year in which the course begins.

Local Governments may for special reasons relax this rule in the case of candidates of catogories (a) and (c) of rule 9, and the Inspector-General of Forests has similar power in respect of candidates of categories (b) and (d).

12. Certificates.—With their applications candidates must furnish the following certificates (this does not apply to those already in Government service) :—

(a) A certificate that the candidate is a "Native of India" within the meaning* assigned to those words by section 6 of 33 Vict., Cap. 3.

N.B.—This certificate may be omitted in the case of private students and of students deputed by British Colonies

(b) A certificate of age.

(c) A health certificate in the form prescribed by article 49 of the Civil Service Regulations, 5th edition, signed by a Civil Surgeon and testifying to the candidate's sound constitution, good vision* and hearing, and general physical fitness for a rough outdoor life in the Forest Department, and to the fact that he bears on his body marks of successful vaccination or of small-pox.

(d) A certificate showing that the candidate is of good social standing and good moral character, and is likely to make a good executive Forest Officer.

* "Native of India" means any person born and domiciled within the dominions of His Majesty in India, or within the territories of Indian princes tributary to or in alliance with His Majesty, of parents habitually resident in India and not established here for temporary purposes only. (Article 37, Civil Service Regulations, 1915.)

Certificates (c) and (d) must bear date not earlier than the 1st January of the year previous to that in which the candidate desires admission to the Forest Research Institute : the latter certificate must be signed by a Conservator of Forests of the Imperial Forest Service, District Officer,* Political Agent, or a British Government Gazetted Officer of high standing.

The Inspector-General of Forests may, should he consider it desirable, relax any of the conditions imposed under the foregoing portions of this rule.

In the case of candidates included in categories (b) and (d), rule 9, the above certificates should be forwarded to the President when the names of candidates are communicated to him.

13. Preliminary training.—It is left to the discretion of Local Governments &c., to test the suitability of their candidates for a Forest career by a period of practical training in the forests before they enter the Institute : special attention being paid to physical fitness.

During such training candidates will receive such consolidated allowance as may be ordered by the Local Governments, &c.

14. Stipends.—

(1) Government probationary students.—It is left to Local Governments to award stipends in such manner as they please, provided that the total for 24 months' course does not exceed Rs. 2,400, i.e, does not exceed an average rate of Rs. 100 per mensem. In the event of a stipend being awarded, it will ordinarily consist of—

(a) a sum not exceeding Rs. 100 per mensem for the duration of the course or a portion thereof ;

(b) in lieu of the above, a lump sum to be paid on a candidate's successfully obtaining such certificate as may have been agreed upon ;

(c) partly the one, partly the other of the above.

(2) Students already in Government service.—Such officers will, while at the Institute, draw the pay and travelling allowances of their grade in the service, or a stipend not exceeding Rs. 100 per mensem in place thereof as the Local Government may decide.

It must clearly be understood that there is no guarantee that a stipend will cover the whole cost of living, &c., at the Institute.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

27. Travelling allowance of Government probationary students.—Such students will be granted actual expenses on tour as passed by the President, including single second class fare by rail or steamer for the student, fare of one servant and freight of a bicycle where necessary.

* * * * * * *

Rules for the recruitment of candidates for the Provincial Forest Service in Bengal.

1. Appointments to the Provincial Forest Service shall be made—

(a) by promotion of Forest Rangers of long service and tried probity, irrespective of the educational qualification they may hold ;

(b) by the selection for direct appointment of candidates, who must successfully pass through the Provincial Forest Service Course

* Standard of vision required for the Provincial Forest Service :—

(1) If myopia in one or both eyes exists, candidate may be passed provided the ametropia does not exceed 2·5D, and if with correcting glasses, not exceeding 2·5D, the acuteness of vision in one eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ and in the other $\frac{6}{9}$, there being normal range of accommodation with the glasses.

(2) Myopic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate for service, provided the lens or the combined spherical and cylindrical lenses required to correct the error of refraction do not exceed 2·5D, the acuteness of vision in one eye, when corrected, being equal to $\frac{6}{6}$ and in the other eye $\frac{6}{9}$, together with the normal range of accommodation with the correcting glasses, there being no evidence of progressive disease in the choroid or retina.

(3) A candidate having total hypermetropia not exceeding 4D is not disqualified, provided the sight in one eye (when under the influence of atropine) equals $\frac{6}{6}$, and in the other eye equals $\frac{6}{9}$ with + 4D, or any lower power.

(4) Hypermetropic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate for the service, provided the lens or combined lenses required to cover the error of refraction do not exceed 4D, and that the sight of one eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ and of the other $\frac{6}{9}$, with or without such lens or lenses.

(5) A candidate having a defect of vision arising from nebula of the cornea is disqualified if the sight of one eye be less then $\frac{6}{12}$. In such a case the better eye must be emmetropic. Defects of vision arising from pathological or other changes in the deeper structures of either eye which are not referred to in the rules may exclude a candidate for admission into the service.

(6) Squint or any morbid condition, subject to the risk of aggravation or recurrence, in either eye, may cause the rejection of the candidate. The existence of imperfection of colour sense will be noted on the candidate's papers.

at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, and thereafter render not less than two years' satisfactory service as Probationary Extra Assistant Conservator, of Forests before being confirmed.

2. The pay of Probationary Extra Assistant Conservator of Forests will be Rs. 150 per mensem for the first two years; and thereafter until they are appointed to vacancies in the sanctioned cadre of the Provincial Forest Service, pay not exceeding Rs. 200 per mensem may be given at the discretion of the Local Government.

3. Candidates for nomination to the Provincial Service course at the Forest Research Institute must possess the following minimum educational qualifications:—

(i) a certificate of having passed the I.Sc., I.E., or I.A. examination of an Indian University in a group of subjects including Mathematics, or

(ii) the Licentiate of Agriculture degree of a Government Agricultural College, or (iii) if a European, the Junior School certificate awarded in connection with the Cambridge Local Examination in a group of subjects, including Algebra, Geometry and Trigonometry.

4. Applications should be submitted to the Conservator of Forests, Bengal, through the Collector of the district in which the candidates reside, or through the Divisional Forest Officer if the candidates reside in a Forest Division: applications should be accompanied by the certificates prescribed by rule 12 of the Research Institute admission rules, and by the educational certificates prescribed under rule 3 above as well as by a declaration whether or not he has at any time been pronounced unfit for Government employment by the Medical Board at the India Office, or any other duly constituted medical authority. From the applications received the Conservator of Forests may make a preliminary selection, and candidates so selected will be required to undergo the qualifying examinations in English and Mathematics prescribed by rule 8 of the Forest Research Institute admission rules. The qualifying examination in English and Mathematics will be held in Writers' Buildings, Calcutta. The examination in Mathematics will be that prescribed in rule 8 of the admission rules of the Forest College. The Conservator of Forests, Bengal, or a Deputy Conservator of Forests selected by him, will conduct the examination in English, which should be held a day before or after the date of the examination in Mathematics, and will decide the result. The object of the examination in English is to test thoroughly the capacity of candidates to follow the course of instruction given at the College. Two passages will be read out (not dictated) to the candidates at a fair speed. Each candidate will then be required to write a full précis of the passages, in order to show that he has grasped the salient points. There will also be a colloquial examination. On receipt of the results of those examinations the Conservator of Forests may select from the candidates who have qualified at those examinations not more than twice the number of men required to be deputed to the course in the ensuing year, and those selected candidates may be required to undergo a course of preliminary practical training in such Forest divisions as the Conservator may direct, which may extend over a period of not less than four and not more than six months.

During this course, candidates will be granted a monthly allowance of Rs. 40, which is intended to cover their expenses. The Conservator of Forests will dispense with the services of any candidate whose work or conduct during this period may prove unsatisfactory or whose physical fitness appears to be defective.

The final selection of candidates will be made by Government.

5. While at the Forest Research Institute the selected candidates will be given a monthly stipend of Rs. 50, which will be supplemented by a bonus of Rs. 1,000 at the end of the course to those candidates who pass with "Honours," and who are well reported on by the President. The amount of the bonus is reducible by Government in the event of the report not being entirely satisfactory.

6. The "actual expenses" incurred by probationary students on journeys by rail or steamer (1) while proceeding to join the Institute for the first time and finally returning therefrom, and (2) while undergoing the course at the Institute will be defrayed by Government. For the purpose of this rule, probationary students will be considered as officers of the second class, under article 1002, Civil Service Regulations.

They will get actual expenses, as passed by the President or, when proceeding to and from the Institute, by the officer authorised to countersign

13. Preliminary training.—All candidates not already in the service of Government, who have been accepted by the President for admission to the College, will be required to undergo, before joining the College, a course of practical training in the forests of the province from which they come, lasting at least three and a-half months. Such candidates will not be allowed to join the College unless they can produce a certificate signed by the Divisional Officer under whom they have served, and countersigned by the Conservator of the Circle, or in the case of Indian States by the Durbar, that they have undergone the course of practical training in a satisfactory manner and are likely to become useful Forest Officers. The President may exempt a candidate from the whole or a portion of the practical course above prescribed, after satisfying himself that the omission to complete the minimum prescribed term was due to no fault of the candidate, and that the Conservator, under whom the candidate had undergone part of this period of training, had certified that he has given promise of making an efficient Forest Officer.

14. Stipends or scholarships.—It is left to Local Governments to award stipends or scholarships in such manner as they please, provided that the total for the 24 months' course does not exceed Rs. 1,200, i.e., does not exceed an average rate of Rs. 50 per mensem. In the event of scholarships being awarded, the general methods of assigning such will be—

(a) a stipend not exceeding Rs. 50 per mensem for the duration of the course or a portion thereof;

(b) in lieu of the above, a lump sum to be paid on a candidate's successfully obtaining such certificate as may have been agreed upon;

(c) partly the one, partly the other of the above.

15. Allowances.—Government probationary students, while under training in the forests of the province from which their names have been sent up, will receive travelling allowance at the rate of Rs. 25 per mensem, to enable them to defray their travelling expenses during the course of the practical training referred to in rule 13. This allowance will be met from the budget grants of the local Forest Departments, and will be paid only under the countersignature of the Conservator of the Circle concerned.

(II).—Rules for candidates in category (4).

16. Candidates in Government service, who may be deputed to the Forest College, will be ordinarily—

(a) Forest Rangers who have not previously obtained the Higher Standard certificate of the College and who desire to qualify themselves for further promotion in their own or to a higher class.

Such officers may be deputed by Local Governments, provided that they are certified by the Conservator under whom they are serving to possess a knowledge of English and general education and ability sufficient to enable them to profit by the course. They must not be above 30 years of age on entering the College, and need not go through the practical training referred to in rule 13. While at the College, they will draw the pay of their grade and the travelling allowances to which they may be entitled under the Civil Service Regulations.

(b) Other members of the Subordinate Forest Service (Deputy Rangers, Foresters and other subordinate officials) similarly desirous of qualifying for promotion, who may be deputed by Local Governments, provided that:—

(i) they have been in that service for not less than two years;

(ii) they are under 25 years of age on entering the College;

(iii) there is accommodation at the College and that the President is satisfied that the candidate possesses the necessary qualifications.

NOTE.—The Inspector-General of Forests is empowered to relax rules (i) and (ii).

Such officers will, while at the College, draw the pay and travelling allowances of their grade in the service, or a stipend not exceeding Rs. 50 per mensem in place thereof, as the Local Government may decide. They will not be required to undergo the practical training.

* * * * * * *

*See Appendix for rules regarding Native Non-Commissioned Officers of His Majesty's Army.

30. Travelling Allowance of Government probationary students.—Such students will not ordinarily be entitled to travelling allowance, being expected to defray their expenses when on tour; but it is left to Local Governments to sanction the payment of actual expenses for journeys by rail or steamer.
